YANKS AT MANCHURIAN FRONTIER

Allied Blows Broke Morale, Prisoners Say

Chinese Reds Also Deny Volunteering

TOKYO, Nov. 20 (AP)—The shock of Allied firepower has demoralized Chinese Communist morale in Korea, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said today.

The word comes from Chinese Communist prisoners, who also deny they came to Korea as volunteers, headquarters reported. Red China insists only Chinese "volunteers" are fighting in Korea.

An intelligence spokesman said these statements were gained from interrogating approximately 150 prisoners from one division of the Chinese Communist 38th Army.

Deny Volunteering

The captives said the army's morale had been high before it was hit by the Allied sledgehammer in Northwest Korea Nov. 5. Chinese soldiers had not expected anything like this blow, the spokesman said.

Not only did they deny volunteering, the spokesman reported, but they said they did not know any Chinese who did volunteer. They seemed a little surprised by the entire question of "volunteers."

The prisoners said no units in their division of the 38th Army were integrated with North Korean troops. This belied another claim of the Peiping radio—that Chinese and North Koreans were fighting shoulder to shoulder.

Supplies Were Problem

Actually, the prisoners added, there was very little contact with the North Koreans and even this much was marked by mutual dislike and suspicion.

The 38th Army got no help from North Koerans in maintaining supply lines from the Manchurian side of the Yalu river. Supplies, the prisoners said, were an unexpected problem. They had never encountered complete superiority in the air and the consequent harassment of convoys. Food was always short.

Dates of movements of the 38th Army, the spokesman said, show that Communist China began preparing to put Chinese troops into the fight during the first weeks of October.

Whether the Chinese troops knew they were going to meet U. N. forces is not clear, the intelligence spokesman said. Prisoners said their company officers had been ordered only to "assist the North Koreans in driving out the invader, conquer and occupy the land."

Philippine Troop Leader Protests

SEOUL, Nov. 20 (AP)—The commander of 1,200 Philippine troops who volunteered for duty in the Korean war protested officially today that his men were not being used as a single fighting unit and asked that they be withdrawn.

Col. Mariano Azurin, commander of the Philippine army's 10th Combat Battalion, also complained that his men were not supplied with winter gear, and that the Korean winter was too cold for the fighters from the tropical Philippines.

Azurin, a graduate of the U. S. armored combat school at Fort Knox, Ky., directed his protest to the Philippine government through the U. S. Eighth Army and Gen. MacArthur's United Nations command in Tokyo.

Lane Names Frampton To Board Of Education

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 20 (AP)—Gov. Lane today appointed J. Jerome Frampton of Federalsburg to the State Board of Education.

Frampton will serve a seven-year term, which began last May. He succeeds Horace M. Morgan of Queen Anne.

Calif. Sen. Downey Will Resign; Nixon To Take His Place

Richard M. Nixon — Sheridan Downey

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 20 (AP)—Sen. Sheridan Downey (D-Calif) announced today he will resign 30 days before the end of his term and Gov. Warren said he will name Senator-elect Richard M. Nixon in his place.

Downey told newsmen in Warren's presence that he will resign effective midnight of Nov. 30 for reasons of health.

He said he has not discussed the move with Nixon, a Republican who was elected Nov. 7 to succeed him. Downey, a senator for 12 years, did not seek another term.

Normally, Nixon would take office Jan. 1. His early seating will give him priority over other new senators in committee assignments.

However, Sen. Downey emphasized that this was just a by-product of his intended resignation. The real reason, he said, was that while his health has improved, he did not feel up to another session of the Senate when Congress reconvenes Nov. 27.

Shigemitsu, Jap Wartime Foreign Minister, Freed

TOKYO, Tuesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japan's wartime foreign minister, was released from Sugamo prison today. He was paroled from a seven-year sentence as a war criminal despite a Russian protest.

Shigemitsu was convicted at the 1948 war crimes trial. He was sentenced to seven years, the lightest term imposed by the international court. Good behavior made him eligible for parole last March.

'Mr. Shigemitsu, has been released from Sugamo prison on parole," his attorney, George A. Furness, said in a statement. "It is not a pardon. His sentence has not expired.

"He is not free, it merely means that instead of serving the remainder of his seven-year sentence in prison he may go home. There are some of us who feel that he never should have been indicted, never tried, convicted or sentenced, but his vindication must come later, perhaps with the writing of history."

Paul Patterson Resigns As Head Of A. S. Abell Co.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP) — Paul Patterson, for 31 years president of the A. S. Abell Company which publishes the Baltimore Sunpapers, has offered his resignation and asked to be retired, it was announced tonight.

The resignation is effective January 31. Patterson, who will remain a member of the board of directors, will be succeeded as president by William F. Schmick, Sr., now executive vice president.

Patterson joined the staff as managing editor of the Evening Sun in 1911. His newspaper experience spans more than 50 years, including a long tenure as a member of the board of directors of the Associated Press, from which he retired this year.

U. N. Rejects Russia's Terms For Peace Plan Cooperation

Nine-Power Resolution Is Adopted

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—The United Nations Assembly today rejected Russia's terms for cooperating in the development of Secretary-General Trygve Lie's 20-year peace program. Instead, it adopted a nine-power resolution calling for the appropriate U. N. bodies to work on various phases of Lie's plan.

The backbone of the Secretary-General's 10-point plan was a series of high-level Security Council meetings at which foreign ministers, prime ministers and other top officials would tackle the U. N.'s outstanding problems.

Sovet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky had countered with a series of conditions, including the participation of Red China in the council meetings and the absolute prohibition of the atomic bomb.

9-Power Plan Adopted 51-5

The 60-nation Assembly beat down each section of the Soviet resolution in a paragraph-by-paragraph vote. Its vote for the nine-power plan was 51 in favor, five (Soviet bloc) against, and one (Nationalist China) abstention. None of the Soviet points received more than 16 votes.

The Lie program was elaborated by the Secretary-General last spring and presented by him to President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Stalin. Besides the periodic conferences, it calls for long range economic and financial policies to raise world living standards, and suggests intensified efforts to break the deadlock on atomic energy.

Just before the vote, Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik stepped up to the rostrum and repeated his delegation's charges that Lie's program was ghost-written by the U. S. State Department.

Lie angrily denied the charge.

Aired By Assistants

He said he wrote the program himself "with the help only of my own eight assistants."

Defeat of the Soviet demand for a Red Chinese seat does not mean that the Communist Chinese will not be given U. N. representation. This delicate question is still under consideration elsewhere in the Assembly. The vote today merely meant that the assembly refused to make such a specific issue as Chinese representation a condition for approval of the Lie program.

Earlier, British Delegate Kenneth Younger charged that the Russians were not really anxious to have the Chinese Communists in the United Nations anyway.

NAM Proposes "Defense Tax"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Organized business suggested today that a "defense tax" on top of corporate income levies be substituted for the administration's excess profits tax proposal.

The suggestion came from Charles R. Sligh, Jr., Holland, Michigan, representing the National Association of Manufacturers.

Despite a committee ban against discussion of anything except an excess profits tax, the NAM got its alternative proposal into the House Ways and Means Committee record.

What Sligh did was to advise the committee its records contained an inaccurate description of the NAM proposal. He then explained the inaccuracy and quoted the associations' tax program.

However, for the fourth time since the hearings started, the committee reiterated its intention to stick to the subject of excess profits. By a vote of 15 Democrats to 10 Republicans, it ruled that witnesses could not comment on a substitute plan proposed by Rep. Reed of New York, top Republican committee member.

The Reed plan would let corporations pay a maximum corporate income tax of 55 per cent or, if they elected to pay under an excess profits tax plan, they could pay a minimum of 50 per cent of their net income.

Symington Gives NPA Mild Go-Slow Warning

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—W. Stuart Symington today issued a mild go-slow warning to the National Production Authority, which is considering the possibility of imposing an all-industry materials control system next July 1.

The defense coordinator told a news conference that if the government uses "too heavy a hand" on controls before military production hits full stride it "might hurt the economy."

Infants Photographed

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 20 (AP) — Newport hospital announced today that it will photograph all newborn infants as an aid to identification.

Douglas Offers Labor Law Plan At CIO Meeting

Would Retain Some T-H Act Provisions

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP)—Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) proposed at the CIO convention today a new labor law considerably less favorable to labor than what the CIO has demanded.

The Democratic Senator is known as a "liberal" and also has been noted for his independent thinking on party policies.

At the same time Sen. Douglas commented that the Taft-Hartley Act, though "on the whole an iniquious law," has not had "as bad effect as expected."

He said any new labor law should have two requirements that the old Wagner Act, liked by labor, did not have.

One would require unions to bargain with employers. Douglas said there have been some instances when they have refused to do so.

The other would require unions which have union shop agreements with employers to keep initiation fees down.

Douglas also suggested that several provisions of the Taft-Hartley law should be retained. These require regular financial statements from unions and regular union elections, and prevent unions from expelling members for certain reasons if such expulsion would cause members to lose their jobs.

CIO President Philip Murray noted that Douglas' views differed in some respects from those of CIO leaders, but he suggested the 600 delegates give consideration to the Senator's "constructive and intelligent" suggestions.

Murray earlier asserted that the recent election campaign was fought strictly on confused international issues and not on pressing domestic problems.

Therefore, he said, he does not consider the election results a repudiation either of CIO principles or of President Truman's domestic policies.

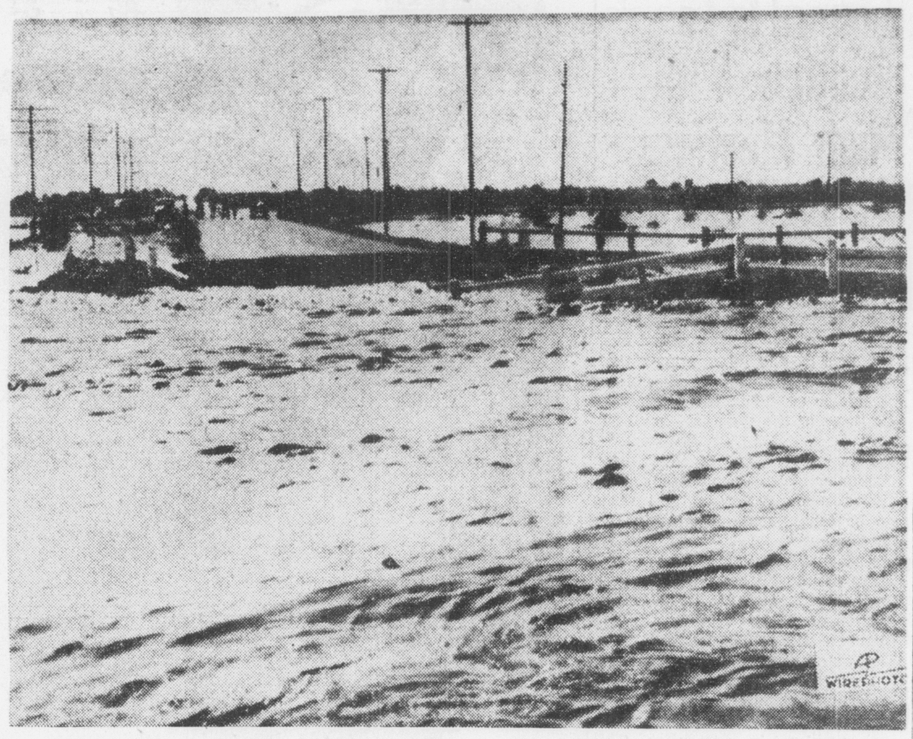
U. S. Tanks Make Perfect Score

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Army today claimed a perfect score for a U. S. Patton tank company in a battle against Russian made T-34 tanks in North Korea more than two weeks ago.

The Army said 16 Pattons knocked out 16 of the Red Tanks, with American losses confined to rapidly repaired exterior damage to four Pattons.

The action, belatedly reported today, took place at Choryongwan, about 25 miles southeast of the Manchurian border, between Oct. 30 and Nov. 4. The fight occurred before the 24th U. S. Division withdrew southward after Chinese Communist forces entered Korea in large numbers.

Described as "typical" achievements by the Pattons were the destruction of two Red tanks at 800 yards and another at 600 yards. The Pattons, a modernized version of the Gen. Pershing tank, mount 90-millimeter guns. Their Russian-built adversaries carried 85 mm. guns.



Bridge Washed Out By Flood Waters

Onrushing flood waters moved out a frame bridge crossing this stream near Bakersfield, Calif., yesterday as creeks and rivers of central California rioted under pressure of the past days' heavy rains. Thousands have been driven from their homes and damage is counted in the millions.

100 New Mexico Prison Inmates Stage Uprising

Tear Gas And Riot Guns Quell Outbreak

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 20 (AP)—About 100 convicts armed with crude weapons rioted for nearly an hour today behind turreted walls of the New Maxico state penitentiary.

The uprising was put down by prison guards and 24 state and city police armed with tear gas and riot guns.

The yelling, swearing prisoners wrecked two offices and the prison canteen before they submitted. None escaped.

Hold Yard For Hour

Six guards and the secretary of a Mexican consul—a prison visitor—were injured, none seriously.

Reasons for the outbreak were not clear. But Mexican Consul Bernardo Blanco, who was trapped in a guardhouse by the rioters, said:

"The men told me they 'had to do it' because of bad treatment."

Prison Warden Howell Gage said merely the riot had something to do with a "prisoner who was out of line." He did not amplify.

Armed With Knives, Pipe

Gage ordered all prisoners to the mess hall after the riot. Silence met his request: "If any one has anything to say right now, stand up."

Gage fixed the number of rioters at about half the 200 convicts in the exercise yard. A search after the riot disclosed a large number were armed with straight razors, knives, crude blackjacks, chains, pieces of pipe.

Six Burned By Blast In Big Water Conduit

DETROIT, Nov. 20 (AP)—An explosion in a giant water conduit 95 feet below the ground burned six persons tonight, one seriously.

Twelve others trapped in the tunnel spent a terrifying 15 minutes while rescue teams tried frantically to reach them. They were brought to the surface unharmed.

Marsh gas was believed responsible for the blast.

Bandit Loses Swag As Getaway Car's Door Swings Open

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20 (AP)—William A. McCoy was on his way to the bank today with a deposit from his store—$6,000, $3,600 of it in cash.

A little fellow drew a revolver and pressed it into McCoy's stomach. The money bag changed hands.

A car drew up to the curb. The bandit scurried into the car which lunged forward with a burst of speed as it rounded a corner.

A door swung open. The little bandit grabbed for his own safety. The money bag fell to the pavement.

Truman Favors Early Extension Of Rent Controls

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — President Truman was quoted today as wanting Congress to extend federal rent control for three months when the lawmakers return for the short "lame duck" session on Nov. 27.

Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the House Banking Committee said after a White House visit that Mr. Truman wants Congress to extend the controls until March 31, 1951, at the forthcoming session.

Spence told newsmen the President's idea is that a three-month extension now would give the new Congress a chance to explore "the whole question of rent controls in order to decide what is needed in the future."

Under present law, all federal rent controls expire Dec. 31, 1950, except in communities which voluntarily keep the curbs for six more months.

Spence said he will introduce a resolution in line with Mr. Truman's proposal when the "lame duck" session begins a weeks from today.

On the other side of Capitol Hill, Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), Bricker (R-Ohio) and Maybank (D-SC) were among those who generally threw cold water on any chance of the Senate going along.

U. S. Grand Jury Charges Dozen With Contempt

Refused To Answer Red Probe Queries

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Ten men and two women were indicted by a federal grand jury here today on contempt of Congress charges.

The accused included an atomic scientist, an heiress to a West Coast dried fruit fortune, and the general manager of the Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker.

All were accused on from one to 68 counts of refusing to answer questions put to them by the House Committee on Un-American Activities during an investigation of Communism.

Face Prison And Fine

If convicted, they face a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment and a $1,000 fine on each count. The citations were voted by the House of Representatives last August 11 and were turned over to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Seven of the defendants are officials and members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union (UE), which was expelled from the CIO last year during a process of dropping left-wing unions.

The indicted atomic scientist is Clarence Hiskey, a chemist who worked on the atomic bomb project at the University of Chicago.

The heiress, Mrs. Louise Berman, New York and California, has been described by members of the un-American Activities Committee as a financial "angel" for Communist causes.

Others Indicted

The indicted members of the electrical workers union were Julius Emspak and James J. Matles of New York, Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, Frank Panzino and Thomas Quinn of Pittsburgh, Esther Tice of Cincinnati and Talmadge Raley of Lockland, Ohio.

The others indicted were Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker, New York; Pasquale Leonard James Branca of Washington, a former teacher in the District of Columbia public schools, and Frank Hashmall, Cincinnati.

Grange Votes Today

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 20 (AP) — Delegates to the 84th convention of the National Grange were preparing today to name a new national master to succeed the late Albert S. Goss, who died in October.

American Unit Reaches Yalu Boundary Line

GIs Will Pull Back "And Wait And See"

SEOUL, Tuesday, Nov. 24 (AP)—U. S. Seventh Division infantrymen reached the Manchurian frontier today in Northeast Korea. There was no report of any opposition.

The 17th Regimental Combat Team, the first American outfit to complete the border advance, arrived at the Yalu river near the Korean border city of Hyesanjin. The troops were only two miles away this morning.

Tanks and artillery were brought up in support. The combat team's commander, Col. Herbert B. Powell, said his force would not fire across the Yalu into Chinese Communist Manchuria unless the Reds "fire at us first."

The Seventh Division commander said his men, who were slowed more by frigid winds and snow-banked mountain terrain than by Communists during recent days, would pull back into nearby hill positions—"and wait and see what happens."

Virtually Unopposed

The Seventh's commander, Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, had viewed the river boundary late yesterday from the top of a ridge. He postponed the final advance until morning because of the approaching darkness.

The honor of being the first Americans to reach the border went to a division which fought and won the rugged World War II Aleutians campaign in similar snow and ice conditions.

A special communique issued by Maj. Gen. E. M. Almond, 10th Corps commander, said the Americans reached the border at 9:45 a. m. (7:45 p. m. Monday EST).

AP Correspondent Stan Swinton reported that Communist opposition appeared to be disintegrating on all active fronts in Northeast Korea.

ROK Unit Gains 10 Miles

The South Korean Capital Division moving up the coastal road, advanced virtually unopposed for 10 miles Monday and captured a town within 25 air miles of the port city of Chongjin. That city is the last big objective between the South Koreans and the Soviet Siberian border, 60 miles beyond Chongjin.

Southwest of the point where the Seventh Division reached the border, U. S. Marines moved slowly along the east and west sides of the Changjin reservoir. Swinton reported, however, there were indications that the Chinese were building up strength to the southwest of the reservoir.

The critical Northeast Korean front was somewhat static from a positional standpoint. But First Corps headquarters said air observers had spotted "considerable" Communist vehicular traffic moving south from the Yalu river boundary.

Three Fall Into Path Of Subway Train, Live

LONDON, Nov. 20. (AP)—A mother and her two children fell into a path of a speeding subway train tonight—and lived.

Several cars passed over them before the train screeched to a halt at London's busy Charing Cross underground station. The electricity was quickly cut off from the live rail. Station guards crawled underneath the train and pulled the three to safety.

The mother, Mrs. Ivy Learwood, 38, suffered a fractured arm and head injuries. A daughter, Irene, 2, and a son, Clive, 8, suffered minor injuries and shock.

"Brassiere Brigade" Trio Given One Year In Prison

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP)—Three former Southern Bell Telephone Company girls convicted of helping to steal nearly $25,000 in quarters in their brassieres today were sentenced to a year in prison.

The trio—Marie Orr, 21; Mrs. Betty Corrigan, 23, and Mrs. Billie Ruth McNabb—was found guilty in just 24 minutes last week by a six-man jury. Judge Ben C. Willard pronounced sentence.

Miss Orr clasped her hands tightly together and bit her lip as the sentence was read. Mrs. Corrigan tugged at her handkerchief while Mrs. McNabb appeared calm with a half-smile on her lips.

Two of the girls—Marie and Betty—were convicted of grand larceny. Mrs. McNabb was found guilty of helping the girls smuggle stolen money out of the telephone company building.

Marie and Betty worked in the room where pay station coins were brought for counting. As they counted, they slipped rolls of quarters into their bras and took them to Mrs. McNabb. Waiting in the ladies' washroom, she transferred the rolls to her own brassiere and took them outside.

Eight others—relatives and sweethearts of the telephone girls—are charged with distributing the coins and cashing them for currency.

Cities Might Meet Parking Problem With Underground Garage-Shelters

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two major problems of the cities-parking space and the atom bomb threat—may be met with one device, businessmen were told today.

The recommended solution: Underground garage-shelters.

Fred W. Moe, president of Ramp Buildings, Inc., New York, suggested to a United States Chamber of Commerce conference on city problems that it would be "logical" for the federal government to help finance such subterranean projects in downtown areas. Moe urged support for a bill which would set up a $25,000,000 fund to help cities survey the need for garage-shelters. It would authorize up to $2,000,000,000 to help build the reinforced concrete structures in approved areas.

Two posible methods of federal aid were suggested, as follows:

Assuming that a given project might be 75 per cent self-supporting as parking garage, and used exclusively as such until warning of attack, the government might meet the remaining deficit or 25 per cent of the cost.

Or assuming a structure used partly for parking but with space set aside for emergency use and the storage of civil defense supplies, the government might pay a share corresponding to the area thus reserved.

Partial Mobilization Defended By Pace

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP) — Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr., said tonight that America's partial mobilization program may call for sacrifices that "affect our entire way of life."

It may require a lowering of the American standard of living, he added.

Consumer Spending Reaches Record Rate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — Consumer spending shot up by an unprecedented $13,200,000,000-a-year rate during the July-September period to reach a record annual volume of $198,400,000,000, the Commerce Department reported today.

Dean Indicates Time Near To Ease A-Bomb Secrecy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission said today the time is approaching to decide whether to ease the secrecy restrictions which now mask the size, weight and shape of the atomic bomb.

Its general characteristics already are known to "thousands upon thousands" of people, Dean said in an interview copyrighted by the magazine U. S. News and World Report. At the same time, he estimated that not more than 150 persons "know all about it."

If such information as size and shape were generally known, Dean said, it would eliminate a great many security precautions and the need to make time-consuming detailed checks on persons who have to have access to such data anyway.

Dean disclosed that the commission may recommend that the next session of Congress make some changes in the Atomic Energy Act, "with the objective of keeping secret those things which we should keep secret and at the same time getting on with the job."

The Lie program was elaborated by the Secretary-General last spring and presented by him to President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Stalin. Besides the periodic conferences, it calls for long range economic and financial policies to raise world living standards, and suggests intensified efforts to break the deadlock on atomic energy.

Just before the vote, Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik stepped up to the rostrum and repeated his delegation's charges that Lie's program was ghost-written by the U. S. State Department.

Lie angrily denied the charge.

Aired By Assistants

He said he wrote the program himself "with the help only of my own eight assistants."

Defeat of the Soviet demand for a Red Chinese seat does not mean that the Communist Chinese will not be given U. N. representation. This delicate question is still under consideration elsewhere in the Assembly. The vote today merely meant that the assembly refused to make such a specific issue as Chinese representation a condition for approval of the Lie program.

Earlier, British Delegate Kenneth Younger charged that the Russians were not really anxious to have the Chinese Communists in the United Nations anyway.

NAM Proposes "Defense Tax"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Organized business suggested today that a "defense tax" on top of corporate income levies be substituted for the administration's excess profits tax proposal.

The suggestion came from Charles R. Sligh, Jr., Holland, Michigan, representing the National Association of Manufacturers.

Despite a committee ban against discussion of anything except an excess profits tax, the NAM got its alternative proposal into the House Ways and Means Committee record.

What Sligh did was to advise the committee its records contained an inaccurate description of the NAM proposal. He then explained the inaccuracy and quoted the associations' tax program.

However, for the fourth time since the hearings started, the committee reiterated its intention to stick to the subject of excess profits. By a vote of 15 Democrats to 10 Republicans, it ruled that witnesses could not comment on a substitute plan proposed by Rep. Reed of New York, top Republican committee member.

The Reed plan would let corporations pay a maximum corporate income tax of 55 per cent or, if they elected to pay under an excess profits tax plan, they could pay a minimum of 50 per cent of their net income.

Symington Gives NPA Mild Go-Slow Warning

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—W. Stuart Symington today issued a mild go-slow warning to the National Production Authority, which is considering the possibility of imposing an all-industry materials control system next July 1.

The defense coordinator told a news conference that if the government uses "too heavy a hand" on controls before military production hits full stride it "might hurt the economy."

Infants Photographed

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 20 (AP) — Newport hospital announced today that it will photograph all newborn infants as an aid to identification.

Douglas Offers Labor Law Plan At CIO Meeting

Would Retain Some T-H Act Provisions

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP)—Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) proposed at the CIO convention today a new labor law considerably less favorable to labor than what the CIO has demanded.

The Democratic Senator is known as a "liberal" and also has been noted for his independent thinking on party policies.

At the same time Sen. Douglas commented that the Taft-Hartley Act, though "on the whole an iniquious law," has not had "as bad effect as expected."

He said any new labor law should have two requirements that the old Wagner Act, liked by labor, did not have.

One would require unions to bargain with employers. Douglas said there have been some instances when they have refused to do so.

The other would require unions which have union shop agreements with employers to keep initiation fees down.

Douglas also suggested that several provisions of the Taft-Hartley law should be retained. These require regular financial statements from unions and regular union elections, and prevent unions from expelling members for certain reasons if such expulsion would cause members to lose their jobs.

CIO President Philip Murray noted that Douglas' views differed in some respects from those of CIO leaders, but he suggested the 600 delegates give consideration to the Senator's "constructive and intelligent" suggestions.

Murray earlier asserted that the recent election campaign was fought strictly on confused international issues and not on pressing domestic problems.

Therefore, he said, he does not consider the election results a repudiation either of CIO principles or of President Truman's domestic policies.

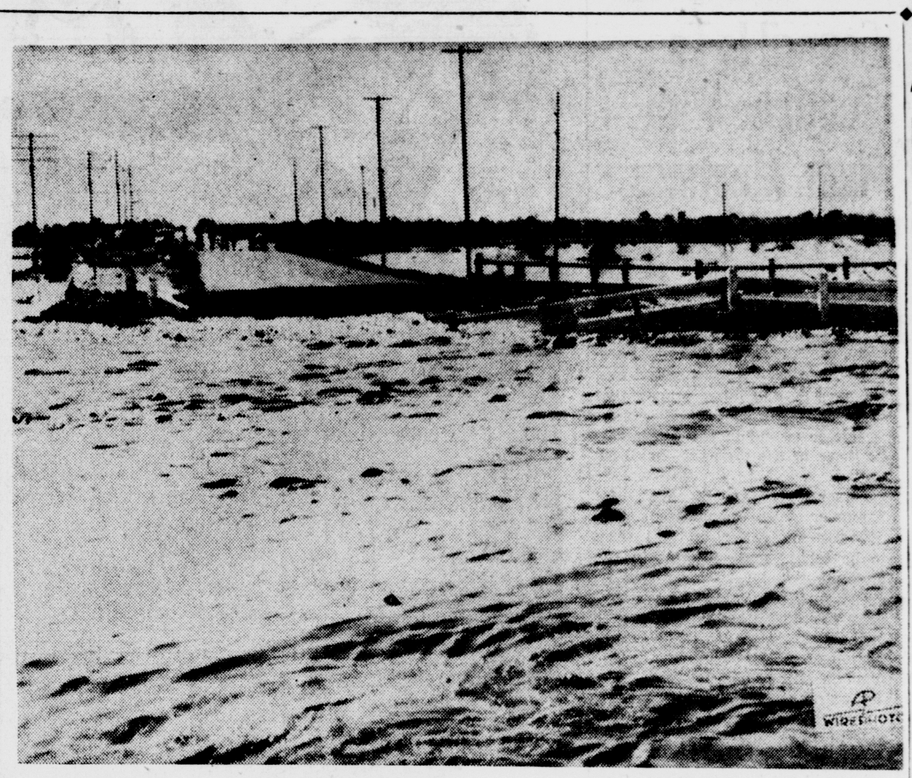
U. S. Tanks Make Perfect Score

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Army today claimed a perfect score for a U. S. Patton tank company in a battle against Russian made T-34 tanks in North Korea more than two weeks ago.

The Army said 16 Pattons knocked out 16 of the Red Tanks, with American losses confined to rapidly repaired exterior damage to four Pattons.

The action, belatedly reported today, took place at Choryongwan, about 25 miles southeast of the Manchurian border, between Oct. 30 and Nov. 4. The fight occurred before the 24th U. S. Division withdrew southward after Chinese Communist forces entered Korea in large numbers.

Described as "typical" achievements by the Pattons were the destruction of two Red tanks at 800 yards and another at 600 yards. The Pattons, a modernized version of the Gen. Pershing tank, mount 90-millimeter guns. Their Russian-built adversaries carried 85 mm. guns.



Bridge Washed Out By Flood Waters

Onrushing flood waters moved out a frame bridge crossing this stream near Bakersfield, Calif., yesterday as creeks and rivers of central California rioted under pressure of the past days' heavy rains. Thousands have been driven from their homes and damage is counted in the millions.

100 New Mexico Prison Inmates Stage Uprising

Tear Gas And Riot Guns Quell Outbreak

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 20 (AP)—About 100 convicts armed with crude weapons rioted for nearly an hour today behind turreted walls of the New Maxico state penitentiary.

The uprising was put down by prison guards and 24 state and city police armed with tear gas and riot guns.

The yelling, swearing prisoners wrecked two offices and the prison canteen before they submitted. None escaped.

Hold Yard For Hour

Six guards and the secretary of a Mexican consul—a prison visitor—were injured, none seriously.

Reasons for the outbreak were not clear. But Mexican Consul Bernardo Blanco, who was trapped in a guardhouse by the rioters, said:

"The men told me they 'had to do it' because of bad treatment."

Prison Warden Howell Gage said merely the riot had something to do with a "prisoner who was out of line." He did not amplify.

Armed With Knives, Pipe

Gage ordered all prisoners to the mess hall after the riot. Silence met his request: "If any one has anything to say right now, stand up."

Gage fixed the number of rioters at about half the 200 convicts in the exercise yard. A search after the riot disclosed a large number were armed with straight razors, knives, crude blackjacks, chains, pieces of pipe.

Six Burned By Blast In Big Water Conduit

DETROIT, Nov. 20 (AP)—An explosion in a giant water conduit 95 feet below the ground burned six persons tonight, one seriously.

Twelve others trapped in the tunnel spent a terrifying 15 minutes while rescue teams tried frantically to reach them. They were brought to the surface unharmed.

Marsh gas was believed responsible for the blast.

Bandit Loses Swag As Getaway Car's Door Swings Open

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20 (AP)—William A. McCoy was on his way to the bank today with a deposit from his store—$6,000, $3,600 of it in cash.

A car drew up to the curb. The bandit scurried into the car which lunged forward with a burst of speed as it rounded a corner.

A door swung open. The little bandit grabbed for his own safety. The money bag fell to the pavement.

Truman Favors Early Extension Of Rent Controls

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — President Truman was quoted today as wanting Congress to extend federal rent control for three months when the lawmakers return for the short "lame duck" session on Nov. 27.

Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the House Banking Committee said after a White House visit that Mr. Truman wants Congress to extend the controls until March 31, 1951, at the forthcoming session.

Spence told newsmen the President's idea is that a three-month extension now would give the new Congress a chance to explore "the whole question of rent controls in order to decide what is needed in the future."

Under present law, all federal rent controls expire Dec. 31, 1950, except in communities which voluntarily keep the curbs for six more months.

Spence said he will introduce a resolution in line with Mr. Truman's proposal when the "lame duck" session begins a weeks from today.

On the other side of Capitol Hill, Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), Bricker (R-Ohio) and Maybank (D-SC) were among those who generally threw cold water on any chance of the Senate going along.

Partial Mobilization Defended By Pace

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP) — Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr., said tonight that America's partial mobilization program may call for sacrifices that "affect our entire way of life."

It may require a lowering of the American standard of living, he added.

Consumer Spending Reaches Record Rate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — Consumer spending shot up by an unprecedented $13,200,000,000-a-year rate durfng the July-September period to reach a record annual volume of $198,400,000,000, the Commerce Department reported today.

Cities Might Meet Parking Problem With Underground Garage-Shelters

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two major problems of the cities-parking space and the atom bomb threat—may be met with one device, businessmen were told today.

The recommended solution: Underground garage-shelters.

Fred W. Moe, president of Ramp Buildings, Inc., New York, suggested to a United States Chamber of Commerce conference on city problems that it would be "logical" for the federal government to help finance such subterranean projects in downtown areas. Moe urged support for a bill which would set up a $25,000,000 fund to help cities survey the need for garage-shelters. It would authorize up to $2,000,000,000 to help build the reinforced concrete structures in approved areas.

Two posible methods of federal aid were suggested, as follows:

Assuming that a given project might be 75 per cent self-supporting as parking garage, and used exclusively as such until warning of attack, the government might meet the remaining deficit or 25 per cent of the cost.

Or assuming a structure used partly for parking but with space set aside for emergency use and the storage of civil defense supplies, the government might pay a share corresponding to the area thus reserved.

U. S. Grand Jury Charges Dozen With Contempt

Refused To Answer Red Probe Queries

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Ten men and two women were indicted by a federal grand jury here today on contempt of Congress charges.

The accused included an atomic scientist, an heiress to a West Coast dried fruit fortune, and the general manager of the Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker.

All were accused on from one to 68 counts of refusing to answer questions put to them by the House Committee on Un-American Activities during an investigation of Communism.

Face Prison And Fine

If convicted, they face a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment and a $1,000 fine on each count. The citations were voted by the House of Representatives last August 11 and were turned over to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Seven of the defendants are officials and members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union (UE), which was expelled from the CIO last year during a process of dropping left-wing unions.

The indicted atomic scientist is Clarence Hiskey, a chemist who worked on the atomic bomb project at the University of Chicago.

The heiress, Mrs. Louise Berman, New York and California, has been described by members of the un-American Activities Committee as a financial "angel" for Communist causes.

Others Indicted

The indicted members of the electrical workers union were Julius Emspak and James J. Matles of New York, Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, Frank Panzino and Thomas Quinn of Pittsburgh, Esther Tice of Cincinnati and Talmadge Raley of Lockland, Ohio.

The others indicted were Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker, New York; Pasquale Leonard James Branca of Washington, a former teacher in the District of Columbia public schools, and Frank Hashmall, Cincinnati.

Grange Votes Today

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 20 (AP) — Delegates to the 84th convention of the National Grange were preparing today to name a new national master to succeed the late Albert S. Goss, who died in October.

The election is scheduled to start at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday.

American Unit Reaches Yalu Boundary Line

GIs Will Pull Back "And Wait And See"

SEOUL, Tuesday, Nov. 24 (AP)—U. S. Seventh Division infantrymen reached the Manchurian frontier today in Northeast Korea. There was no report of any opposition.

The 17th Regimental Combat Team, the first American outfit to complete the border advance, arrived at the Yalu river near the Korean border city of Hyesanjin. The troops were only two miles away this morning.

Tanks and artillery were brought up in support. The combat team's commander, Col. Herbert B. Powell, said his force would not fire across the Yalu into Chinese Communist Manchuria unless the Reds "fire at us first."

The Seventh Division commander said his men, who were slowed more by frigid winds and snow-banked mountain terrain than by Communists during recent days, would pull back into nearby hill positions—"and wait and see what happens."

Virtually Unopposed

The Seventh's commander, Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, had viewed the river boundary late yesterday from the top of a ridge. He postponed the final advance until morning because of the approaching darkness.

The honor of being the first Americans to reach the border went to a division which fought and won the rugged World War II Aleutians campaign in similar snow and ice conditions.

A special communique issued by Maj. Gen. E. M. Almond, 10th Corps commander, said the Americans reached the border at 9:45 a. m. (7:45 p. m. Monday EST).

AP Correspondent Stan Swinton reported that Communist opposition appeared to be disintegrating on all active fronts in Northeast Korea.

ROK Unit Gains 10 Miles

The South Korean Capital Division moving up the coastal road, advanced virtually unopposed for 10 miles Monday and captured a town within 25 air miles of the port city of Chongjin. That city is the last big objective between the South Koreans and the Soviet Siberian border, 60 miles beyond Chongjin.

Southwest of the point where the Seventh Division reached the border, U. S. Marines moved slowly along the east and west sides of the Changjin reservoir. Swinton reported, however, there were indications that the Chinese were building up strength to the southwest of the reservoir.

The critical Northeast Korean front was somewhat static from a positional standpoint. But First Corps headquarters said air observers had spotted "considerable" Communist vehicular traffic moving south from the Yalu river boundary.

Three Fall Into Path Of Subway Train, Live

LONDON, Nov. 20. (AP)—A mother and her two children fell into a path of a speeding subway train tonight—and lived.

Several cars passed over them before the train screeched to a halt at London's busy Charing Cross underground station. The electricity was quickly cut off from the live rail. Station guards crawled underneath the train and pulled the three to safety.

The mother, Mrs. Ivy Learwood, 38, suffered a fractured arm and head injuries. A daughter, Irene, 2, and a son, Clive, 8, suffered minor injuries and shock.

Dean Indicates Time Near To Ease A-Bomb Secrecy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission said today the time is approaching to decide whether to ease the secrecy restrictions which now mask the size, weight and shape of the atomic bomb.

Its general characteristics already are known to "thousands upon thousands" of people, Dean said in an interview copyrighted by the magazine U. S. News and World Report. At the same time, he estimated that not more than 150 persons "know all about it."

If such information as size and shape were generally known, Dean said, it would eliminate a great many security precautions and the need to make time-consuming detailed checks on persons who have to have access to such data anyway.

Dean disclosed that the commission may recommend that the next session of Congress make some changes in the Atomic Energy Act, "with the objective of keeping secret those things which we should keep secret and at the same time getting on with the job."

Man Pays Fine And $25 Extra In Parking Case

Fined $43 for 41 unpaid parking tickets, Frank A. Bennett, affiliated with the Bennett Gas and Electric Company, 52 Bedford Street, astounded the Cumberland City Police Court by announcing that he was giving $25 extra to cover "any that the department has missed."

"I don't want to owe you fellows anything," he said.

However, Miss Jeannette Bonig, executive secretary of the Associated Charities, City Hall, received a suspended sentence for parking her car on a yellow line at the City Hall. She had been issued a warrant covering seven tickets.

Lt. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the Traffic Department which has spearheaded the meter and parking violation drive since the first of May, appeared to testify against Bennett and Miss Bonig.

Lt. Lilya stated that most of the 36 tickets covered by warrant summoning Bennett to court had been issued as a result of tags placed on a car parked in front of Bennett's place of business.

Pays $25 Extra

Bennett also accounted for five additional tags issued since November 1. The warrant accounted for tickets issued since November 1. The warrant accounted for tickets given Bennett from May to November.

Bennett stated that he parked his car in front of his store because of the number of emergency calls he receives in his gas and oil heating business.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew stated that Bennett had been in error for not appearing after each tag had been received as, under circumstances at the particular times, the charges might have been dismissed.

The hitch in the Traffic Bureau's setup on parking violation fines came as a result of Bennett's trial.

For 36 of his 41 tags he had posted $72 bond, $2 for each one. However, all 36 were covered by one warrant and Magistrate Perdew ruled that he only had to pay the regular cost of $1 for each tag, plus $1 for the warrant.

To collect the $72, Magistrate Perdew said, the Police Department would have had to obtain a warrant for each ticket.

Magistrate Perdew fined him a dollar each for the 41 tickets and $2 for the warrants.

Magistrate Suspends Fine

In her operation of a charitable organization, she pointed out that many times during the day she uses her personal car to carry food and clothing to the needy.

"I can't carry on my work if my car is parked two blocks away," she told Magistrate Perdew.

Miss Bonig's fine was suspended by the magistrate because of her charity work, but she will probably get more tickets as Magistrate Perdew pointed out the Police Department has not changed its policy of tagging cars at the City Hall.

Bertram Friedland, connected with the Cumberland Laundry Company, paid $9—one dollar for each of eight tickets and one dollar for the cost of the warrant.

He said the car had been parked on North Mechanic Street during the day in the line of company business.

Council Is To Continue With Night Meetings

The Mayor and Council will retain its Monday night meeting schedule despite speculation to the contrary, according to the latest report.

Consensus among the five members of the municipal governing body, reports say, is that night sessions have been a success and over the past five months proved that the original purpose—to allow those unable to attend in the daytime to be there in the evenings—has been served.

Mayor Thomas S. Post, for example, has commented that "Crowds are better and all seem to be taking more interest in the proceedings."

Officials point out that unlike days when morning meetings were held, there seems to be a cross-section of citizens attending. The regulars still attend but new faces are noted each Monday, they add.

Councilmen believe night sessions a boon to themselves as well. It means their private business enterprises will not have to suffer. This is important since city officials cannot live off the salary paid them and their daily work must not, of necessity, suffer because of their municipal duties.

TV Or Not TV

A staff writer for a New York City newspaper has smoked out what appears to be a low blow on the part of the manufacturers of television sets. This is the sponsorship by the manufacturers of a series of spot announcements using (of all things) the medium of radio to plug the sale of TV sets. Advertising of any sort is considered sound business practice, of course, but the writer has assembled some samples that do not reflect too well ethics commonly involved.

Basic criticism of these "spots" is that they play heavily on the fear inherent in 99 per cent of all parents that their children aren't getting what they should. In this case it is a television set.

One commercial cited by the newsman states baldly that "today's youngsters need television as much as they need sunshine!" In another a teen-ager mopes around because she "can't ask the gang in." Why? No television set.

These spot announcements are getting a heavy play over the ether in and around Gotham. But there have been no reports of anxious parents stampeding to TV retail outlets. It would not be a wild guess that this campaign will have diminishing returns.

Parents in areas where TV is available are well aware of the good and bad aspects of TV by now. Certainly there has been enough written about it. They are perfectly capable of making the decision of whether or not to have TV in the living room. If qualms remain, why not tell the kids the delay is caused by a desire to await color television. This is as legitimate a campaign on the parents' side as the TV people are making on the other.

At a contest in England a chap ate a 12-ounce onion in a little over two minutes. It probably took him two days to find his friends again.

Hoover Plan Progress

When the master plan for reorganization of the sprawling federal government was set in motion two years ago last summer, its principal backers were rather cynical about its success. The man who directed the reorganization planning and whose name is on the overhauling procedure—former President Herbert Hoover—gave it a 50-50 chance.

Mr. Hoover knew how popular any move to streamline the government in the physical and economic sense could be. He also knew, all too well, how great and firmly entrenched would be resistance against it.

On the eve of the "lame duck" session of the 81st Congress it can be noted that nearly half of the reorganization recommendations have been put into effect. In the eyes of Dr. L. L. McCormick, who is director of research for the citizens group which has been plumping for the plan, the success of the whole venture is hanging in the balance.

The 82nd Congress, when it convenes early next year, may be sympathetic to the balance of the proposals. Then again it may not. Junking the remainder of the plan for the sake of expediency in pushing through other legislation, or for any reason, would be an act of sabotage. There is no better term for it.

If there was ever a time to halt the trend toward expanding federal services, and cut out wasteful practices, the time is now. As armament costs soar to $30,000,000,000 or $40,000,000,000 a year—or higher—nondefense spending must be cut sharply where possible. The Hoover Commission's intricate study of what is wrong with the federal government is a ready-made blueprint for such action. If the legislative spirit is willing, the way is open.

Germany, Italy and Japan posed as have-not countries when they started their wars. But Russia hasn't even that excuse.

Supply And Demand

It seems a little incongrous to be talking about a major change in Army uniform—the Pentagon is reported to be considering switching to gray—while front line troops in Korea are ill clad for the weather they are meeting. Are shivering platoons of cotton-clad GIs part of the army which has been described as the best equipped in the world?

In fairness to the army logistical staffs in the states it should be pointed out that the sub-arctic weather along the Yalu river frontier had been anticipated and provision made for it. As early as July proper cold weather equipment had been ordered and in September the first shipments were placed ashore in Korea. What happened between then and now cannot be answered to anyone's satisfaction. It requires little imagination to conjure up the pithy comment the foxhole dwelling GI or Marine is making at this point.

Part of the lag in supply perhaps can be blamed on the overconfident attitude with which UN troops rolled unopposed toward the Manchurian border prior to Red Chinese intervention. It looked at the time as though U. S. troops might actually be out of the foxholes, and, if not back home in the states, would be comfortably quartered in Japan by Christmas.

What is being presented here is one of those unexplainable breakdowns in the formidably staffed and financed machinery of supply. No doubt plenty of explanations will be forthcoming from the supply echelons in the field. There always are. This batch had better be good.

A talent for getting out of tight spots is handy. Still better is a talent for not getting into them.

A Few Years Too Soon

As Dr. Alex Green, a college physicist, tells it, an "automatic" ban on nuclear weapons—or peacetime uses of atomic fission, for that matter—will only be a matter of time, anyhow.

According to Dr. Green the earth was "red hot," in a radioactive sense, when it was young. Now that it has reached middle age part of the potency of uranium, for example, has been dissipated. Evidently the stuff ages and loses its wallop much like a storage battery.

That is, another 3,000,000,000 years and there won't be any atomic bomb or any hydrogen bomb to cloud the horizon.

The immediate reaction is to fall back on that old complaint: We were born too soon. But, knowing the capacity of human beings for scrounging around and finding new ways of lambasting uncooperative neighbors, we don't feel this is valid. Our reaction, at any rate, will be to toss Dr. Green's rather startling news into a file marked "Incidental Intelligence."

Never can tell when a radio quizmaster will be calling us up.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Overdosage Of The Barbiturates

IN MOST communities, sleeping pills are dispensed only by prescription. They must be labeled "habit forming" by law but the real reason is that they frequently are used to commit suicide. Statistics show that the barbiturates are second only to carbon monoxide as a cause of poisoning. But these products are not habit forming in the same sense as morphine, codeine, and other narcotics.

Sleeping pills are of inestimable benefit to those who are ill or suffering from temporary insomnia as a result of unavoidable mental turmoil. They also help to relax individuals with high blood pressure, stomach distress, or other ailments that are aggravated by an overactive nervous system. Only small doses are needed for this purpose because all that the physician hopes to do is to take the edge off anxiety.

When used in this way the habit factor rarely enters the picture. Addiction is more likely to occur in those who "just can't sleep without them." The majority of these persons never have tried to adjust their affairs so that they won't go to bed with their troubles. Others have responsibilities so great that sleep is impossible without help along this line. But if sedatives are withdrawn the users do not become ill or go on the warpath like the opium or marihuana addicts. This is what is meant by saying that the barbituric preparations are not habit forming in the sense that narcotics are.

Many individuals show no ill effects from the prolonged use of the barbiturates. No harm is done unless a tolerance develops to the drugs and the dosage must be increased to obtain the desired effect. This is undesirable because overdosage may lead to poisoning or death. Others show signs of chronic poisoning: they are drowsy most of the day and have difficulty concentrating and remembeing their actions. There is general loss of ambition along with depression, confusion, and disorientation and the majority are not responsible for what they are doing. Continued usage also may produce skin rash altho, if sensitivity to the chemical exists, blemishes may appear after a single does.

Those who take the drug for suicidal purposes usually swallow a large quantity. There is no set fatal dosage because the effect varies with the individual. Some have been known to succumb to a few capsules whereas others have taken up to five times the lethal dose and survived.

The treatment of barbituric acid poisoning depends upon how deeply the victim is narcotized. Mild cases are permitted to sleep it off: others must be stimulated with powerful drugs to keep the system going until the influence of the poison wears off. Oxygen is administered for depression of the breathing apparatus and, to overcome dehydration, huge quantities of fluids may be administered into a vein. For quicker relief, sodium succinate and electrostimulation have been suggested but these new plans have not yet been evaluated properly.

When the potential suicide is snatched from the jaws of death and finally comes to, psychiatric care often is needed. After all, these unfortunates were depressed before they attempt to end it all and unless the cause of the mental disturbance is removed they are likely to try again. "Doctor, please let me die for my own good. Please! I'm in such misery," is a common plea on regaining consciousness. This frame of mind must be changed before it is safe to permit the sufferer to go on his way.

TOMORROW: High blood pressure may not be high at all.

BLOOD WILL TELL

R. A. writes: A friend tells me that a child inherits the father's blood only—not the mother's. Is this true?

REPLY

No; we inherit from both parents, as well as from previous generations. If the blood type is O in both parents, for example, the offspring will be type O. If one is O and the other A or B, the children will be O, A, or B, and so on down the line. Actually, the blood itself is not inherited because the child has his own blood forming organs that are busy manufacturing blood cells day and night.

BLOOD ELEMENT

N. R. writes: I have been told that I have eosinophils in my blood. Can they be eliminated?

REPLY

Eosinophils are white cells containing red granules and are normal constituents of the blood. An excessive number appears in various skin infections and allergies as well as in those who harbor intestinal parasites. A rise also is noted in the course of an infectious disease as well as in blood diseases such as leukemia.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Should Ask GOP Help In Charting Foreign Policy; Government Propaganda Office Needed; "League For Democratic Russia" Should Be Created

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Last week tolerant editors permitted me to expound on certain facts pertaining to Russia—that Russia has never been defeated in a major war except through internal revolt; that our huge armament burden and the Soviet strategy of wars of attrition may wear us down while Moscow gets ready for all-out war; and that our best defense is to take the offensive, penetrate the iron curtain and get to the Russian people—some of them already chafing at the bit against the Kremlin.

War documents seized after V-E Day have shown conclusively that about three million Russians surrendered to the German army in 1941 because of the revolt against Moscow. There is also conclusive evidence that millions of Russians were friendly toward the United States at the time of V-E Day; and that the chief reason for the iron curtin was to keep them from knowing the benefits of peace and friendship.

Cracking the iron curtain, it should be noted, is not easy. But neither is war easy. And as a step toward cracking it, I would like to propose four rather elementary moves which could be made in Washington.

MOVE NO. 1—President Truman should call in the most powerful leaders of the Republican party—Governor Dewey, Senator Taft, Gov. Warren of California and Senator-Elect Duff of Pennsylvania—in an effort to chart a straightforward foreign policy for the nation. We have suffered too much from having foreign policy statements shooting off in different directions. We don't realize that when foreign governments hear the White House say one thing and a group of senators who have been visiting General MacArthur say another, they don't know which side to believe.

Furthermore, to launch a consistent, constructive propaganda campaign behind the iron curtain—or even on this side of the curtain—you must have the support of both political parties and sufficient appropriations from Congress. In the past, such penny pinchers as GOP Congressmen Taber of New York and Clevenger of Ohio with Senator Byrd of Virginia have slashed propaganda appropriations to ribbons.

A White House conference between the President and top GOP leaders could put the interests of the nation first and help to avoid them in the future.

MOVE NO. 2—Create a government propaganda office entirely separate from the State department.

Actually, the State department is doing a far better propaganda job than its congressional critics realize. History will also show that the State department today, despite the attacks, is functioning more efficiently than ever. However, the smearing of the McCarthy brush has placed the Voice of America with two strikes against it every time it comes before Congress for appropriations.

Furthermore, the State department never wanted to take over the job of propaganda. It was willed on Secretary of State Jimmie Burnes when the old Office of War Information was being reorganized, at which time nobody knew exactly what to do with it.

Creation of a separate propaganda office, therefore, cooperating with the State department, plus the Army, Navy and Air Force, would help reestablish congressional confidence, also a certain amount of freedom.

MOVE NO. 3 — Bring more top newsmen and public relations experts into the new, reorganized propaganda bureau.

When George Washington appointed a propaganda bureau in the Revolutionary war, he picked the top men of the new nation—Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and Benjamin Franklin. These three served on a committee which smuggled propaganda leaflets behind the British lines and succeeded, among other things, in getting 6,000 out of 30,000 Hession troops to desert.

During the last war, some of the top newsmen of the nation helped operate the Office of War Information—Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Denver Post; Mike Cowles, publisher of Look, Quick and the Des Moines Register; Robert Sherwood, the playwright; and Milton Eisenhower, now president of Penn State.

Today, Ed Barrett, former editor of newsweek and an A-1 man, is patriotically handling propaganda for the State department, but is handicapped by lack of money and personnel. If his organization were independent, he could get not only more money but top men.

MOVE NO. 4 — Create in the United States a "League for a Democratic Russia." Made up of Russian exiles, this committee could function as did the Czechoslovakia committee in Pittsburgh in 1918 which led to the disruption of the Austro-Hungarian empire and the founding of the Czechoslovak republic.

Once established in the United States, a "League for a Democratic Russia" could fan out to embrace Russian exiles in England, France, Italy, Yugoslavia, China and the rest of the world. It would be a powerful nucleus through which the Russian people outside the Soviet could speak to the Russian people behind the iron curtain.

Along with such a League for a Democratic Russia, there should be formed in this country an "American Committee for Democracy in Russia" consisting of Americans whose names carry weight behind the iron curtain. This committee should include the leaders of the big American farm organizations, such as the American Farm Bureau, the Grange and the Farmers Union. For Russia is chiefly a nation of peasants with whom the farm leaders of the U.S.A. carry more influence than generals.

On that committee also should be William Green of the AFL, Phil Murray of the CIO, David Dubinsky of the Ladies Garment Workers, heads of the Railroad Brotherhoods and so on. These anti-Communist American labor leaders constitute one of the nation's best assets in the battle against communism.

These are just a few of the steps which can be taken in the long, drawn-out battle to crack the iron curtain. A lot of other moves should be made, many of a secret nature and not for publication. While we cannot neglect armament and preparedness, a campaign to penetrate the iron curtain may in the end bring us greater, quicker and less bloody dividends.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Spy Trial

THUS FAR, the spy trial, which is being held in New York before Judge Irving R. Kaufman, has established that Soviet Russia, our ally in World War II, sent agents into the United States to steal our data on production of chemicals, electronics, war materials and the atom bomb. Such conduct is expected of an enemy, not of an ally. During the period of spying, the United States was provisioning Soviet Russia to the tune of $11,000,000,000.

But this point is being missed: The data now available was already in the hands of the FBI in 1947. Elizabeth Bentley's testimony on that subject is altogether clear. Also Harry Gold and Abraham Brothman, established the date.

On May 29, 1947, two FBI agents interrogated Brothman concerning his dealings with Jacob Golos, a Soviet spy, and with Elizabeth Bentley, then a Soviet courier and closely associated with Golos, and with Harry Gold. Brothman told Gold, so the latter testifies, that the FBI knew everything.

Among the facts that the FBI knew was that the Amtorg trading company was the center of spy activity and the cover-up for spies, couriers, photostating and similar activities. Yet, Amtorg was permitted to exist in this country as a trading business with which American businessmen and government officials consorted. Like "Amerasia," it was a protected organization. Who protected it?

The question must be asked why these men were not indicted; why nothing was done about them until after the British arrested Dr. Klaus Fuchs and the world knew that our atom bomb secrets had been stolen. Fuchs was arrested on February 3, 1950, but the testimony in this trial shows that on May 29, 1947, the FBI had the data. Most of us assumed when Gold, Brothman, Greenglass, and Miss Moskowitz were arrested that the information came from Fuchs, but at the trial, the evidence shows that it came from the FBI, which had it in 1947.

Brothman and Gold and whoever else is involved in this miserable business have been free to damage the United States for this prolonged period. It has further been brought out in this trial that the espionage goes back to 1941. Actually, it goes back further than that. It probably goes back as far as the Nye committee of the Senate (1934), which contained among its employes the first important espionage cell in the official life of this country.

This espionage trial, now taking place in New York, is tremendously important and is being inadequately reported. The Hiss trial was perhaps more glamorous, but not more significant. It attracted more attention because there was so strong an effort to cover up for Hiss and to defend him. Even now, some Park Avenue liberals believe that three juries were wrong and that Hiss cannot be guilty of the crimes brought out at his trials.

There is no glamour in this present trial. It is just plain dirt. Americans, employed by Soviet Russia, gave to Russia whatever they could lay their hands on. They stole the formulae for buna-s. They stole the atom bomb. They stole our inventions and will use them to kill our sons and in time to destroy our cities.

When this trial is over, the American people need to know who was responsible for making all this possible. It will not be enough to send a couple of punks to prison or even to hang them. We need to know how it was possible for them to do all this stealing. Who let them steal?

Brothman gave Bentley and Gold huge quantities of material, including plans, models and blueprints, large in bulk. Elizabeth Bentley transferred these to Golos, who died in 1943. Gold also transferred some to Semenov, who operated through Amtorg.

These transfers in bulk had to originate where they should have been missed; where they should have been seen. Where were the security officers we hear so much about? What is meant by security in view of this testimony, which is being reported so inadequately? Why is it being reported so inadequately?

In a word, when this trial is over, why will not some congressional committee go into this more fully to discover the big shots?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — Confession is good for the souls of men —including public officials — and that's why the amazing statement just made by Gen. Omar Bradley, now chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, is about the most important revelation that has come officially since 1945 about our military policy.

The exact words of the General in a public speech were these:

"It is a bruising and chocking "It is a bruising and shocking committed in Korea, we were left without an adequate margin of military strength with which to face an enemy at any other specific point. Certainly we were left without the strength to meet a general attack. In the military sense, the free world was left without adequate reserves except for the atomic bomb."

There's the "bruising and shocking" story which raises the question of what happened to $50,000,000,000 for defense in five years.

It is not sufficient to say Louis Johnson, ousted as secretary of defense, was to blame. Who made the military program and who failed to tell the country if need be, that America and the free world were virtually defenseless?

Responsibility of Joint Chiefs

Under the law this was the responsibility of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff consisting for most of the time in the last five years of General Bradley as chief of staff of the Army, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg as chief of staff of the Air Force and Adm Louis Denfeld as chief of Naval Operations.

These three men had the task of planning military strategy and of rendering military advice to the President and the Secretary of Defense.

Time after time in the privacy of Joint Chief of Staff meetings, Admiral Denfeld protected against the concept that a few Air Force groups and the atom bomb could do the job of protecting our interests across the globe. He pleaded that the Navy with its powerful aircraft carriers should not be put in mothballs but posed at strategic locations overseas. The Marine Corps commandant begged that the Marine Corps—our amphibious force with special skills on the ground and in the air—should not be curtailed. But to no avail. The navy and Marine Corps were voted down repeatedly by Generals Bradley and Vandenberg. The budget was cut by a committee in the Defense department headed by General McNarney of the Air Force.

This correspondent first called attention to these serious cuts in the summer of 1949—a year before the Korean outbreak.

Then came the famous House investigation in October 1949. General Bradley ridiculed the case of the marines, predicting that there wouldn't be another amphibious landing. The admirals were accused of being "fancy Dans," and the argument about the weakness in our main strategic concept was lost in a mixture of denunciations and epithets all of which resulted in the peremptory removal of Admiral Denfeld by Secretary of the Navy Matthews.

The chief of naval operations, who came in seven months before Korea —Admiral Sherman—is a far better leader in many respects than his predecessor and perhaps the most experienced all-around man the Joint Chiefs could have acquired. But his vote was not enough. The basic strategy wasn't changed by the Joint Chiefs until Korea demonstrated what the blunders in planning really were.

Why Was It Necessary

Now, as a belated confession, too, General Vandenberg has ordered that a separate tactical air command be set up. This is exactly what the famous B-29 controversy revealed, namely that the Air Force was too preoccupied with strategic bombing to provide airmen properly trained and with the right planes to give close support to ground troops, as the marines had always done.

Why was the Korean demonstration of our weakness needed? Why were men who spent their lives studying strategy, maps and war experience so blind that it took a Korean war with nearly 28,000 casualties to make them see the truth they should have learned in the class rooms of their war colleges or in Joint Staff conferences? About 4,500 Americans were killed in action and about 4,500 reported missing in Korea and it seems certain that with the massacres of prisoners many of the missing will never be found.

What a tragic climax the Bradley speech is to a debate that never should have been necessary! President Truman still retains in office the men who helped to keep the U. S. from being adequately prepared. The excuse that there wasn't money enough to have a different over-all strategic plan isn't convincing. The expenditure of $50,000,000,000 in five years calls for further investigation by Congress. The House committee did a splendid job, but Senator Tydings who dominated the Senate Armed Services committee did a whitewash. Will politics be laid aside now to ascertain how the colossal blunder in our strategy was made? The next of kin of the nearly 9,000 who are gone would probably like to know what Congress and the President will do about the leaders whose military judgment has been tried and found wanting.

MATTER OF FACT

The Case Of The Frustrated Contributors

WASHINGTON

HELL hath no fury like a contributor scorned, as the harassed President Truman is now learning. Two of the most important contributors to his 1948 campaign are furiously battering on Administration doors, demanding their rights. The story of these frustrated contributors is worth telling, since it also tells a good deal about the Truman administration.

One of the angry contributors is James Bruce, a New York business man and a shrewd promoter. Bruce bet on Harry Truman when Truman was a very long shot indeed, by collecting a good deal of money for the Truman campaign in the summer of 1948. Ever since, he has been waiting impatiently to collect on the bet, by becoming American Ambassador in London. The second is Stanton Griffis, now Ambassador to Argentina, who was also generous in 1948, and who therefore considers that he has a lein on the Paris embassy.

According to the strategy of Bruce and Griffis, the recent election has presented a golden opportunity for the realization of expectations so long frustrated. For the fact is that Bruce and Griffis have thus far been blocked, not by President Truman, but by Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Under Secretary James Webb.

Insufficient Qualifications Charged

The most conspicuous diplomatic achievement of both Griffis and Bruce, who preceded Griffis as Ambassador to Argentina, has been the establishment of warm relations with Juan Peron, the Argentine dictator, and his rather uncharming wife Evita. Acheson and Webb have opposed the appointments of Bruce and Griffis to the London and Paris posts on simple grounds. These grounds are that chumminess with a South American dictator, plus large campaign contributions, does not constitute sufficient qualifications for the two most important diplomatic posts in the gift of the American government.

The opposition of Acheson and Webb is the key to the anecdote, widely repeated in Washington, about Bruce's interview with President Truman (at which, significantly, no third person was present). The interview took place when Lewis Douglas, former Ambassador to England, resigned. According to this tale, Truman rather mournfully informed Bruce that he had wanted to send him to London, but that "they" had insisted that he send instead "that telephone fellow"—the President could not remember his name. The "telephone fellow" was of corse Walter S. Gifford, now Ambassador in London, and "they" were chiefly Acheson and Webb.

Aside from "they," another obstackle has stood in the way of the triumph of Bruce and Griffis. This has been the fact that the Paris embassy is now occupied by Bruce's very able brother, David Bruce. David Bruce's competence is so universally recognized that Griffis' chances have been hurt. And James Bruce's chances for the London post have also been hurt, since it would be odd, to say the least, to have two brothers serving at the same time in the two most important American diplomatic posts.

"Neat" Solution Proposed

Yet adherents of Bruce and Griffis (said to include such powerful Democratic figures as the President's oilman friend, Ed Pauley) now believe that both these obstacles can be eliminated at one stroke. In the first place, it is argued, whatever Persident Truman may say, the elections make the departure of Acheson sooner or later inevitable, and Webb will depart with him. "They" thus will be out of the way. And if David Bruce is appointed Under Secretary—a post for which he is, in fact, well qualified—he will be out of the way too.

Griffis can then replace David Bruce in Paris, and after a respectable interval of four or five months, James Bruce can at last collect on his long shot by taking over from the "telephone fellow" (who is a Republican anyway) in London. Such is the neat solution now being bruited about, for the problems of Bruce and Griffis.

Whether the solution will work out as neatly as all that depends, of course, on President Truman. And it is this which makes it worth recounting the case of the frustrated contributors. For a great deal will depend on whether Truman accepts the Bruce-Griffis solution. After his surprise triumph in 1948, President Truman discarded the bipartisan

A staff writer for a New York City newspaper has smoked out what appears to be a low blow on the part of the manufacturers of television sets. This is the sponsorship by the manufacturers of a series of spot announcements using (of all things) the medium of radio to plug the sale of TV sets. Advertising of any sort is considered sound business practice, of course, but the writer has assembled some samples that do not reflect too well ethics commonly involved.

Basic criticism of these "spots" is that they play heavily on the fear inherent in 99 per cent of all parents that their children aren't getting what they should. In this case it is a television set.

One commercial cited by the newsman states baldly that "today's youngsters need television as much as they need sunshine!" In another a teen-ager mopes around because she "can't ask the gang in." Why? No television set.

These spot announcements are getting a heavy play over the ether in and around Gotham. But there have been no reports of anxious parents stampeding to TV retail outlets. It would not be a wild guess that this campaign will have diminishing returns.

Parents in areas where TV is available are well aware of the good and bad aspects of TV by now. Certainly there has been enough written about it. They are perfectly capable of making the decision of whether or not to have TV in the living room. If qualms remain, why not tell the kids the delay is caused by a desire to await color television. This is as legitimate a campaign on the parents' side as the TV people are making on the other.

At a contest in England a chap ate a 12-ounce onion in a little over two minutes. It probably took him two days to find his friends again.

Hoover Plan Progress

When the master plan for reorganization of the sprawling federal government was set in motion two years ago last summer, its principal backers were rather cynical about its success. The man who directed the reorganization planning and whose name is on the overhauling procedure—former President Herbert Hoover—gave it a 50-50 chance.

Mr. Hoover knew how popular any move to streamline the government in the physical and economic sense could be. He also knew, all too well, how great and firmly entrenched would be resistance against it.

On the eve of the "lame duck" session of the 81st Congress it can be noted that nearly half of the reorganization recommendations have been put into effect. In the eyes of Dr. L. L. McCormick, who is director of research for the citizens group which has been plumping for the plan, the success of the whole venture is hanging in the balance.

The 82nd Congress, when it convenes early next year, may be sympathetic to the balance of the proposals. Then again it may not. Junking the remainder of the plan for the sake of expediency in pushing through other legislation, or for any reason, would be an act of sabotage. There is no better term for it.

If there was ever a time to halt the trend toward expanding federal services, and cut out wasteful practices, the time is now. As armament costs soar to $30,000,000,000 or $40,000,000,000 a year—or higher—nondefense spending must be cut sharply where possible. The Hoover Commission's intricate study of what is wrong with the federal government is a ready-made blueprint for such action. If the legislative spirit is willing, the way is open.

Germany, Italy and Japan posed as have-not countries when they started their wars. But Russia hasn't even that excuse.

Supply And Demand

It seems a little incongrous to be talking about a major change in Army uniform—the Pentagon is reported to be considering switching to gray—while front line troops in Korea are ill clad for the weather they are meeting. Are shivering platoons of cotton-clad GIs part of the army which has been described as the best equipped in the world?

In fairness to the army logistical staffs in the states it should be pointed out that the sub-arctic weather along the Yalu river frontier had been anticipated and provision made for it. As early as July proper cold weather equipment had been ordered and in September the first shipments were placed ashore in Korea. What happened between then and now cannot be answered to anyone's satisfaction. It requires little imagination to conjure up the pithy comment the foxhole dwelling GI or Marine is making at this point.

Part of the lag in supply perhaps can be blamed on the overconfident attitude with which UN troops rolled unopposed toward the Manchurian border prior to Red Chinese intervention. It looked at the time as though U. S. troops might actually be out of the foxholes, and, if not back home in the states, would be comfortably quartered in Japan by Christmas.

What is being presented here is one of those unexplainable breakdowns in the formidably staffed and financed machinery of supply. No doubt plenty of explanations will be forthcoming from the supply echelons in the field. There always are. This batch had better be good.

A talent for getting out of tight spots is handy. Still better is a talent for not getting into them.

A Few Years Too Soon

As Dr. Alex Green, a college physicist, tells it, an "automatic" ban on nuclear weapons—or peacetime uses of atomic fission, for that matter—will only be a matter of time, anyhow.

According to Dr. Green the earth was "red hot," in a radioactive sense, when it was young. Now that it has reached middle age part of the potency of uranium, for example, has been dissipated. Evidently the stuff ages and loses its wallop much like a storage battery.

That is, another 3,000,000,000 years and there won't be any atomic bomb or any hydrogen bomb to cloud the horizon.

The immediate reaction is to fall back on that old complaint: We were born too soon. But, knowing the capacity of human beings for scrounging around and finding new ways of lambasting uncooperative neighbors, we don't feel this is valid. Our reaction, at any rate, will be to toss Dr. Green's rather startling news into a file marked "Incidental Intelligence."

Never can tell when a radio quizmaster will be calling us up.

HOW TO KEEP WELL

Overdosage Of The Barbiturates

IN MOST communities, sleeping pills are dispensed only by prescription. They must be labeled "habit forming" by law but the real reason is that they frequently are used to commit suicide. Statistics show that the barbiturates are second only to carbon monoxide as a cause of poisoning. But these products are not habit forming in the same sense as morphine, codeine, and other narcotics.

Sleeping pills are of inestimable benefit to those who are ill or suffering from temporary insomnia as a result of unavoidable mental turmoil. They also help to relax individuals with high blood pressure, stomach distress, or other ailments that are aggravated by an overactive nervous system. Only small doses are needed for this purpose because all that the physician hopes to do is to take the edge off anxiety.

When used in this way the habit factor rarely enters the picture. Addiction is more likely to occur in those who "just can't sleep without them." The majority of these persons never have tried to adjust their affairs so that they won't go to bed with their troubles. Others have responsibilities so great that sleep is impossible without help along this line. But if sedatives are withdrawn the users do not become ill or go on the warpath like the opium or marihuana addicts. This is what is meant by saying that the barbituric preparations are not habit forming in the sense that narcotics are.

Many individuals show no ill effects from the prolonged use of the barbiturates. No harm is done unless a tolerance develops to the drugs and the dosage must be increased to obtain the desired effect. This is undesirable because overdosage may lead to poisoning or death. Others show signs of chronic poisoning: they are drowsy most of the day and have difficulty concentrating and remembeing their actions. There is general loss of ambition along with depression, confusion, and disorientation and the majority are not responsible for what they are doing. Continued usage also may produce skin rash altho, if sensitivity to the chemical exists, blemishes may appear after a single does.

Those who take the drug for suicidal purposes usually swallow a large quantity. There is no set fatal dosage because the effect varies with the individual. Some have been known to succumb to a few capsules whereas others have taken up to five times the lethal dose and survived.

The treatment of barbituric acid poisoning depends upon how deeply the victim is narcotized. Mild cases are permitted to sleep it off: others must be stimulated with powerful drugs to keep the system going until the influence of the poison wears off. Oxygen is administered for depression of the breathing apparatus and, to overcome dehydration, huge quantities of fluids may be administered into a vein. For quicker relief, sodium succinate and electrostimulation have been suggested but these new plans have not yet been evaluated properly.

When the potential suicide is snatched from the jaws of death and finally comes to, psychiatric care often is needed. After all, these unfortunates were depressed before they attempt to end it all and unless the cause of the mental disturbance is removed they are likely to try again. "Doctor, please let me die for my own good. Please! I'm in such misery," is a common plea on regaining consciousness. This frame of mind must be changed before it is safe to permit the sufferer to go on his way.

TOMORROW: High blood pressure may not be high at all.

Truman Should Ask GOP Help In Charting Foreign Policy; Government Propaganda Office Needed; "League For Democratic Russia" Should Be Created

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Last week tolerant editors permitted me to expound on certain facts pertaining to Russia—that Russia has never been defeated in a major war except through internal revolt; that our huge armament burden and the Soviet strategy of wars of attrition may wear us down while Moscow gets ready for all-out war; and that our best defense is to take the offensive, penetrate the iron curtain and get to the Russian people—some of them already chafing at the bit against the Kremlin.

War documents seized after V-E Day have shown conclusively that about three million Russians surrendered to the German army in 1941 because of the revolt against Moscow. There is also conclusive evidence that millions of Russians were friendly toward the United States at the time of V-E Day; and that the chief reason for the iron curtin was to keep them from knowing the benefits of peace and friendship.

Cracking the iron curtain, it should be noted, is not easy. But neither is war easy. And as a step toward cracking it, I would like to propose four rather elementary moves which could be made in Washington.

MOVE NO. 1—President Truman should call in the most powerful leaders of the Republican party—Governor Dewey, Senator Taft, Gov. Warren of California and Senator-Elect Duff of Pennsylvania—in an effort to chart a straightforward foreign policy for the nation. We have suffered too much from having foreign policy statements shooting off in different directions. We don't realize that when foreign governments hear the White House say one thing and a group of senators who have been visiting General MacArthur say another, they don't know which side to believe.

Furthermore, to launch a consistent, constructive propaganda campaign behind the iron curtain—or even on this side of the curtain—you must have the support of both political parties and sufficient appropriations from Congress. In the past, such penny pinchers as GOP Congressmen Taber of New York and Clevenger of Ohio with Senator Byrd of Virginia have slashed propaganda appropriations to ribbons.

A White House conference between the President and top GOP leaders could put the interests of the nation first and help to avoid them in the future.

MOVE NO. 2—Create a government propaganda office entirely separate from the State department.

Actually, the State department is doing a far better propaganda job than its congressional critics realize. History will also show that the State department today, despite the attacks, is functioning more efficiently than ever. However, the smearing of the McCarthy brush has placed the Voice of America with two strikes against it every time it comes before Congress for appropriations.

Furthermore, the State department never wanted to take over the job of propaganda. It was willed on Secretary of State Jimmie Burnes when the old Office of War Information was being reorganized, at which time nobody knew exactly what to do with it.

Creation of a separate propaganda office, therefore, cooperating with the State department, plus the Army, Navy and Air Force, would help reestablish congressional confidence, also a certain amount of freedom.

MOVE NO. 3 — Bring more top newsmen and public relations experts into the new, reorganized propaganda bureau.

When George Washington appointed a propaganda bureau in the Revolutionary war, he picked the top men of the new nation—Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and Benjamin Franklin. These three served on a committee which smuggled propaganda leaflets behind the British lines and succeeded, among other things, in getting 6,000 out of 30,000 Hession troops to desert.

During the last war, some of the top newsmen of the nation helped operate the Office of War Information—Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Denver Post; Mike Cowles, publisher of Look, Quick and the Des Moines Register; Robert Sherwood, the playwright; and Milton Eisenhower, now president of Penn State.

Today, Ed Barrett, former editor of newsweek and an A-1 man, is patriotically handling propaganda for the State department, but is handicapped by lack of money and personnel. If his organization were independent, he could get not only more money but top men.

MOVE NO. 4 — Create in the United States a "League for a Democratic Russia." Made up of Russian exiles, this committee could function as did the Czechoslovakia committee in Pittsburgh in 1918 which led to the disruption of the Austro-Hungarian empire and the founding of the Czechoslovak republic.

Once established in the United States, a "League for a Democratic Russia" could fan out to embrace Russian exiles in England, France, Italy, Yugoslavia, China and the rest of the world. It would be a powerful nucleus through which the Russian people outside the Soviet could speak to the Russian people behind the iron curtain.

Along with such a League for a Democratic Russia, there should be formed in this country an "American Committee for Democracy in Russia" consisting of Americans whose names carry weight behind the iron curtain. This committee should include the leaders of the big American farm organizations, such as the American Farm Bureau, the Grange and the Farmers Union. For Russia is chiefly a nation of peasants with whom the farm leaders of the U.S.A. carry more influence than generals.

On that committee also should be William Green of the AFL, Phil Murray of the CIO, David Dubinsky of the Ladies Garment Workers, heads of the Railroad Brotherhoods and so on. These anti-Communist American labor leaders constitute one of the nation's best assets in the battle against communism.

These are just a few of the steps which can be taken in the long, drawn-out battle to crack the iron curtain. A lot of other moves should be made, many of a secret nature and not for publication. While we cannot neglect armament and preparedness, a campaign to penetrate the iron curtain may in the end bring us greater, quicker and less bloody dividends.

The Spy Trial

THUS FAR, the spy trial, which is being held in New York before Judge Irving R. Kaufman, has established that Soviet Russia, our ally in World War II, sent agents into the United States to steal our data on production of chemicals, electronics, war materials and the atom bomb. Such conduct is expected of an enemy, not of an ally. During the period of spying, the United States was provisioning Soviet Russia to the tune of $11,000,000,000.

But this point is being missed: The data now available was already in the hands of the FBI in 1947. Elizabeth Bentley's testimony on that subject is altogether clear. Also Harry Gold and Abraham Brothman, established the date.

On May 29, 1947, two FBI agents interrogated Brothman concerning his dealings with Jacob Golos, a Soviet spy, and with Elizabeth Bentley, then a Soviet courier and closely associated with Golos, and with Harry Gold. Brothman told Gold, so the latter testifies, that the FBI knew everything.

Among the facts that the FBI knew was that the Amtorg trading company was the center of spy activity and the cover-up for spies, couriers, photostating and similar activities. Yet, Amtorg was permitted to exist in this country as a trading business with which American businessmen and government officials nsorted. Like "Amerasia," it was a protected organization. Who protected it?

The question must be asked why these men were not indicted; why nothing was done about them until after the British arrested Dr. Klaus Fuchs and the world knew that our atom bomb secrets had been stolen. Fuchs was arrested on February 3, 1950, but the testimony in this trial shows that on May 29, 1947, the FBI had the data. Most of us assumed when Gold, Brothman, Greenglass, and Miss Moskowitz were arrested that the information came from Fuchs, but at the trial, the evidence shows that it came from the FBI, which had it in 1947.

Brothman and Gold and whoever else is involved in this miserable business have been free to damage the United States for this prolonged period. It has further been brought out in this trial that the espionage goes back to 1941. Actually, it goes back further than that. It probably goes back as far as the Nye committee of the Senate (1934), which contained among its employes the first important espionage cell in the official life of this country.

This espionage trial, now taking place in New York, is tremendously important and is being inadequately reported. The Hiss trial was perhaps more glamorous, but not more significant. It attracted more attention because there was so strong an effort to cover up for Hiss and to defend him. Even now, some Park Avenue liberals believe that three juries were wrong and that Hiss cannot be guilty of the crimes brought out at his trials.

There is no glamour in this present trial. It is just plain dirt. Americans, employed by Soviet Russia, gave to Russia whatever they could lay their hands on. They stole the formulae for buna-s. They stole the atom bomb. They stole our inventions and will use them to kill our sons and in time to destroy our cities.

When this trial is over, the American people need to know who was responsible for making all this possible. It will not be enough to send a couple of punks to prison or even to hang them. We need to know how it was possible for them to do all this stealing. Who let them steal?

Brothman gave Bentley and Gold huge quantities of material, including plans, models and blueprints, large in bulk. Elizabeth Bentley transferred these to Golos, who died in 1943. Gold also transferred some to Semenov, who operated through Amtorg.

These transfers in bulk had to originate where they should have been missed; where they should have been seen. Where were the security officers we hear so much about? What is meant by security in view of this testimony, which is being reported so inadequately? Why is it being reported so inadequately?

In a word, when this trial is over, why will not some congressional committee go into this more fully to discover the big shots?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — Confession is good for the souls of men —including public officials — and that's why the amazing statement just made by Gen. Omar Bradley, now chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, is about the most important revelation that has come officially since 1945 about our military policy.

The exact words of the General in a public speech were these:

"It is a bruising and chocking "It is a bruising and shocking committed in Korea, we were left without an adequate margin of military strength with which to face an enemy at any other specific point. Certainly we were left without the strength to meet a general attack. In the military sense, the free world was left without adequate reserves except for the atomic bomb."

There's the "bruising and shocking" story which raises the question of what happened to $50,000,000,000 for defense in five years.

It is not sufficient to say Louis Johnson, ousted as secretary of defense, was to blame. Who made the military program and who failed to tell the country if need be, that America and the free world were virtually defenseless?

Responsibility of Joint Chiefs

Under the law this was the responsibility of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff consisting for most of the time in the last five years of General Bradley as chief of staff of the Army, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg as chief of staff of the Air Force and Adm Louis Denfeld as chief of Naval Operations.

These three men had the task of planning military strategy and of rendering military advice to the President and the Secretary of Defense.

Time after time in the privacy of Joint Chief of Staff meetings, Admiral Denfeld protected against the concept that a few Air Force groups and the atom bomb could do the job of protecting our interests across the globe. He pleaded that the Navy with its powerful aircraft carriers should not be put in mothballs but posed at strategic locations overseas. The Marine Corps commandant begged that the Marine Corps—our amphibious force with special skills on the ground and in the air—should not be curtailed. But to no avail. The navy and Marine Corps were voted down repeatedly by Generals Bradley and Vandenberg. The budget was cut by a committee in the Defense department headed by General McNarney of the Air Force.

This correspondent first called attention to these serious cuts in the summer of 1949—a year before the Korean outbreak.

Then came the famous House investigation in October 1949. General Bradley ridiculed the case of the marines, predicting that there wouldn't be another amphibious landing. The admirals were accused of being "fancy Dans," and the argument about the weakness in our main strategic concept was lost in a mixture of denunciations and epithets all of which resulted in the peremptory removal of Admiral Denfeld by Secretary of the Navy Matthews.

The chief of naval operations, who came in seven months before Korea —Admiral Sherman—is a far better leader in many respects than his predecessor and perhaps the most experienced all-around man the Joint Chiefs could have acquired. But his vote was not enough. The basic strategy wasn't changed by the Joint Chiefs until Korea demonstrated what the blunders in planning really were.

Why Was It Necessary

Now, as a belated confession, too, General Vandenberg has ordered that a separate tactical air command be set up. This is exactly what the famous B-29 controversy revealed, namely that the Air Force was too preoccupied with strategic bombing to provide airmen properly trained and with the right planes to give close support to ground troops, as the marines had always done.

Why was the Korean demonstration of our weakness needed? Why were men who spent their lives studying strategy, maps and war experience so blind that it took a Korean war with nearly 28,000 casualties to make them see the truth they should have learned in the class rooms of their war colleges or in Joint Staff conferences? About 4,500 Americans were killed in action and about 4,500 reported missing in Korea and it seems certain that with the massacres of prisoners many of the missing will never be found.

What a tragic climax the Bradley speech is to a debate that never should have been necessary! President Truman still retains in office the men who helped to keep the U. S. from being adequately prepared. The excuse that there wasn't money enough to have a different over-all strategic plan isn't convincing. The expenditure of $50,000,000,000 in five years calls for further investigation by Congress. The House committee did a splendid job, but Senator Tydings who dominated the Senate Armed Services committee did a whitewash. Will politics be laid aside now to ascertain how the colossal blunder in our strategy was made? The next of kin of the nearly 9,000 who are gone would probably like to know what Congress and the President will do about the leaders whose military judgment has been tried, and found wanting.

MATTER OF FACT

By JOSEPH And STEWART ALSOP

The Case Of The Frustrated Contributors

WASHINGTON

HELL hath no fury like a contributor scorned, as the harassed President Truman is now learning. Two of the most important contributors to his 1948 campaign are furiously battering on Administration doors, demanding their rights. The story of these frustrated contributors is worth telling, since it also tells a good deal about the Truman administration.

One of the angry contributors is James Bruce, a New York business man and a shrewd promoter. Bruce bet on Harry Truman when Truman was a very long shot indeed, by collecting a good deal of money for the Truman campaign in the summer of 1948. Ever since, he has been waiting impatiently to collect on the bet, by becoming American Ambassador in London. The second is Stanton Griffis, now Ambassador to Argentina, who was also generous in 1948, and who therefore considers that he has a lein on the Paris embassy.

According to the strategy of Bruce and Griffis, the recent election has presented a golden opportunity for the realization of expectations so long frustrated. For the fact is that Bruce and Griffis have thus far been blocked, not by President Truman, but by Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Under Secretary James Webb.

Insufficient Qualifications Charged

The most conspicuous diplomatic achievement of both Griffis and Bruce, who preceded Griffis as Ambassador to Argentina, has been the establishment of warm relations with Juan Peron, the Argentine dictator, and his rather uncharming wife Evita. Acheson and Webb have opposed the appointments of Bruce and Griffis to the London and Paris posts on simple grounds. These grounds are that chumminess with a South American dictator, plus large campaign contributions, does not constitute sufficient qualifications for the two most important diplomatic posts in the gift of the American government.

The opposition of Acheson and Webb is the key to the anecdote, widely repeated in Washington, about Bruce's interview with President Truman (at which, significantly, no third person was present). The interview took place when Lewis Douglas, former Ambassador to England, resigned. According to this tale, Truman rather mournfully informed Bruce that he had wanted to send him to London, but that "they" had insisted that he send instead "that telephone fellow"—the President could not remember his name. The "telephone fellow" was of corse Walter S. Gifford, now Ambassador in London, and "they" were chiefly Acheson and Webb.

Aside from "they," another obstackle has stood in the way of the triumph of Bruce and Griffis. This has been the fact that the Paris embassy is now occupied by Bruce's very able brother, David Bruce. David Bruce's competence is so universally recognized that Griffis' chances have been hurt. And James Bruce's chances for the London post have also been hurt, since it would be odd, to say the least, to have two brothers serving at the same time in the two most important American diplomatic posts.

"Neat" Solution Proposed

Yet adherents of Bruce and Griffis (said to include such powerful Democratic figures as the President's oilman friend, Ed Pauley) now believe that both these obstacles can be eliminated at one stroke. In the first place, it is argued, whatever Persident Truman may say, the elections make the departure of Acheson sooner or later inevitable, and Webb will depart with him. "They" thus will be out of the way. And if David Bruce is appointed Under Secretary—a post for which he is, in fact, well qualified—he will be out of the way too.

Griffis can then replace David Bruce in Paris, and after a respectable interval of four or five months, James Bruce can at last collect on his long shot by taking over from the "telephone fellow" (who is a Republican anyway) in London. Such is the neat solution now being bruited about, for the problems of Bruce and Griffis.

Whether the solution will work out as neatly as all that depends, of course, on President Truman. And it is this which makes it worth recounting the case of the frustrated contributors. For a great deal will depend on whether Truman accepts the Bruce-Griffis solution. After his surprise triumph in 1948, President Truman discarded the bipartisan

Baby School Project Is Discussed

A proposed Sunday School nursery school project was discussed and plans for a program and Christmas party made at the meeting of the SS. Peter and Paul School Parent-Teacher Association Sunday afternoon in the school auditorium. James Reinhart presided.

Mrs. Joseph Mackert was appointed to investigate about the Nursing School project and report at the next meeting.

Skits are to be given by each class at the next meeting of the PTA, which will be held in the church hall and is to be followed by a Christmas party.

A musical program was presented. It included piano, clarinet, violin and trumpet selections as well as singing by a group. Piano solos consisted of "The Gay Daffodils," by Carroll Boyle, "Down Pebbly Lane," Catherine Wheeler; "Swaying Palms," Barbara Creegan; "Hovering Butterflies," Nellie Wilson; "Silver Slippers," Mary Jo Simpson.

"Simplicity," a clarinet solo was played by William Goldsworthy, accompanied at the piano by Karl Grabenstein; a violin duet, "Waltz in G-In a Garden" was played by Gale Treiber and Nellie Wilson; the latter also played a violin solo, "Cieleto Lindo." Mary Jo Simpson accompanied both on the piano. Trumpet solos were played by Charlotte Barham, Rita Lennon and Eleanor Minke with Nellie Wilson at the piano. "The Song of the Sun," was played by Alexander Jones, trumpet, with Theresa Miltenberger at the piano.

Concluding the program "Our Lady of Fatima," was sung by Carroll Boyle, Mary Jo Simpson, Nellie Wilson, Gale Treiber and Catherine Wheeler.

The Powers Girls have a brand new suggestion for round-the-clock loveliness. Learn now to sleep and awake in beauty.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

THE nightmares that are perpetrated in the name of beauty are a scandal; they are completely unnecessary and diabolically contrived.

Eradicate make-up with a cleanser; remove with tissues. Follow with a thorough "fingertip" washing of mild soap and warm water; rinse thoroughly and pat dry.

Apply the thinnest layer of a night-care lotion if your skin is oily, or a lubricant if your skin is dry. Sparingly applied, your skin will get all the night-complexion dress it needs with nary a visible trace after just a few moments. What a pretty contrast you are to the members of the thick-coat-of-grease school!

Lipstick comes next. Yes, you wear it all night long and it looks as smooth in the morning as when you apply it. Furthermore, when it's a pure, lanolin-based lipstick it's an important part of your beauty care because it keeps the skin of your lips from becoming dry and wrinkled—soft as it should be.

Use a delicate pink or coral pastel shade. Apply two coats, blotting between each; you'll find your lipstick on your lips when you awake instead of on your pillow.

Each Lock Locked

To enhance your night-blooming beauty, dress your hair in your favorite style. Brush it thoroughly; comb and coax it into place until it is as well-groomed as you'd want it for an important occasion. Then insert pins in the strategic waves to hold them firmly in place for the night. Squeeze your hair with the palms of your hands, moving contrariwise from the center of your forehead to the middle of the back of your head. This works like magic, making the thousands of short hairs blend with the longer ones to lock your hair style perfectly in place for the night. Cap your lovely head with a ribbon, a contour net or veiling. You'll go to sleep and awaken looking like your loveliest self!

Congress Cheers Attack On Rogge

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 20 (AP)—The World Peace Congress broke into cheers today when an Iowa negro lawyer bitterly assailed a fellow American delegate for picturing the Moscow-backed congress as a tool of the Kremlin.

Charles F. Howard, Des Moines, was cheered long and lustily when he attacked O. John Rogge, former assistant U. S. attorney general, who told the assemblage in a speech yesterday there is widespread apprehension that the congress is becoming an instrument of Russian foreign policy.

Howard said Rogge is registered in Washington as a paid agent of the Yugoslav government, which is being boycotted by Cominform countries. He said he thought the congress should evaluate Rogge's speech "in the light of his employment."

Washington-Baltimore Fare Hike Protested

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Witnesses representing commuters protested today a proposed hike in communication fares in the Washington and Baltimore area.

Requests for increases, averaging between 14 and 16 per cent were made by the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads.

Officials of the railroads testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing that their companies are losing heavily at the present rates and that the proposed increases would result in only slight decreases in commuter travel.

NOW BOYS, BEHAVE YOURSELVES!—Mrs. Lillian Clapp, 80-year-old school bus driver, admonishes her high-spirited charges before driving them home at Groton, Mass., yesterday. Mrs. Clapp has a perfect safety record dating back to 1899 when she first started driving children to school in a horse and buggy.

Czechs' War Fears Are Blamed For Onion And Vinegar Shortage

PRAGUE, Nov. 20 (AP) — Some people in Czechoslovakia are buying heaps of onions to protect themselves against atomic radiation, the trade union newspaper Prace said in a derisive report tonight.

Others, it said, are stocking up on vinegar to guard against gas attacks.

Prace blamed such citizens, "insuring themselves against all eventualities," for current shortages of these two commodities.

Neither a bad onion harvest nor insufficient vinegar production caused the shortages, it said.

"And so," Prace went on, "people bought a quintal (220 pounds) of onions and put them under the bed."

Another woman, Prace reported, gossiped that in case of a gas attack a handkerchief dipped in vinegar was a good thing to have.

Teaches Sunday Lesson By Phone

MEMPHIS Tenn., Nov. 20 (AP)—Even though W. E. McLeod was weak and sick, his Sunday school class still wanted to hear the lesson as he presented it.

So the members, some of whom he has been teaching for almost 25 years, rigged up a system.

U. S. Tin Products Sent Red China

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Sen. O'Conor (D-Md.) said today that millions of pounds of tin mill products have been shipped from this country to Communist China in recent months.

He sent what he called "an urgent request" to the Commerce Department's office of international trade to halt such shipments, saying they should be brought under export control immediately.

O'Conor said in a statement that although the materials are considered second grade in this country, "they can and easily are manufactured into strategic products."

Officials of the Office of International Trade said that exports of tin products, along with other strategic items, have been under continuing study, and that the Senator's suggestion will receive prompt and earnest consideration.

Reich Election Result Perils U. S. Arms Plan

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 20 (AP)—America's plan to rearm Western Europe for defense within the reasonable future is in grave peril. This is underscored by weekend election returns giving a wide margin of victory to a German party, the Socialists, which opposes rearmament as presently planned.

The political problems of rearmament are enormously complex and controversial. But military men agree the military essentials for rearmament are simple and unavoidable:

(1) There can be no effective defense of Europe without both Germany and France participating fully.

(2) Formation of defense armies must begin at once to be effective. It may already be too late.

There appears no prospect of carrying out either of these military essentials in the near future.

Hearings Concluded On Edwards' Motion

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Supreme Bench of Baltimore concluded its hearing today on a motion that Thomas Alexander Edwards be given a third murder trial.

The Anne Arundel county negro twice has been convicted in the pistol slayings of John H. Mahlan and Mary C. Kline. They were killed Sept. 17, 1948, after leaving on a date from Miss Kline's home at Glen Burnie, Md.

Attorneys for Edwards spent more than four hours last Friday arguing for a new trial. After the state completed its arguments today, the eight-judge court deliberated for more than an hour, then announced its decision would be held under consideration.

Two Die When Trucks Collide, Burst Into Flame

WEST UNION, W. Va., Nov. 20 (AP)—Two big trailer trucks collided and burst into flames early today on U. S. Route 50 near Smithburg, killing two men and injuring a third.

The dead were identified as George Buckley, 23, Parkersburg, and David Hardman, 24, Frederick, Md.

Staley Grimes, 35, also of Frederick, an occupant in the cab of the Hardman truck, was taken to a hospital at Clarksburg suffering from shock and loss of blood. Doctors said he was expected to recover.

WHY DO STOCK PRICES CHANGE ?

Imagine a typical auction. The auctioneer is calling for bids on some early American chairs. He points to one.

"I hear $40. Forty-five? Thank you, sir!

"Will someone make it fifty? Forty-five I have—a lady bids $50. Fifty-five over there—and sixty?

"Sixty, a bargain at $60. Sixty-five? Do I hear sixty-five? ... Sold for $60."

On the New York Stock Exchange there is a continuing auction ... in stocks. But unlike the country auction, the Stock Exchange is a market place for securities in which thousands of investors, from all over the country, participate daily. Their orders are serviced by its members, acting as their agents, every business day.

Actually, it's a double auction, working both ways. Bidders want to buy their stock from sellers at the lowest possible price. Sellers want to get the highest price for the shares they are offering. When a buyer's bid and a seller's offer arrive at a mutually acceptable price, a purchase is completed, a sale is made ... at the best price available in this national market, at that moment.

That's the kind of give and take going on all the time at the Exchange, in the 1,500 stocks that are listed. That's why stock prices change. A buyer whose bid is too low can raise it. An offer to sell that is too high can be lowered. It's an auction market ... for buyers and sellers.

All kinds of factors influence people to buy or sell ... earnings and dividends ... purchasing power of the dollar ... new production records ... a war won or threatened ... a change in tax laws ... strike news ... other factors.

The Exchange does not set prices. Prices are determined by the public's appraisals of the attraction of stocks in terms of benefits offered and risk assumed. The Exchange does, however, see that prices are arrived at openly and fairly, and published promptly.

Congress Cheers Attack On Rogge

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 20 (AP)—The World Peace Congress broke into cheers today when an Iowa negro lawyer bitterly assailed a fellow American delegate for picturing the Moscow-backed congress as a tool of the Kremlin.

Charles F. Howard, Des Moines, was cheered long and lustily when he attacked O. John Rogge, former assistant U. S. attorney general, who told the assemblage in a speech yesterday there is widespread apprehension that the congress is becoming an instrument of Russian foreign policy.

Howard said Rogge is registered in Washington as a paid agent of the Yugoslav government, which is being boycotted by Cominform countries. He said he thought the congress should evaluate Rogge's speech "in the light of his employment."

Washington-Baltimore Fare Hike Protested

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Witnesses representing commuters protested today a proposed hike in communication fares in the Washington and Baltimore area.

Requests for increases, averaging between 14 and 16 per cent were made by the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads.

Officials of the railroads testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing that their companies are losing heavily at the present rates and that the proposed increases would result in only slight decreases in commuter travel.

NOW BOYS, BEHAVE YOURSELVES!—Mrs. Lillian Clapp, 80-year-old school bus driver, admonishes her high-spirited charges before driving them home at Groton, Mass., yesterday. Mrs. Clapp has a perfect safety record dating back to 1899 when she first started driving children to school in a horse and buggy.

U. S. Tin Products Sent Red China

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Sen. O'Conor (D-Md.) said today that millions of pounds of tin mill products have been shipped from this country to Communist China in recent months.

He sent what he called "an urgent request" to the Commerce Department's office of international trade to halt such shipments, saying they should be brought under export control immediately.

O'Conor said in a statement that although the materials are considered second grade in this country, "they can and easily are manufactured into strategic products."

Officials of the Office of International Trade said that exports of tin products, along with other strategic items, have been under continuing study, and that the Senator's suggestion will receive prompt and earnest consideration.

Reich Election Result Perils U. S. Arms Plan

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 20 (AP)—America's plan to rearm Western Europe for defense within the reasonable future is in grave peril. This is underscored by weekend election returns giving a wide margin of victory to a German party, the Socialists, which opposes rearmament as presently planned.

The political problems of rearmament are enormously complex and controversial. But military men agree the military essentials for rearmament are simple and unavoidable:

(1) There can be no effective defense of Europe without both Germany and France participating fully.

(2) Formation of defense armies must begin at once to be effective. It may already be too late.

Hearings Concluded On Edwards' Motion

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Supreme Bench of Baltimore concluded its hearing today on a motion that Thomas Alexander Edwards be given a third murder trial.

The Anne Arundel county negro twice has been convicted in the pistol slayings of John H. Mahlan and Mary C. Kline. They were killed Sept. 17, 1948, after leaving on a date from Miss Kline's home at Glen Burnie, Md.

Attorneys for Edwards spent more than four hours last Friday arguing for a new trial. After the state completed its arguments today, the eight-judge court deliberated for more than an hour, then announced its decision would be held under consideration.

Two Die When Trucks Collide, Burst Into Flame

WEST UNION, W. Va., Nov. 20 (AP)—Two big trailer trucks collided and burst into flames early today on U. S. Route 50 near Smithburg, killing two men and injuring a third.

The dead were identified as George Buckley, 23, Parkersburg, and David Hardman, 24, Frederick, Md.

Staley Grimes, 35, also of Frederick, an occupant in the cab of the Hardman truck, was taken to a hospital at Clarksburg suffering from shock and loss of blood. Doctors said he was expected to recover.

Czechs' War Fears Are Blamed For Onion And Vinegar Shortage

PRAGUE, Nov. 20 (AP) — Some people in Czechoslovakia are buying heaps of onions to protect themselves against atomic radiation, the trade union newspaper Prace said in a derisive report tonight.

Others, it said, are stocking up on vinegar to guard against gas attacks.

Prace blamed such citizens, "insuring themselves against all eventualities," for current shortages of these two commodities.

Neither a bad onion harvest nor insufficient vinegar production caused the shortages, it said.

"And so," Prace went on, "people bought a quintal (220 pounds) of onions and put them under the bed."

Another woman, Prace reported, gossiped that in case of a gas attack a handkerchief dipped in vinegar was a good thing to have.

Teaches Sunday Lesson By Phone

MEMPHIS Tenn., Nov. 20 (AP)—Even though W. E. McLeod was weak and sick, his Sunday school class still wanted to hear the lesson as he presented it.

So the members, some of whom he has been teaching for almost 25 years, rigged up a system.

WHY DO STOCK PRICES CHANGE ?

Imagine a typical auction. The auctioneer is calling for bids on some early American chairs. He points to one.

"I hear $40. Forty-five? Thank you, sir!

"Will someone make it fifty? Forty-five I have—a lady bids $50. Fifty-five over there—and sixty?

Muddy School Grounds At Oldtown Improved

OLDTOWN—About a year ago, there were numerous complaints over the muddy condition of the school grounds and roadway at Oldtown school building, but these conditions have all been remedied, according to Walter S. Mueller, president of the Oldtown PTA.

Through the cooperation of Eugene S. Williams, president of the Western Maryland Railway Company, two car loads of cinders were donated and delivered to the town. Residents and members of the PTA volunteered and contributed toward the task of hauling and spreading the cinders over the muddy play field.

The Board of Education also paved, with blacktop, a section used as a basketball court, and enough white paint has been donated for marking out the lines of the court.

Gaither Dockets Suit Over Crash Of Airplane Here

Docketed by James Alfred Avirett, attorney for Gaither, the suit asks damages of $850 from Adamson.

The declaration states that on June 6, 1950, the plaintiff delivered the hangar key and entrusted the care and custody of his Fairchild PT-23 plane to Adamson.

It is further averred that on June 24, while the plane was still in the custody of Adamson, the accident occurred.

Gaither charges that while Adamson had the plane in his possession that the defendant, without the consent or authorization of the plaintiff, requested Virgil A. Parker, a flying instructor, to give the defendant flying instructions.

In the course of landing after a flight, it is charged, a tire on the tail wheel blew out. Parker allegedly employed Edwin M. Dermer, who is reported not to be an authorized airplane mechanic, to make repairs.

While Dermer was allegedly making the repairs he is charged with starting the airplane engine without proper safety precautions and as a result the craft, without anyone at the controls, went across the field at high speed and crashed into the woods, Gaither declares.

Gaither said the plane had a valuation of $1,500, but that as he was desirous of disposing of the craft, he had agreed to sell it to Adamson for $750.

Gaither claims $850 as a result of damage to the craft.

Gaither Dockets Suit Over Crash Of Airplane Here

The declaration states that on June 6, 1950, the plaintiff delivered the hangar key and entrusted the care and custody of his Fairchild PT-23 plane to Adamson.

It is further averred that on June 24, while the plane was still in the custody of Adamson, the accident occurred.

Gaither charges that while Adamson had the plane in his possession that the defendant, without the consent or authorization of the plaintiff, requested Virgil A. Parker, a flying instructor, to give the defendant flying instructions.

In the course of landing after a flight, it is charged, a tire on the tail wheel blew out. Parker allegedly employed Edwin M. Dermer, who is reported not to be an authorized airplane mechanic, to make repairs.

While Dermer was allegedly making the repairs he is charged with starting the airplane engine without proper safety precautions and as a result the craft, without anyone at the controls, went across the field at high speed and crashed into the woods, Gaither declares.

Gaither said the plane had a valuation of $1,500, but that as he was desirous of disposing of the craft, he had agreed to sell it to Adamson for $750.

Gaither claims $850 as a result of damage to the craft.

Man Held For Assault, Robbery

W. T. Berry, Bowman's Addition, will face the grand jury of the January term of Circuit Court on a charge of attacking and robbing a local man late Saturday night on Baltimore Street.

Berry was nabbed when his victim, Howard Roach, Brunswick Hotel, recognized him and informed police.

Berry was questioned yesterday morning in the State's Attorney's office and returned to the city jail where he must finish serving a three-day sentence on a drunk and disorderly conduct conviction. He will then be taken to the County Jail.

Roach informed police that the man he identified as Berry beat and robbed him of a small amount of cash and a half-pint of whisky near the B. & O. Railroad's Baltimore Street crossing Saturday at 11:50 p. m.

The middle course of the river Nile in Egypt is not navigable except at very high flood.

Rams To Keep Joe Stydahar As Grid Coach

Deny Frank Leahy Will Be New Mentor

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20 (INS)—A report that Notre Dame coach Frank Leahy would be head mentor of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Professional Football League next year was emphatically denied today both by the Rams' president and Leahy.

Joe Stydahar

Dan Reeves, president of the national loop team, telephoned his Los Angeles office from New York with this statement:

"As managing partner of the Los Angeles Rams I would like to state that the Rams' present coach, Joseph Stydahar, will be the Ram head coach in 1951.

"Stydahar will definitely be our head coach next year and regardless of how the Rams fare in their next two games, we feel that Joe and his staff have done the outstanding coaching job in the National Professional Football League this year."

Leahy said in South Bend, Ind., home of the Fighting Irish:

"I have definitely decided that all my coaching will be done at Notre Dame."

Under Stydahar the Rams have surged to the top of the National League's national conference, reaching there through yesterday's 43-35 win over the New York Yankees.

Redlegs End Year $79,683.68 In Red

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds finished the 1950 National League baseball season $79,683.68 in the red.

That was the report made today to the club's stockholders by president Warren C. Giles.

It was the first time since 1945 that the Reds had failed to show a profit in their operations. Three reasons were listed by Giles.

They were: (1) the poor showing of the team during the first one third of the season; (2) adverse weather conditions and unfavorable weather predictions, and (3) television.

Penn State Beats College Harriers

Army's Shea Takes IC4A Race 2nd Time

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Long-striding Dick Shea of Army refused to be daunted by blustery winds and rain today as he raced to his second straight victory in the IC-4A cross country.

The durable cadet toured the rolling Van Cortlandt Park hills in 25 minutes, 21.4 seconds for the five mile route, just 6.7 slower than his winning time a year ago.

Penn State won the team championship, succeeding Army, with a point score of 44. Army finished second with 79, followed by Manhattan with 98 and Michigan State 104.

Roy Hamey Will Quit Pirates Dec. 1 To Join Yanks As Weiss' Assistant

New Duties Deal With Farm Clubs

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Roy Hamey, general manager of the Pittsburgh Baseball club for the last four years, is coming back to the New York Yankees as an assistant to the general manager.

Roy Hamey

The Yankees announced today the 48-year-old executive, who served 12 years in the New York organization, would sever connections with Pittsburgh Dec. 1 and join the club in spring training.

Hamey's status with Pittsburgh had been up in the air since Branch Rickey left Brooklyn and moved into the Pirate front office as vice president and general manager.

The Yankees said Hamey will serve as an aide to general manager George Weiss. His duties, they said, would not be operational but would deal with players personnel and farm clubs.

Hamey is expected to take over some of the duties of Gene Martin, who helped direct Yankee farm clubs before moving to Syracuse of the International League as general manager.

In Pittsburgh, Hamey said, "I feel very badly about leaving Pittsburgh where I have had some wonderful associates."

"But with this opportunity," he added, "if I am going to make a change, I feel as though I were returning home after my many years of association with the Yankees."

Hamey moved into Pittsburgh as general manager in 1947 and helped provide the Pirates with million-fan gates for each of the next four years.

Oklahoma Zooms Into Lead In Weekly Football Poll

Sooners Have Won 29 Straight; Ohio State Drops To 8th Place

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Oklahoma zoomed into first place in the Associated Press football poll today with 173 of 333 first place votes. Ohio State, last week's leader, tumbled to eighth after its loss to Illinois.

Powerful Oklahoma, unbeaten in 29 straight games, ran away from the other contenders with a total of 2,964 points, 526 better than runner-up Army.

More than half of the football writers and sportscasters ranked Oklahoma in the No. 1 spot after its 41-7 romp over Missouri. The Sooners were second last week.

Army lost first place support as it shaded Stanford, 7-0, in a mud battle but the Cadets picked up enough points to advance a notch from last week's position. Only 36 put Army first compared to 72 a week ago.

Kentucky Is Third

There were no changes in the top 10 membership. Four teams held the same positions. The biggest shuffle was Ohio State's drop from first to eighth.

After the first three came California, Texas, Illinois and Princeton. Ohio State was followed by Tennessee and Michigan State in that order. Only Michigan State has completed its schedule.

Oklahoma (8-0) has two more games to play. After its test with 16th ranked Nebraska Saturday, the Sooners wind up with Oklahoma A. and M. Army (8-0) plays Navy Dec. 2 in its last game.

Kentucky (10-0) tangles with ninth-ranked Tennessee (8-1) in Saturday's most important game. It will be Kentucky's finale but Tennessee also must play Vanderbilt, Dec. 2. Tennessee polished off Mississippi 35-0, last Saturday to hold its ninth ranking.

San Francisco threw quite a scare into California (9-0) before the California Bears finally won it, 13-7. Stanford is the only barrier in California's path to the Rose Bowl.

Texas (7-1), a 21-7 winner over Texas Christian, has two to play—Texas A. and M. Nov. 30 and Louisiana State Dec. 9. But they have already clinched the Southwest Conference crown and a Cotton Bowl appearance.

Illinois' upset of Ohio State, 14-7, brought its season record to 7-1. Wisconsin was the only team to defeat Illinois, 7-6, in early season. Northwestern is the final opponent on the Illini schedule.

Unbeaten Princton (8-0) nailed down its fourth straight Big Three tiele by whipping Yale, 47-12. They finish their season with Dartmouth Saturday.

Could Win Title

Ohio State (6-2) needs a win over Michigan Saturday to be sure of the Western Conference championship.

Standings of all teams receiving at least 10 points with first place votes in parentheses. (Points figured on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis).

1. Oklahoma (173)	2,964
2. Army (36)	2,438
3. Kentucky (55)	2,346
4. California (20)	2,188
5. Texas (6)	1,817
6. Illinois (14)	1,807
7. Princeton (8)	1,268
8. Ohio State	935
9. Tennessee (2)	844
10. Michigan State (4)	532
SECOND TEN
11. Clemson (7)	207
12. Wyoming (3)	147
13. Pennsylvania	129
14. Miami, Fla. (1)	113
15. Southern Methodist	109
16. Nebraska (2)	90
17. Alabama	71
18. Washington	58
19. Washington and Lee (1)	40

Others were: Lehigh and Cornell, each 20; Tulsa, 18; Tulane, 16; Wake Forest, 13; and Michigan, 10.

Owen Coaches Bayard

"Cap" Carder Is Dead

St. John's Cops Title

Lee Going To Boston

By C. V. BURNS

Clem Clower, sports specialist of Petersburg, W. Va., informs us that "Ike" Owen, who scored 11 points in the first two games with the Cumberland Spas, hails from Follansbee, W. Va., and made the all-tournament team two years ago when Fairmont State Teachers' College emerged the victor at Buckhannon.

The name is Owen and not Owens.

• — • — •

Funeral services were held yesterday for "Cap" Carder, 67, outstanding sportsman of Petersburg, W. Va.

A retired B. & O. Railroad conductor, Mr. Carder, was instrumental in organizating the Petersburg Independent Basketball tournament that was started in 1930 and had served as treasurer of the Petersburg Merchants baseball team.

"Cap" Carder, who died Friday, was a one-time minor league baseball player, having starred in the old Eastern Shore League.

St. John's High School, which has played LaSalle numerous times in basketball, won the Catholic football championship of Washington (D. C.) on Sunday by crushing Gonzaga High School, 37-0 at Griffith Stadium.

St. John's (Brother Clement, formerly of LaSalle is principal there) will represent the Catholic League in the district scholastic championship game Friday, Dec. 1 at Griffith Stadium.

• — • — •

George Hott, infielder, and Elwood May, pitcher, who went from Moorefield of the Interstate Baseball League, to the minors where they starred with Pittsburgh and Brooklyn "farm" teams, were caught in the draft (not baseball) by Uncle Sam.

• — • — •

Two other Interstate Leaguers have deserted baseball for Uncle Sam. Glenn Evans, Hyndman VFW twirler, is sporting an army uniform. Joe Reissig, Cumberland Moose player, is in the navy. Both attended the Interstate League dinner here Sunday.

Jocke Miller, chairman of the District of Columbia A. A. U. boxing committee, is planning to send Norval Lee, heavyweight, and Willie Davis to the Pan American trials at Boston next month.

Norval seconded Washington, D. C. boxers in last week's amateur show here.

He and Bob Baker, the Pittsburgh pro, are the best heavies to show here in many years. Probably the best since Frank Moran's day.

• — • — •

Maury Fitzgerald, Washington, D. C., golf writer, points out that John Alderton, University of Maryland's sophomore defensive right end (product of Fort Hill, sir), used to caddy for Max Elbin back at the Cumberland Country Club before they came to the capital—Elbin to be pro at Burning Tree and Alderton to begin a college career.

There also was a day when Elbin caddied for lots of other persons. In fact, he once won the caddy championship at the CCC.

And Max used to be a grocery clerk. We know because he waited on us!

• — • — •

Don't be alarmed because the Spas have dropped their first two games.

The Dukes of 1947-48 dropped their first four games to Duquesne University, the New York Rens, Akron Collegians and Pittsburgh Pirates. And Zanesville was the only team they whipped in their first eight outings.

Illinois Celebrates

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)—There were no classes today on the main campus of the University of Illinois.

Instead, there was joyful pandemonium as the student body of 17,300 declared a holiday in celebration of Saturday's 14 to 7 Illini football victory over Ohio State.

DISMISSED—National Professional Basketball League headquarters at Lafayette, Ind., yesterday announced Bobby McDermott (above), player-coach of the Grand Rapids Hornets, had been dismissed for "conduct unbecoming a coach or players in the league." McDermott was charged with using profanity and ripping the doors off the lockers after his team had lost a game.

Bob McDermott Fired As Coach

Rips Doors Off Lockers After His Team Lost

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 20 (AP)—National Professional Basketball League headquarters announced today Bobby McDermott, player-coach of the Grand Rapids Hornets, had been dismissed for "conduct unbecoming a coach or players in the league."

McDermott, for many years regarded as one of the best set shots in pro basketball, also had the misfortune of suffering a broken wrist in an automobile accident Saturday night near Macon, Missouri.

Mrs. Doxie Moore, wife and assistant of the NPBL commissioner, said McDermott was dismissed because of his actions at Casper, Wyo., Nov. 14, in a game between Grand Rapids and the Denver Refiners. Grand Rapids lost, 73 to 72.

"We have been deluged with telegrams from the Casper Chamber of Commerce, the game officials and spectators," Mrs. Moore said.

"They agreed that McDermott's profanity could be heard all over the gymnasium and that he ripped doors off lockers in the dressing room after shouting that his team had been robbed."

The commissioner was grounded at Des Moines airport today, en route to a game at Kansas City tonight, and could not be reached immediately for comment.

Keyser Church League Will Open On Dec. 2

KEYSER, W. Va.—Plans are being made for the opening of the 1950-51 basketball season by the Keyser Church Basketball League. The schedule will call for playing the opening games on Saturday, December 2. The Presbyterian team won league honors last year in which the following churches participated: Grace Methodist, First Methodist, Church of the Brethren, United Brethren, Catholic, Presbyterian and Lutheran. The Grace Methodist Church entered two teams last season to provide for the playing of eight teams.

Ninth grade provides the eligible time for players to participate in the league games, and players must attend Sunday School at least three Sundays each month, and may play only for the church to which they belong or attend. All must reside in Keyser or McCoole. The limit of players for each team is 12.

All games will be played in the gymnasium at Keyser High School and the athletic department of the high school will furnish one large trophy for the winning team and a small trophy for the losers. The annual banquet will be held at the close of the season.

Rams To Keep Joe Stydahar As Grid Coach

Deny Frank Leahy Will Be New Mentor

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20 (INS)—A report that Notre Dame coach Frank Leahy would be head mentor of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Professional Football League next year was emphatically denied today both by the Rams' president and Leahy.

Joe Stydahar

"As managing partner of the Los Angeles Rams I would like to state that the Rams' present coach, Joseph Stydahar, will be the Ram head coach in 1951.

"Stydahar will definitely be our head coach next year and regardless of how the Rams fare in their next two games, we feel that Joe and his staff have done the outstanding coaching job in the National Professional Football League this year."

Leahy said in South Bend, Ind., home of the Fighting Irish:

"I have definitely decided that all my coaching will be done at Notre Dame."

Under Stydahar the Rams have surged to the top of the National League's national conference, reaching there through yesterday's 43-35 win over the New York Yankees.

That was the report made today to the club's stockholders by president Warren C. Giles.

It was the first time since 1945 that the Reds had failed to show a profit in their operations. Three reasons were listed by Giles.

They were: (1) the poor showing of the team during the first one third of the season; (2) adverse weather conditions and unfavorable weather predictions, and (3) television.

Army's Shea Takes IC4A Race 2nd Time

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Long-striding Dick Shea of Army refused to be daunted by blustery winds and rain today as he raced to his second straight victory in the IC-4A cross country.

The durable cadet toured the rolling Van Cortlandt Park hills in 25 minutes, 21.4 seconds for the five mile route, just 6.7 slower than his winning time a year ago.

Penn State won the team championship, succeeding Army, with a point score of 44. Army finished second with 79, followed by Manhattan with 98 and Michigan State 104.

Roy Hamey Will Quit Pirates Dec. 1 To Join Yanks As Weiss' Assistant

New Duties Deal With Farm Clubs

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Roy Hamey, general manager of the Pittsburgh Baseball club for the last four years, is coming back to the New York Yankees as an assistant to the general manager.

Roy Hamey

The Yankees announced today the 48-year-old executive, who served 12 years in the New York organization, would sever connections with Pittsburgh Dec. 1 and join the club in spring training.

Hamey's status with Pittsburgh had been up in the air since Branch Rickey left Brooklyn and moved into the Pirate front office as vice president and general manager.

The Yankees said Hamey will serve as an aide to general manager George Weiss. His duties, they said, would not be operational but would deal with players personnel and farm clubs.

Hamey is expected to take over some of the duties of Gene Martin, who helped direct Yankee farm clubs before moving to Syracuse of the International League as general manager.

In Pittsburgh, Hamey said, "I feel very badly about leaving Pittsburgh where I have had some wonderful associates."

"But with this opportunity," he added, "if I am going to make a change, I feel as though I were returning home after my many years of association with the Yankees."

Hamey moved into Pittsburgh as general manager in 1947 and helped provide the Pirates with million-fan gates for each of the next four years.

Oklahoma Zooms Into Lead In Weekly Football Poll

Sooners Have Won 29 Straight; Ohio State Drops To 8th Place

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Oklahoma zoomed into first place in the Associated Press football poll today with 173 of 333 first place votes. Ohio State, last week's leader, tumbled to eighth after its loss to Illinois.

Powerful Oklahoma, unbeaten in 29 straight games, ran away from the other contenders with a total of 2,964 points, 526 better than runner-up Army.

More than half of the football writers and sportscasters ranked Oklahoma in the No. 1 spot after its 41-7 romp over Missouri. The Sooners were second last week.

Army lost first place support as it shaded Stanford, 7-0, in a mud battle but the Cadets picked up enough points to advance a notch from last week's position. Only 36 put Army first compared to 72 a week ago.

Kentucky Is Third

There were no changes in the top 10 membership. Four teams held the same positions. The biggest shuffle was Ohio State's drop from first to eighth.

After the first three came California, Texas, Illinois and Princeton. Ohio State was followed by Tennessee and Michigan State in that order. Only Michigan State has completed its schedule.

Oklahoma (8-0) has two more games to play. After its test with 16th ranked Nebraska Saturday, the Sooners wind up with Oklahoma A. and M. Army (8-0) plays Navy Dec. 2 in its last game.

Kentucky (10-0) tangles with ninth-ranked Tennessee (8-1) in Saturday's most important game. It will be Kentucky's finale but Tennessee also must play Vanderbilt, Dec. 2. Tennessee polished off Mississippi 35-0, last Saturday to hold its ninth ranking.

San Francisco threw quite a scare into California (9-0) before the California Bears finally won it, 13-7. Stanford is the only barrier in California's path to the Rose Bowl.

Texas (7-1), a 21-7 winner over Texas Christian, has two to play—Texas A. and M. Nov. 30 and Louisiana State Dec. 9. But they have already clinched the Southwest Conference crown and a Cotton Bowl appearance.

Illinois' upset of Ohio State, 14-7, brought its season record to 7-1. Wisconsin was the only team to defeat Illinois, 7-6, in early season. Northwestern is the final opponent on the Illini schedule.

Unbeaten Princton (8-0) nailed down its fourth straight Big Three tiele by whipping Yale, 47-12. They finish their season with Dartmouth Saturday.

Could Win Title

Ohio State (6-2) needs a win over Michigan Saturday to be sure of the Western Conference championship.

Standings of all teams receiving at least 10 points with first place votes in parentheses. (Points figured on 10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1 basis).

1.	Oklahoma (173)	2,964
2.	Army (36)	2,438
3.	Kentucky (55)	2,346
4.	California (20)	2,188
5.	Texas (6)	1,817
6.	Illinois (14)	1,807
7.	Princeton (8)	1,268
8.	Ohio State	935
9.	Tennessee (2)	844
10.	Michigan State (4)	532
	SECOND TEN
11.	Clemson (7)	207
12.	Wyoming (3)	147
13.	Pennsylvania	129
14.	Miami, Fla. (1)	113
15.	Southern Methodist	109
16.	Nebraska (2)	90
17.	Alabama	71
18.	Washington	58
19.	Washington and Lee (1)	40
20.	Loyola, Los Angeles (1)	24

Others were: Lehigh and Cornell, each 20; Tulsa, 18; Tulane, 16; Wake Forest, 13; and Michigan, 10.

"Cap" Carder Is Dead

St. John's Cops Title

Lee Going To Boston

By C. V. BURNS

Clem Clower, sports specialist of Petersburg, W. Va., informs us that "Ike" Owen, who scored 11 points in the first two games with the Cumberland Spas, hails from Follansbee, W. Va., and made the all-tournament team two years ago when Fairmont State Teachers' College emerged the victor at Buckhannon.

The name is Owen and not Owens.

Funeral services were held yesterday for "Cap" Carder, 67, outstanding sportsman of Petersburg, W. Va.

A retired B. & O. Railroad conductor, Mr. Carder, was instrumental in organizating the Petersburg Independent Basketball tournament that was started in 1930 and had served as treasurer of the Petersburg Merchants baseball team.

"Cap" Carder, who died Friday, was a one-time minor league baseball player, having starred in the old Eastern Shore League.

St. John's High School, which has played LaSalle numerous times in basketball, won the Catholic football championship of Washington (D. C.) on Sunday by crushing Gonzaga High School, 37-0 at Griffith Stadium.

St. John's (Brother Clement, formerly of LaSalle is principal there) will represent the Catholic League in the district scholastic championship game Friday, Dec. 1 at Griffith Stadium.

George Hott, infielder, and Elwood May, pitcher, who went from Moorefield of the Interstate Baseball League, to the minors where they starred with Pittsburgh and Brooklyn "farm" teams, were caught in the draft (not baseball) by Uncle Sam.

Two other Interstate Leaguers have deserted baseball for Uncle Sam. Glenn Evans, Hyndman VFW twirler, is sporting an army uniform. Joe Reissig, Cumberland Moose player, is in the navy. Both attended the Interstate League dinner here Sunday.

Jocke Miller, chairman of the District of Columbia A. A. U. boxing committee, is planning to send Norval Lee, heavyweight, and Willie Davis to the Pan American trials at Boston next month.

He and Bob Baker, the Pittsburgh pro, are the best heavies to show here in many years. Probably the best since Frank Moran's day.

Maury Fitzgerald, Washington, D. C., golf writer, points out that John Alderton, University of Maryland's sophomore defensive right end (product of Fort Hill, sir), used to caddy for Max Elbin back at the Cumberland Country Club before they came to the capital—Elbin to be pro at Burning Tree and Alderton to begin a college career.

There also was a day when Elbin caddied for lots of other persons. In fact, he once won the caddy championship at the CCC.

And Max used to be a grocery clerk. We know because he waited on us!

Don't be alarmed because the Spas have dropped their first two games.

The Dukes of 1947-48 dropped their first four games to Duquesne University, the New York Rens, Akron Collegians and Pittsburgh Pirates. And Zanesville was the only team they whipped in their first eight outings.

Bob McDermott Fired As Coach

Rips Doors Off Lockers After His Team Lost

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 20 (AP) — National Professional Basketball League headquarters announced today Bobby McDermott, player-coach of the Grand Rapids Hornets, had been dismissed for "conduct unbecoming a coach or players in the league."

McDermott, for many years regarded as one of the best set shots in pro basketball, also had the misfortune of suffering a broken wrist in an automobile accident Saturday night near Macon, Missouri.

Mrs. Doxie Moore, wife and assistant of the NPBL commissioner, said McDermott was dismissed because of his actions at Casper, Wyo., Nov. 14, in a game between Grand Rapids and the Denver Refiners. Grand Rapids lost, 73 to 72.

"We have been deluged with telegrams from the Casper Chamber of Commerce, the game officials and spectators," Mrs. Moore said.

"They agreed that McDermott's profanity could be heard all over the gymnasium and that he ripped doors off lockers in the dressing room after shouting that his team had been robbed."

The commissioner was grounded at Des Moines airport today, en route to a game at Kansas City tonight, and could not be reached immediately for comment.

KEYSER, W. Va.—Plans are being made for the opening of the 1950-51 basketball season by the Keyser Church Basketball League. Culmone Tops Shoemaker In Jockey Race

Joe Rides Winner No. 332 At Bowie

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 20 (AP)—Jockey Joe Culmone got the temporary lead over Willie Shoemaker, his west coast rival in the spirited contest for national riding honors, when he scored with Burning Ray, a $7.60 for two chance, in the second race here today. The score now stands 332 to 331 in favor of the Italian booter.

Culmone muffed some fine chances to improve on his advantage, however, in subsequent races, when he was beaten aboard two odds-on choices in a row. He failed with Fiddler, a 2-5 shot in the fourth and finished third with the heavily-backed Tacaro in the fifth.

Today's feature, the $3,500 Fenelon Purse, was taken by Sylvester W. Labrot, Jr's Arcave, which finished a length ahead of Fighting Fleet. Colonel Mike, with Culmone up, was third.

Arcave paid $21.80 for two and was the sixth outsider to score here today in seven races. A crowd of 5,233 rain-soaked fans watched the second program of the late fall meeting today.

Bold Bolo Is Winner

LINCOLN, R. I., Nov. 20 (AP)—Pine Tree Farm's Bold Bolo, briefly challenged at the start by Lawrence Barbiere's Fly Around, captured the seven-furlong Lincoln Park Purse by two lengths today before a Lincoln Downs crowd of 7,800.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Preece's Shotral closed gamely along the rail but could not overtake the favorite. Dave Zakoor's Yoicks finished third two lengths back of Shotral.

Bold Bolo, timed in 1:40 4-5, paid $7.00, $4.20 and $2.80. Shotral returned $10.20 and $5.60, and Yoicks $3.40 .

J. E. Hughes' Dashing Count, the crowd's second choice, bolted toward the inner rail after the start and crashed through it into the infield, but Jockey A. F. Martinez escaped injury.

Biggie Munn — Lefty James — Dallas Ward — Henry Frnka

UNTIL the University of Minnesota officials name a new head football coach—after the season ends—the guessing will continue as to the fellow who will replace Bernie Bierman as head coach. Four names are being tossed about now and they include Dallas Ward, coach at Colorado; Lefty James, head mentor at Cornell; Henry Frnka, the Tulane pilot, and Biggie Munn, Michigan State's able coach. (International)

Culmone Tops Shoemaker In Jockey Race

Joe Rides Winner No. 332 At Bowie

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 20 (AP)—Jockey Joe Culmone got the temporary lead over Willie Shoemaker, his west coast rival in the spirited contest for national riding honors, when he scored with Burning Ray, a $7.60 for two chance, in the second race here today. The score now stands 332 to 331 in favor of the Italian booter.

Culmone muffed some fine chances to improve on his advantage, however, in subsequent races, when he was beaten aboard two odds-on choices in a row. He failed with Fiddler, a 2-5 shot in the fourth and finished third with the heavily-backed Tacaro in the fifth.

Today's feature, the $3,500 Fenelon Purse, was taken by Sylvester W. Labrot, Jr's Arcave, which finished a length ahead of Fighting Fleet. Colonel Mike, with Culmone up, was third.

Arcave paid $21.80 for two and was the sixth outsider to score here today in seven races. A crowd of 5,233 rain-soaked fans watched the second program of the late fall meeting today.

Bold Bolo Is Winner

LINCOLN, R. I., Nov. 20 (AP)—Pine Tree Farm's Bold Bolo, briefly challenged at the start by Lawrence Barbiere's Fly Around, captured the seven-furlong Lincoln Park Purse by two lengths today before a Lincoln Downs crowd of 7,800.

Bold Bolo, timed in 1:40 4-5, paid $7.00, $4.20 and $2.80. Shotral returned $10.20 and $5.60, and Yoicks $3.40 .

J. E. Hughes' Dashing Count, the crowd's second choice, bolted toward the inner rail after the start and crashed through it into the infield, but Jockey A. F. Martinez escaped injury.

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20—(INS)—I'm not surprised that Darryl Zanuck wants Irene Dunne for another picture, and he thinks he has the right story for her in "Belles On Their Toes."

Irene Dunne

Myrna Loy played the mother in "Cheaper," of course, but she is so busy being a Washington hostess that no movie could lure her back to Hollywood. Besides, Sam Engel, the producer, has set his heart on having Irene, who was wonderful in "I Remember Mama" and excellent as Queen Victoria in "The Mudlark."

"Magic Carpet," which started as a low budget picture at Columbia, has been taken out of that class with a vengeance. It all started when Lucille Ball agreed to do the lead for Sam Katzman. Her price is $85,000 a picture.

Talk is that Columbia thought Lucille would refuse to do it. But not my girl. She'll do it before "The Greatest Show On Earth." Now, Cornel Wilde gets the male lead opposite Lucille, and that adds up the acting salaries. He also gets $85,000 per picture—so Mr. Katzman has an "A" production.

George Cukor, back from visiting Madrid, Athens, Paris, London, etc., says all the girls in Spain, for better or worse, try to look like Hollywood movie stars. He says there is a great pro--American feeling in both Spain and Greece. He drove down the street in Madrid and saw "Adam's Rib" which he directed, being advertised, "Being a ham," George said, "I went in and saw a few reels of it."

In Greece he says he saw the Marshall Plan in operation and watched a parade in which many American commodities were exhibited. He said Greece is grateful for the help we have given them.

Nancy Oakes writes that she got a terrible crack on the head in New York when she was in a taxi accident. She has been in bed ever since, suffering with a headache, but she expects to be well enough next week to go to South America.

She has had many invitations from friends to visit them there, she says, and she will be there for some time. I'm sorry, because I had hoped Nancy would come back to Hollywood where we all like her so much.

Snapshots of Hollywood collected at random:

David Niven is on crutches and unable to work in "Soldiers Three." He has badly torn muscles in his right leg.

Gale Russell joined Guy Madison over the weekend at Julian King's Catalina Guest Ranch, so you can ignore those separatoin rumors that have been circulating all week.

Although the premiere of "Cyrano De Bergerac," which was to have been held in Puerto Rico was called off, Jackie Robinson appeared there last week with "The Jackie Robinson Story."

Snub Pollard, old time comedian, has been signed by Willie Wyler for a character that he added to Laurence Olivier's picture, "Carrie." Laurence and Vivien kissed me goodbye and said au revoir Friday. They expected to leave Sunday, but because of the dock strike had to postpone their departure until tomorrow—providing they can get away.

Marjorie Main has had to flee her desert home near Palm Springs because of ants. She had to go back to Hollywood where she'll be safe.

There's much sentiment in the casting of Sally Cooper, 20-year-old daughter of Gladys Cooper, as Ethel Barrymore's niece in "Kind Lady." All her life Sally has worshipped at the shrine of Miss Barrymore, who is one of Glads' best friends.

So Siegel has joined Susan Hayward's give a gift to a G. I. campaign, and is sending cigars to Korea for the boys. Good for you, Sol!

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

NEW YORK (INS)—BEG TO REPORT have lived a life abysmally involved with superstition. Somebody told me at a tender age that only calamity could befall me if I walked under a ladder, dropped a comb, looked over the wrong shoulder at an old moon, or broke a mirror.

In my semi-advanced years, became an accredited kibitzer with a couple of baseball clubs at the tag end of the age of general illiteracy in baseball, an era of antic irresponsibility which ended (for me, at least) when Buck Newsom dropped off the big league carousel. Learned therein that it is fatal to put a hat on a bed or to resist picking up a hairpin found on a street.

Well, sir, was giving a mild massage to my fantastic electric typewriter not long ago—the one that has key labelled "short story" which, when pressed, turns out an entire novelette which I immediately sell for a million dollars (Chinese).

• — • — •

During this particular seance, however, I was writing a piece proving beyond the faintest question that there are no such things as flying saucers. Then one of the children who live at our place happened to climb on my back and, oddly enough, I noticed him. Couldn't think of his name, off-hand, but remarked that a single hair from his long and wondrous eyelashes had fallen upon his cheek.

"You've got a wish coming," I said, thickly.

"Whatta ya mean?" he asked, thinly.

I explained, as I picked the delicate hair off his cheek and placed it upon the back of his young paw, that if he made a wish and then blew his breath on his hand it would come true, if the breath dislodged the hair.

Then I felt uneasy immediately for implanting in the impressionable child this item of pagan nonsense which I had been told as a moppet. But by this time he had his eyes tightly closed and was blowing away. The blast that he gave to the bit of hair drove it out of sight.

"What did you wish for?" I asked.

"Is it okay to tell?" he inquired, like a brainy college quarterback asking for instructions in the latest rules. I assured him that I would regard his answer as so, so secret that I would tell only three friends—Winchell, Sullivan and Sobol.

Reassured, he then earnestly said:

"I wish there were such things as flying saucers."

• — • — •

Banishing him to his room until Whitsuntide, 1958, I went back to the task of proving that flying saucers did not exist. But in the back of my skull I kept wondering about the infantile processes which attend such beliefs. The other day in Chicago, at the annual convention of the country's radio news directors, I was called upon to represent the non-believers in a telephonic debate with the best known saucer believer, Frank Scully.

I asked the friend of "Dr. Gee," the so-called magnetic scientist, if he had ever seen a saucer and he replied obliquely that I should have stuck to football reporting, a suggestion to which I subscribed.

Tried to bring out to him that if the Air Force really had seized several grounded saucers, as he charges in "Behind The Flying Saucers," it would have solved all questions about this kind of propulsion and either used it in the Korean war or, if unable to duplicate it, would now be bellyaching to Congress for a super appropriation aimed at producing something like it.

Scully repeated his charge that the wicked "pentagonians" were keeping things from the public.

So I suggested that Scully, being a loyal and lovable American, should feel duty bound to take or send his "Dr. Gee" to the Pentagon to straighten out these stupid guardians of our national security.

He replied that he would protect "Dr. Gee's" identity as a priest protects the identity of one who confesses, and a lawyer protects his client.

The whole thing seemed so preposterous that I related it to my dear wife when I returned. But, for once, there was no laughter in her.

"I believe in flying saucers, too," she said. Have expected ever since to be served dinner out of a witch's cauldron—while wondering what the world's coming to.

City Officials Are To Attend Meeting

A meeting is to be held today in Hagerstown to discuss a program to maintain sewerage, water supply and disposal facilities in event of damage by enemy action or sabotage. Two city commissioners and two heads of departments from Cumberland will attend.

Attending will be Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder, Street Superintendent Martin M. Corrigan, Water and Light Commissioner George H. Tederick and City Plumber Simon K. Carroll.

The Hagerstown meeting has been called to prepare a plan for Allegany, Washington, Garrett and Frederick counties. George L. Hall, chief engineer of the State Department of Health, issued the invitation to Cumberland to send representatives.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Rehearsed Ad Lib

THE Groucho Marx television show, "You Bet Your Life," is identical with the Groucho Marx radio show except that television adds the moustache, the cigar, the eyeglasses, the wildly rolling eyes, the ferocious eyebrows and the rest of Marx's dishevelled countenance.

John Crosby

Groucho is an expert at the use of all three personal props and they contribute a great deal to the humor of the program. There is a certain loss, though. The Marx show originally acquired fame as the quickest and best ad lib operation in the business. It became less and less of a quiz show, which is all right with me, and more and more a gag show. However, the ad libs began to sound too round, too firm, too fully packed to be quite ad libs.

Television has taken this process even farther. "So you're a photographer," Groucho asks a pretty lady contestant. "If you were covering a murder, what would you do first?"

"I'd shoot the corpse."

"That's redundant. What's the next thing you'd do?"

"I'd shoot the witnesses."

"You've shot everyone in sight. Who do you work for, Tripod—a magazine or Murder, Inc.?"

As you can see, it sounds a little too practiced, a little too forced, to be quite real. Still, Groucho, an expert at milking lines till they're dry as sunbeams, gets more out of that material than you'd believe possible.

"I had a hobby hooking rugs," one girl told me.

She got a long, eloquent look. "You had a hobby hooking rugs?" inquired Groucho. "Where from—department stores?"

"I got so good at it, I started to teach."

This time Groucho put the cigar in operation, twirling it, puffing it, all but swallowing it. "A Fagin—teaching little children to hook rugs."

And so on. Groucho can belt a pun around for minutes at a time without it ever touching the ground. I'm prepared to believe he can do this extemporaneously but I somehow can't quite believe the contestants can handle their straight lines without prior warning.

Of course, the Marx TV show, like the radio show, is a rather special operation. It is film recording, which is to say it isn't kinescope. That means it is filmed in front of a studio audience and the filming can go on as long as possible. Then the editors get to work, cutting out the dull spots, and making both Groucho and the contestants appear at their best. They still sound as if they'd been rehearsing.

TV has imposed its curious requirements on Mr. Marx and his producers, the main requirement being that the contestants be reasonably fetching to look at. (Groucho has a lot of assets but good looks are not among them). Parading in front of the cameras you'll find a lot of pretty babes, who are not over-burdened with information. You never needed an awful lot of information to run up a pretty good score on the Marx show. However, the current crop of pretties, especially selected for television, I presume, don't seem to have any information at all tucked away in their handsome noodles.

The other night the contestants had no idea where Gettysburg was or the names of the capitals of Austria or Cuba. Two pairs of contestants wound up broke whereas the old radio contestants used to average a hundred bucks or so apiece. Fortunately, the quiz angle doesn't intrude much.

"You Bet Your Life" is fundamentally a tour de force for Groucho—his moustache, his sliding walk, and his puns—and it's a very funny story—even if they do rehearse those ad libs. Ultimately, I expect, the ad lib show will wind up with four high-priced writers and a full two weeks' rehearsal. They might even teach those pretty blondes where Gettysburg is.

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

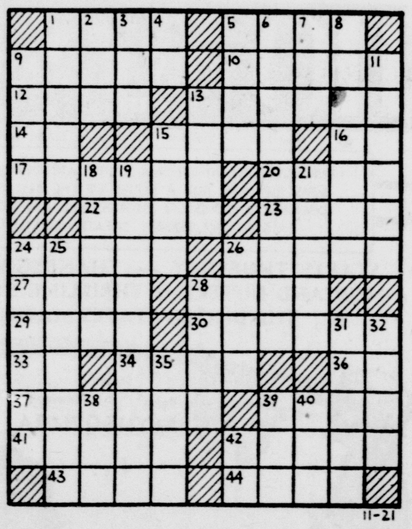
Yesterday's Answer



DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophes, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

foreign policy, placed all emphasis on domestic politics, let men like George Marshall, Robert Lovett and James Forrestal go, and handed the Defense Department over to the biggest money raiser of them all, Louis A. Johnson.

Truman, in brief, clearly decided that politics-as-usual was the receipt for success. Last November 7, the voters rejected this receipt. The fact is that in these times, politics-as-usual is not good politics. There are signs, including a number of his post-Korea appointments, that Truman now knows this. If he sends Bruce and Griffis to the vital London and Paris posts, solely on the basis of their labors in the rather grubby money-gathering political vineyard, it will show that the signs have been misleading. This is the real meaning of the case of the frustrated contributors.

Traders Restless; Market Performance Is Uneven

Prices flipflopped so often from the gain to the loss column and back again that trends were totally obscured at the close and plus and minus signs were completely mixed up.

A good showing by oil, building material and some rail and chemical stocks was partially offset by weakness in auto, radio-television and rubber issues.

Trading totaled 2,250,000 shares, second highest figure for any day this month, compared with 2,130,000 at the last full session Friday.

On spectacular response to a dividend notice pushed Baltimore & Ohio Railroad preferred $3.87 higher at $38.37 a share. The directors declared a $4 dividend on the four per cent non-cumulative issue, compared with $1 a year ago.

The B & O common was the most active stock on turnover of 42,600 shares, which carried it up 25 cents a share at $15.75. The B & O preferred was third most active on transfer of 34,100 shares, while sandwiched between them was New York Central common, down 12 cents at $17.87 on exchange of 41,200 shares.

Priced lower were Republic Steel, off $1.12 at $46; General Motors, 62 cents at $47.25; Chrysler, 75 cents at $69.37; Montgomery Ward, $1.87 at $64.87; Douglas Aircraft, 75 cents at $86, and Union Pacific, 75 cents at $98.50.

Higher prices were paid for American Can, up $1.75 at $100.75; Gulf Oil, $1.12 at $79.50; Johns-Manville, $1.50 at $47.50, and Lehigh Portland Cement, $1.62 at $49.

I doubt that, left to themselves, many children would go haywire over so-called horror entertainment. It seems to me that they have a pretty fair amount of common sense and are capable of arranging their own values.—Boris Karloff.

MAKING A CARD HIGHER

WHEN you hold a singly-guarded queen or a twice-guarded jack in the trump suit, you seldom have any hopes of taking a trick with it if the declarer's side has the higher honors. But such a card can sometimes be promoted into a trick-taker. If your partner makes a lead which can be ruffed by both the declarer and yourself, you have the automatic option of over-ruffing a trump smaller than your card, or of having your card boosted into winning position by use of a trump too high for you to over-ruff.

Traders Restless; Market Performance Is Uneven

Prices flipflopped so often from the gain to the loss column and back again that trends were totally obscured at the close and plus and minus signs were completely mixed up.

A good showing by oil, building material and some rail and chemical stocks was partially offset by weakness in auto, radio-television and rubber issues.

Trading totaled 2,250,000 shares, second highest figure for any day this month, compared with 2,130,000 at the last full session Friday.

On spectacular response to a dividend notice pushed Baltimore & Ohio Railroad preferred $3.87 higher at $38.37 a share. The directors declared a $4 dividend on the four per cent non-cumulative issue, compared with $1 a year ago.

The B & O common was the most active stock on turnover of 42,600 shares, which carried it up 25 cents a share at $15.75. The B & O preferred was third most active on transfer of 34,100 shares, while sandwiched between them was New York Central common, down 12 cents at $17.87 on exchange of 41,200 shares.

Priced lower were Republic Steel, off $1.12 at $46; General Motors, 62 cents at $47.25; Chrysler, 75 cents at $69.37; Montgomery Ward, $1.87 at $64.87; Douglas Aircraft, 75 cents at $86, and Union Pacific, 75 cents at $98.50.

Higher prices were paid for American Can, up $1.75 at $100.75; Gulf Oil, $1.12 at $79.50; Johns-Manville, $1.50 at $47.50, and Lehigh Portland Cement, $1.62 at $49.

"The Authority on Authorities"

MAKING A CARD HIGHER

WHEN you hold a singly-guarded queen or a twice-guarded jack in the trump suit, you seldom have any hopes of taking a trick with it if the declarer's side has the higher honors. But such a card can sometimes be promoted into a trick-taker. If your partner makes a lead which can be ruffed by both the declarer and yourself, you have the automatic option of over-ruffing a trump smaller than your card, or of having your card boosted into winning position by use of a trump too high for you to over-ruff.

Vulnerability and the bidding were not reported, except that South played at spades after East had bid hearts, on this interesting deal presented by Agatha D. Tiernan, brilliant Pittsburgh bridge instructor, in her sparkling new book, "First Aid for Beginners." It strikingly illustrates several points of defense.

"West led the heart 8," she reports. "East won with the K and played the A. East, knowing that the heart J is now good for a future discard, decides to lead another heart hoping his partner can over-ruff declarer. East carefully chose the 2, indicating, should his partner take the trick, that he would like a club lead, lower ranking of the suits in the dummy other than hearts or trump.

"If South does use his A or K to trump the heart, West's Q is good, so that East and West could take two heart tricks, one trump trick, one club trick and one diamond trick. Declarer, however, should discard a diamond on trick three to assure his making three-odd.

"Any other return lead by East at trick three would enable the declarer to make four-odd because he could draw trump, discard a losing diamond on the heart J and concede a club. Had East wished a diamond lead when he led the third heart, he would have led a high spot. He had the kings of both minors, but he wished to get the club lead first."

foreign policy, placed all emphasis on domestic politics, let men like George Marshall, Robert Lovett and James Forrestal go, and handed the Defense Department over to the biggest money raiser of them all, Louis A. Johnson.

Truman, in brief, clearly decided that politics-as-usual was the receipt for success. Last November 7, the voters rejected this receipt. The fact is that in these times, politics-as-usual is not good politics. There are signs, including a number of his post-Korea appointments, that Truman now knows this. If he sends Bruce and Griffis to the vital London and Paris posts, solely on the basis of their labors in the rather grubby money-gathering political vineyard, it will show that the signs have been misleading. This is the real meaning of the case of the frustrated contributors.

Council Divided On Pay Raise

Cost Of Living Bonus Approved By 3-2 Ballot

Roeder, Buchholtz Vote Against Plan

By a split vote, the Mayor and Council last night approved a cost of living bonus for all hourly paid city employes and a similar bonus to all salaried employes with several exceptions.

Voting against the proposal were Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder and Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz.

The bonus for hourly workers will amount to seven and one-half cents an hour and will become effective November 26.

Effective December 1, a bonus of $13 monthly will be paid to salaried employes with the exception of those whose salaries are established by special contract, and five employes who received salary adjustments recently.

The latter are City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery; Robert R. Golden, superintendent at Constitution Park; Miss Inez Shoemaker, secretary to the city engineer; Miss Nell Cozad, assistant to the ciyt auditor; and Miss Mary E. Clay, secretary to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Explaining his vote favoring the order, Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said men in his departments are underpaid.

Cites Morale

"We must do something to hold our men and keep up the morale of the departments," Long said.

Mayor Post commented that hourly paid workers must pay as much for a loaf of bread as "high officials." He added that City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson had given assurance that the plan could be worked out as far as appropriations were concerned.

Buchholtz withheld comment with the remark that he has not compiled sufficient data, but Mrs. Roeder read a detailed statement opposing the bonus action.

She pointed out that the increase would add $40,000 to the city's annual payroll. Therefore, starting next year the city must raise $190,000 to maintain city services at their present level, since a $150,000 surplus in the current budget will be expended at the end of the present fiscal year, she explained.

This means, Mrs. Roeder continued, that the city's operating levy must be increased, which requires legislative action and an amendment to the charter.

"I realize the wages of employes must be increased, and I am in favor of such an increase, but only after I know where the money is coming from in the future to pay for such an increase," Mrs. Roeder said.

"If a seven and one-half cent increase goes through now, the Department of Streets and Public Property must raise $5,000 in a cut to the bone appropriation. It is obvious, therefore, that to raise this money the Street Department must curtail services and most likely lay off employes."

Wages Compared

About half of the hourly workers affected are classified as laborers, Mrs. Roeder said. The bonus will bring their wages above those paid to laborers employed by the county and state and union men working for local contracting firms, she declared.

About 40 per cent of employes affected are police and firemen, whose salaries are "below the average going rate," Mrs. Roeder added.

"The present inflation is naturally affecting the city," she said. "Everything we purchase is costing more money. The city cannot pass on the burden of inflation like a business concern; it must either curtail its services or raise its taxes."

She concluded: "I certainly do endorse the setting up of a non-political committee to study at once where the city can get some revenue and curtail expenses."

This was proposed in a resolution introduced last night by Buchholtz. The council tabled it for one week.

Playing With Fire

Janet Ridgeley, of Ridgeley, W. Va., and Carroll Taylor, of Winchester Road, two of Allegany High School's top twirlers are seen here demonstrating their new fire batons. Handling these devices is considered an intricate feat in itself. Janet, a freshman has been twirling about a year and Carroll, a senior has been swinging batons since he was six years old. Both of these youngsters plan to participate in the local merchants balloon parade, opening the Christmas season here next Monday.

Thanksgiving Turkeys Priced Slightly Lower Than Last Year

There are plenty of turkeys available for Thanksgiving and the traditional holiday feast will cost, if anything, slightly less than last year.

Area turkey growers, one merchant said, have plentiful supplies available, with a ratio of two large to one small turkey, the size most in demand by smaller families.

The season, growers report, has been a good one, with birds growing better than usual.

The relative scarcity of the smaller turkeys, merchants said, will result in premium prices for the most desirable weights, especially among the double breasted varieties.

In one market, 16 to 20 pound toms will cost 55 cents a pound with hens selling for 65 cents.

Home dressed birds in the 20 pound range in another market are quoted at 57 cents, with 16-20 pound weights costing 61 cents. Young hens in the 10 pound range will cost 69 cents with smaller birds suitable for the small family demanding a premium price of 73 cents a pound.

Chickens suitable for the holiday will cost several cents a pound less than last year. Roasting chickens are available in the 47 to 59 cent price range, with stewing chickens quoted for about 50 cents a pound.

Ducks, a Thanksgiving favorite for many, will cost about 59 cents, down several cents from last year. Capons, in the 73 cent price range, are up about four cents.

Thanksgiving hams, a traditional Thanksgiving dish for many families, will cost about 50 cents a pound.

Most of the traditional dishes which accompany the noble bird are priced about the same, or slightly less than last year.

Fiscal Advisory Group Plan Is Tabled For Week

Five-Man Committee Would Study Policies

A resolution which would set up a Fiscal Advisory Committee to review fiscal policies and financiai operation of the city was presented last night at the session of the Mayor and Council.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, sponsor of the plan, made a motion to adopt the resolution but the motion died for want of a second.

The council then approved a motion by Mayor Thomas S. Post to table the matter for one week, by a 4-1 vote. Buchholtz dissented.

Under the resolution, the mayor would appoint five residents to serve on the Fiscal Advisory Committee.

Their duties would be to survey sources of income available to the city and review the charter and ordinances relating to fiscal policies and financial operation.

The committee would then make recommendations for any improvements to the system which they considered necessary.

Purpose of the review would be to see that "the most efficient and economical methods possible be used in the handling and disbursement of the funds of the city."

Following the meeting, Buchholtz commented:

"The people should know what is going on. We are facing a serious situation in the city's fiscal operations because of inflation."

Two bids to provide sewer cleaning equipment were read at the session and referred to Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder for tabulation and report.

James Maskell, Irvington, N. J., distributor for the Flexible Sewer Rod Equipment Company, offered $3,680.20 while the Champion Corporation, Hammond, Ind., bid $2,804.33

E. M. Rowley, business agent for Local 489, Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, asked about the progress of the plumbing ordinance and renewed earlier warnings about the dangers of plumbing installed by unauthorized persons and not inspected.

Rowley estimated that in the past seven months, since the time he first brought up the matter, $200,000 worth of plumbing work has been installed in the city. He added, "I doubt if $50,000 of that amount has been put in according to state law."

Buchholtz made a motion for Mayor Post to ask a "full investigation" by the Health Department of plumbing conditions, but there was no second.

Mayor Post closed the discussion by inviting Rowley to confer with him on the progress being made on the new ordinance.

R. S. Pomeroy renewed an earlier request regarding speeding construction of a new sewer on Michigan Avenue. Mrs. Roeder said she had scheduled the work for the winter months and it could not be done earlier.

South End Will Make Yule Plans

Plans for South Cumberland's Christmas celebration were begun yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the South End Businessmens' Association.

The association, at a meeting held in Rice's delicatessen, Laing Avenue, approved tentative plans for decorating Virginia Avenue during the Christmas season.

The group's Christmas Decorating committee will meet with Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, today at City Hall to plan co-operation with the city in Yule plans for South End.

To be discussed are plans for a lighted Christmas tree set up on Race Street as the center for holiday activities, and a program for a tree lighting ceremony.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Miss Ella Darling, psychiatric social worker for the Mental Hygiene Clinic of the State Department of Health here.

She discussed her work and how such a clinic fits into the plan of community health.

B. & O. Declares $4 Dividend

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio startled railroad financial circles today by declaring a $4 dividend for 1950 on its preferred stock.

The B&O paid a $1 dividend on its preferred last year, haltingly after turning the idea down when it came up the first time. It had paid $1 in 1948. The last dividend payment before that was in 1931. There still hasn't been any dividend on the common since then.

The 1950 payment will go out on December 21 to shareholders of record December 1.

The Board of Directors declared the dividend just before the annual stockholders meeting today. President Roy B. White advised the stockholders that the B&O's net income for the first ten months of 1950 was $11,907,946—up 119 per cent over the comparable period of 1949.

The location of new industries and the expansion of established ones along the B&O promises to increase annual revenues and the management is concentrating on operating economies, White reported.

The stockholders re-elected the present board of directors and the directors then met again to rename all the present executive officers.

Council Hears Discussion Of Housing Sites

Buchholtz, Post Clash In Session

The council chamber was filled almost to capacity, and majority of the 70 persons in the audience were on hand to give city officials their views on the housing situation.

Clash Develops

Buchholtz said the shelters for officers handling traffic lights should be restored in view of cold weather conditions, as a means of protecting health.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long commented that "we're three weeks ahead of you" and said officers are on duty at the lights one hour and off one hour.

Buchholtz said "They're on duty all day" and repeated his concern over health protection.

Long replied that "we have the health of the officers in mind" in handling the problem.

At this point Mayor Post said sharply "there should be no criticism of a commissioner in open meeting," adding that such matters should be taken up during executive sessions.

Buchholtz told the mayor "I think if we have anything on our mind, it should come up here."

Long said there was no "bad feeling" in the exchange and thanked Buchholtz for his suggestion.

Project Discussed

Leading off the discussion on the colored housing project site was L. R. Hartman, 900 Yale Street, who suggested centralizing the project in the Pine Avenue section, where colored families already reside.

The Cumberland Housing authority recently suggested both Thomas Street and McNamee's Hill as possible sites. The latter site was rejected several months ago because of the estimated $80,000 expense to the city of building an access road, but it is being reconsidered.

Charles Eline, Leiper Street, protested the McNamee's Hill location because no taxes would be derived from the project and because residents of the neighborhood "can't even get a $4,000 road in there."

Eline suggested "cleaning out the junk yard on Wineow Street" and locating the housing project in that area.

Mrs. C. H. Clingerman, Shades Lane, said the section has "the poorest streets in the city" and asked that the city spend its money in improving "what we already have" rather than to build an expensive access street "up a hill."

Mrs. Clingerman said she has resided in the area since 1931 and the only improvements in that time have been street lights and garbage collections. "But we were notified recently that our property has been reassessed," she added.

Referring to a remark by Water Commissioner George H. Tederick that the project for colored families should be located near their school, Mrs. Clingerman said:

"Some of the children in our neighborhood have to walk to Fort Hill High School. We used to have bus service until the streets got so bad."

Tederick recalled that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is reported to be planning "drastic changes" which would affect the proposed Thomas Street site.

William Lindner, Goethe Street, declared "We don't want to move negroes up from Thomas Street and have them dumped in our laps."

To this L. S. Rowan, Oak Street, replied that there are no negroes on Thomas Street "so it isn't a case of unloading."

Rowan, who appeared at last week's council meeting to protest the Thomas Street site, explained that the project would mean "taking off 20 to 60 per cent from our back yards and we don't like it."

Fred Wheeler, a World War II veteran who also spoke last week, asked for democratic procedure and pointed out that no colored persons were at the session. "Let's not determine their fate when they're not here," he said.

Central Site Noted

William Flora, Yale Street, said "other cities have Harlem sections. Let's build a central place for colored families." He protested the McNamee's Hill site on the grounds it would depreciate property values.

T. L. Popp commented the city should not build an $80,000 access road when "so many other sites are available."

Popp said there are 42 lots on Wills Creek Avenue which have all utilities. Mayor Post asked about objections and Popp answered "There shouldn't be any."

Mayor Post and City Attorney W. Earle Cobey pointed out that the Housing Authority has charge of selecting the site. The mayor added that the city has no report from that group as yet.

There will be a 10 a. m. service at the Dawson Church with the choir of the church singing special music.

Foul Air Cause Of Mishap At City Reservoir

Gas Company Crews Complete Probe

Officials of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company said yesterday they had conducted a thorough investigation at the manhole near Fort Hill reservoir where two city employes were overcome by fumes Friday.

F. S. Goss, a foreman for the company said a crew of men investigating, claim there is no evidence of natural gas in the manhole. The nearest gas main or gas line is on Dorn Avenue about 250 feet distant.

The gas men determined however, that an exhaust line from a pump in the reservoir pump house goes into a nearby manhole, and said it is possible that gasoline leaking there, as well as fumes, could seep through the ground and settle in the manhole where the victims were overcome.

Goss also explained that the manhole in question is over eight feet deep, and there is no way of ventilating it. He said the hole had not been opened or entered for sometime, and it is quite possible it was filled with foul air.

Carbon dioxide, gasoline fumes, or carbon monoxide from the pump exhaust could all be contributing factors, however it seems more likely that an accumulation of foul air merely crowded out the oxygen, he explained.

Goss said that holes of this character should be opened and aired before men venture into them.

The two men who were overcome and rescued by City Police are Thomas B. Mears, of 1138 Shades Lane and Robert J. Corbin, 52, of 23 Williams Street. Both have recovered from their experience.

Kiwanians Plan Apple Sale

If you're in the market for apples, wait until this Saturday to stock up on your supply.

The Cumberland Kiwanis Club has selected November 25 for its "Kids Day Apple Sale," with proceeds to go to its Sunshine Camp fund.

Eight stands will be set up on Baltimore Street that day, manned by members of the Kiwanis Club and their wives. Hours will be from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m.

Four different varieties of apples will be on sale, and buyers will be asked to give as much as they care to. No definite price will be set.

Carl F. Schmutz, chairman, said it is hoped to raise about $750 through the apple sale, the same amount as was realized from last year's sale.

The Sunshine Camp is operated for six weeks each summer at MacDonald Terrace for deserving boys and girls recommended to the club.

Annual cost of operating the camp amounts to about $2,500. Of that amount, half is raised through member subscriptions while the remainder comes from benefit events held during the year by the Kiwanians.

Schmutz said the club plans to make the apple sale an annual event.

Other members of the committee in charge are F. Lee Fresh, Charles F. Helmrich, William J. Edwards and Dr. Albert Cook, club president, who is serving in an ex-officio capacity.

The other will be a report by Charles D. Fair, chairman of the by-laws committee, on proposed changes in the by-laws and constitution. A vote on both reports must be taken, Tabler said.

A social hour with refreshments will follow the session.

Roads Are Slick As Snow Falls In Tri-State Area

Sub-Freezing Winds Accompany Storm

State Police in three states last night advised motorists to drive with caution as highways became slick with the first general snow of the season.

In mountaineous areas, the snow, accompanied by heavy and below freezing winds, made driving hazardous. West Virginia road crews were at work on Route 50 in the Alleganies.

A light snow began blowing near this city about 7 p. m. and in the city at 9 p. m.

In Garrett County, State Police reported an inch of snow and highways slippery. Motorists were advised to drive with caution.

At 9 p. m., West Virginia State Police at Romney said the light snow falling in that area was disappearing as fast as it fell.

Some two inches of snow was reported in the Alleganies and Grant County road crews were cindering the roads. Winds in that area were reported high and freezing.

Elkins, W. Va., reported two inches of snow with roads still passable as a result of the snowfall which began as darkness set in.

Frostburg reported a temperature of about 37 degrees at 9 p. m. It started snowing there about 7 p. m. and was still lying on the roof tops but blowing about the streets. Snow began falling in the Westernport area about 9:30 p. m.

Deal, Pa., one of the coldest spots of the area, reported a temperature of 26, the ground covered with snow and still coming down hard.

Thomas, W. Va., reported an inch and a half of snow at 9 p. m. with the thermometer at 38 and still snowing.

Both the Telephone and Potomac Edison Companies reported fairly high winds in this area but said no trouble had been reported.

Authorities said radio reports from Pennsylvania indicated the snow was general in the Tri-State area.

Roads in the Grantsville area were reported very slippery late last night. At 10:30 p. m., it was still snowing there and roads were becoming covered with snow in spots.

Hayes, pastor of Second Baptist Church, will lead in prayer and will read President Truman's proclamation. Rev. Linger will bring the Invocation and will lead the responsive reading.

The First Baptist Church choir will sing two special numbers: "Praise the Lord, O My Soul" by Watson and "Now Thank We All Our God" by Mendelssohn.

Adventists Assist Burned-Out Family

Contributions by residents of the Oldtown section at the request of the Seventh Day Adventists, have been responsible for the supply of needed clothing for the Samuel James family, hard hit when their home was destroyed by fire recently.

Rev. Oscar B. Gerhart, Adventist pastor here, organized a group of his members to canvass the homes in the Oldtown district and invited neighbors of the stricken family to contribute money and clothing.

Money collected was placed on deposit at a Cumberland store for the use of Mrs. James in purchasing needed clothing. Clothing donations were delivered directly to Mrs. James.

The Dorcas Society of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination which specializes in humanitarian welfare work here and elsewhere has helped 14,229,645 persons in need the past four years, according to Rev. Gerhart, and has reported 7,542,201 articles of clothing given away during that period. Their local clothing depot is operated in connection with the church at 41 Oak Street in this city.

Air Force Recruiting Main Station, Martinsburg, W. Va., on November 20, and they will be sent to Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, for basic training.

Ernest L. Shrene, 19, of Dawson, enlisted in the regular Army, unassigned, on November 20, and will be sent to Fort George G. Meade for training and assignment, Biehn said.

Council Divided On Pay Raise

Cost Of Living Bonus Approved By 3-2 Ballot

Roeder, Buchholtz Vote Against Plan

By a split vote, the Mayor and Council last night approved a cost of living bonus for all hourly paid city employes and a similar bonus to all salaried employes with several exceptions.

Voting against the proposal were Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder and Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz.

The bonus for hourly workers will amount to seven and one-half cents an hour and will become effective November 26.

Effective December 1, a bonus of $13 monthly will be paid to salaried employes with the exception of those whose salaries are established by special contract, and five employes who received salary adjustments recently.

The latter are City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery; Robert R. Golden, superintendent at Constitution Park; Miss Inez Shoemaker, secretary to the city engineer; Miss Nell Cozad, assistant to the ciyt auditor; and Miss Mary E. Clay, secretary to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Explaining his vote favoring the order, Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said men in his departments are underpaid.

Cites Morale

"We must do something to hold our men and keep up the morale of the departments," Long said.

Mayor Post commented that hourly paid workers must pay as much for a loaf of bread as "high officials." He added that City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson had given assurance that the plan could be worked out as far as appropriations were concerned.

Buchholtz withheld comment with the remark that he has not compiled sufficient data, but Mrs. Roeder read a detailed statement opposing the bonus action.

She pointed out that the increase would add $40,000 to the city's annual payroll. Therefore, starting next year the city must raise $190,000 to maintain city services at their present level, since a $150,000 surplus in the current budget will be expended at the end of the present fiscal year, she explained.

This means, Mrs. Roeder continued, that the city's operating levy must be increased, which requires legislative action and an amendment to the charter.

"I realize the wages of employes must be increased, and I am in favor of such an increase, but only after I know where the money is coming from in the future to pay for such an increase," Mrs. Roeder said.

"If a seven and one-half cent increase goes through now, the Department of Streets and Public Property must raise $5,000 in a cut to the bone appropriation. It is obvious, therefore, that to raise this money the Street Department must curtail services and most likely lay off employes."

Wages Compared

About half of the hourly workers affected are classified as laborers, Mrs. Roeder said. The bonus will bring their wages above those paid to laborers employed by the county and state and union men working for local contracting firms, she declared.

About 40 per cent of employes affected are police and firemen, whose salaries are "below the average going rate," Mrs. Roeder added.

"The present inflation is naturally affecting the city," she said. "Everything we purchase is costing more money. The city cannot pass on the burden of inflation like a business concern; it must either curtail its services or raise its taxes."

She concluded: "I certainly do endorse the setting up of a non-political committee to study at once where the city can get some revenue and curtail expenses."

This was proposed in a resolution introduced last night by Buchholtz. The council tabled it for one week.

Playing With Fire

Janet Ridgeley, of Ridgeley, W. Va., and Carroll Taylor, of Winchester Road, two of Allegany High School's top twirlers are seen here demonstrating their new fire batons. Handling these devices is considered an intricate feat in itself. Janet, a freshman has been twirling about a year and Carroll, a senior has been swinging batons since he was six years old. Both of these youngsters plan to participate in the local merchants balloon parade, opening the Christmas season here next Monday.

Thanksgiving Turkeys Priced Slightly Lower Than Last Year

There are plenty of turkeys available for Thanksgiving and the traditional holiday feast will cost, if anything, slightly less than last year.

Area turkey growers, one merchant said, have plentiful supplies available, with a ratio of two large to one small turkey, the size most in demand by smaller families.

The season, growers report, has been a good one, with birds growing better than usual.

The relative scarcity of the smaller turkeys, merchants said, will result in premium prices for the most desirable weights, especially among the double breasted varieties.

In one market, 16 to 20 pound toms will cost 55 cents a pound with hens selling for 65 cents.

Home dressed birds in the 20 pound range in another market are quoted at 57 cents, with 16-20 pound weights costing 61 cents. Young hens in the 10 pound range will cost 69 cents with smaller birds suitable for the small family demanding a premium price of 73 cents a pound.

Chickens suitable for the holiday will cost several cents a pound less than last year. Roasting chickens are available in the 47 to 59 cent price range, with stewing chickens quoted for about 50 cents a pound.

Ducks, a Thanksgiving favorite for many, will cost about 59 cents, down several cents from last year. Capons, in the 73 cent price range, are up about four cents.

Thanksgiving hams, a traditional Thanksgiving dish for many families, will cost about 50 cents a pound.

Most of the traditional dishes which accompany the noble bird are priced about the same, or slightly less than last year.

Fiscal Advisory Group Plan Is Tabled For Week

Five-Man Committee Would Study Policies

A resolution which would set up a Fiscal Advisory Committee to review fiscal policies and financial operation of the city was presented last night at the session of the Mayor and Council.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, sponsor of the plan, made a motion to adopt the resolution but the motion died for want of a second.

The council then approved a motion by Mayor Thomas S. Post to table the matter for one week, by a 4-1 vote. Buchholtz dissented.

Under the resolution, the mayor would appoint five residents to serve on the Fiscal Advisory Committee.

Their duties would be to survey sources of income available to the city and review the charter and ordinances relating to fiscal policies and financial operation.

The committee would then make recommendations for any improvements to the system which they considered necessary.

Purpose of the review would be to see that "the most efficient and economical methods possible be used in the handling and disbursement of the funds of the city."

Following the meeting, Buchholtz commented:

"The people should know what is going on. We are facing a serious situation in the city's fiscal operations because of inflation."

Two bids to provide sewer cleaning equipment were read at the session and referred to Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder for tabulation and report.

James Maskell, Irvington, N. J., distributor for the Flexible Sewer Rod Equipment Company, offered $3,680.20 while the Champion Corporation, Hammond, Ind., bid $2,804.33

E. M. Rowley, business agent for Local 489, Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, asked about the progress of the plumbing ordinance and renewed earlier warnings about the dangers of plumbing installed by unauthorized persons and not inspected.

Rowley estimated that in the past seven months, since the time he first brought up the matter, $200,000 worth of plumbing work has been installed in the city. He added, "I doubt if $50,000 of that amount has been put in according to state law."

Buchholtz made a motion for Mayor Post to ask a "full investigation" by the Health Department of plumbing conditions, but there was no second.

Mayor Post closed the discussion by inviting Rowley to confer with him on the progress being made on the new ordinance.

R. S. Pomeroy renewed an earlier request regarding speeding construction of a new sewer on Michigan Avenue. Mrs. Roeder said she had scheduled the work for the winter months and it could not be done earlier.

South End Will Make Yule Plans

Plans for South Cumberland's Christmas celebration were begun yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the South End Businessmens' Association.

The association, at a meeting held in Rice's delicatessen, Laing Avenue, approved tentative plans for decorating Virginia Avenue during the Christmas season.

The group's Christmas Decorating committee will meet with Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, today at City Hall to plan co-operation with the city in Yule plans for South End.

To be discussed are plans for a lighted Christmas tree set up on Race Street as the center for holiday activities, and a program for a tree lighting ceremony.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Miss Ella Darling, psychiatric social worker for the Mental Hygiene Clinic of the State Department of Health here.

She discussed her work and how such a clinic fits into the plan of community health.

B. & O. Declares $4 Dividend

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio startled railroad financial circles today by declaring a $4 dividend for 1950 on its preferred stock.

The B&O paid a $1 dividend on its preferred last year, haltingly after turning the idea down when it came up the first time. It had paid $1 in 1948. The last dividend payment before that was in 1931. There still hasn't been any dividend on the common since then.

The 1950 payment will go out on December 21 to shareholders of record December 1.

The Board of Directors declared the dividend just before the annual stockholders meeting today. President Roy B. White advised the stockholders that the B&O's net income for the first ten months of 1950 was $11,907,946—up 119 per cent over the comparable period of 1949.

The location of new industries and the expansion of established ones along the B&O promises to increase annual revenues and the management is concentrating on operating economies, White reported.

The stockholders re-elected the present board of directors and the directors then met again to rename all the present executive officers.

Council Hears Discussion Of Housing Sites

Buchholtz, Post Clash In Session

The council chamber was filled almost to capacity, and majority of the 70 persons in the audience were on hand to give city officials their views on the housing situation.

Clash Develops

Buchholtz said the shelters for officers handling traffic lights should be restored in view of cold weather conditions, as a means of protecting health.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long commented that "we're three weeks ahead of you" and said officers are on duty at the lights one hour and off one hour.

Buchholtz said "They're on duty all day" and repeated his concern over health protection.

Long replied that "we have the health of the officers in mind" in handling the problem.

At this point Mayor Post said sharply "there should be no criticism of a commissioner in open meeting," adding that such matters should be taken up during executive sessions.

Buchholtz told the mayor "I think if we have anything on our mind, it should come up here."

Long said there was no "bad feeling" in the exchange and thanked Buchholtz for his suggestion.

Project Discussed

Leading off the discussion on the colored housing project site was L. R. Hartman, 900 Yale Street, who suggested centralizing the project in the Pine Avenue section, where colored families already reside.

The Cumberland Housing authority recently suggested both Thomas Street and McNamee's Hill as possible sites. The latter site was rejected several months ago because of the estimated $80,000 expense to the city of building an access road, but it is being reconsidered.

Charles Eline, Leiper Street, protested the McNamee's Hill location because no taxes would be derived from the project and because residents of the neighborhood "can't even get a $4,000 road in there."

Eline suggested "cleaning out the junk yard on Wineow Street" and locating the housing project in that area.

Mrs. C. H. Clingerman, Shades Lane, said the section has "the poorest streets in the city" and asked that the city spend its money in improving "what we already have" rather than to build an expensive access street "up a hill."

Mrs. Clingerman said she has resided in the area since 1931 and the only improvements in that time have been street lights and garbage collections. "But we were notified recently that our property has been reassessed," she added.

Referring to a remark by Water Commissioner George H. Tederick that the project for colored families should be located near their school, Mrs. Clingerman said:

"Some of the children in our neighborhood have to walk to Fort Hill High School. We used to have bus service until the streets got so bad."

Tederick recalled that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is reported to be planning "drastic changes" which would affect the proposed Thomas Street site.

William Lindner, Goethe Street, declared "We don't want to move negroes up from Thomas Street and have them dumped in our laps."

To this L. S. Rowan, Oak Street, replied that there are no negroes on Thomas Street "so it isn't a case of unloading."

Rowan, who appeared at last week's council meeting to protest the Thomas Street site, explained that the project would mean "taking off 20 to 60 per cent from our back yards and we don't like it."

Fred Wheeler, a World War II veteran who also spoke last week, asked for democratic procedure and pointed out that no colored persons were at the session. "Let's not determine their fate when they're not here," he said.

Central Site Noted

William Flora, Yale Street, said "other cities have Harlem sections. Let's build a central place for colored families." He protested the McNamee's Hill site on the grounds it would depreciate property values.

T. L. Popp commented the city should not build an $80,000 access road when "so many other sites are available."

Popp said there are 42 lots on Wills Creek Avenue which have all utilities. Mayor Post asked about objections and Popp answered "There shouldn't be any."

Mayor Post and City Attorney W. Earle Cobey pointed out that the Housing Authority has charge of selecting the site. The mayor added that the city has no report from that group as yet.

In her senior year at Fort Hill she was given membership in the National Honor Society, because of her scholarship and leadership activities. She hopes to do stenographic work in service.

Foul Air Cause Of Mishap At City Reservoir

Gas Company Crews Complete Probe

Officials of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company said yesterday they had conducted a thorough investigation at the manhole near Fort Hill reservoir where two city employes were overcome by fumes Friday.

F. S. Goss, a foreman for the company said a crew of men investigating, claim there is no evidence of natural gas in the manhole. The nearest gas main or gas line is on Dorn Avenue about 250 feet distant.

The gas men determined however, that an exhaust line from a pump in the reservoir pump house goes into a nearby manhole, and said it is possible that gasoline leaking there, as well as fumes, could seep through the ground and settle in the manhole where the victims were overcome.

Goss also explained that the manhole in question is over eight feet deep, and there is no way of ventilating it. He said the hole had not been opened or entered for sometime, and it is quite possible it was filled with foul air.

Carbon dioxide, gasoline fumes, or carbon monoxide from the pump exhaust could all be contributing factors, however it seems more likely that an accumulation of foul air merely crowded out the oxygen, he explained.

Goss said that holes of this character should be opened and aired before men venture into them.

The two men who were overcome and rescued by City Police are Thomas B. Mears, of 1138 Shades Lane and Robert J. Corbin, 52, of 23 Williams Street. Both have recovered from their experience.

Kiwanians Plan Apple Sale

If you're in the market for apples, wait until this Saturday to stock up on your supply.

The Cumberland Kiwanis Club has selected November 25 for its "Kids Day Apple Sale," with proceeds to go to its Sunshine Camp fund.

Eight stands will be set up on Baltimore Street that day, manned by members of the Kiwanis Club and their wives. Hours will be from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m.

Four different varieties of apples will be on sale, and buyers will be asked to give as much as they care to. No definite price will be set.

Carl F. Schmutz, chairman, said it is hoped to raise about $750 through the apple sale, the same amount as was realized from last year's sale.

The Sunshine Camp is operated for six weeks each summer at MacDonald Terrace for deserving boys and girls recommended to the club.

Annual cost of operating the camp amounts to about $2,500. Of that amount, half is raised through member subscriptions while the remainder comes from benefit events held during the year by the Kiwanians.

Schmutz said the club plans to make the apple sale an annual event.

Adventists Assist Burned-Out Family

Contributions by residents of the Oldtown section at the request of the Seventh Day Adventists, have been responsible for the supply of needed clothing for the Samuel James family, hard hit when their home was destroyed by fire recently.

Rev. Oscar B. Gerhart, Adventist pastor here, organized a group of his members to canvass the homes in the Oldtown district and invited neighbors of the stricken family to contribute money and clothing.

Money collected was placed on deposit at a Cumberland store for the use of Mrs. James in purchasing needed clothing. Clothing donations were delivered directly to Mrs. James.

The Dorcas Society of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination which specializes in humanitarian welfare work here and elsewhere has helped 14,229,645 persons in need the past four years, according to Rev. Gerhart, and has reported 7,542,201 articles of clothing given away during that period. Their local clothing depot is operated in connection with the church at 41 Oak Street in this city.

3 Area Men Enlist In Armed Services

Three men have enlisted in the armed forces, two going to the U. S. Air Forces and one to the regular Army, according to M. Sgt. Clarence Biehn, of the local Army recruiting office.

Biehn gave the enlistees who go to the U. S. Air Forces as follows: Kenneth H. Shaw, 20, of Lonaconing, and Gerald N. Lambert, Wiley Ford, W. Va. Both men enlisted at the U. S. Air Force Recruiting Main Station, Martinsburg, W. Va., on November 20, and they will be sent to Lackland Air Base, San Antonio, Texas, for basic training.

Ernest L. Shrene, 19, of Dawson, enlisted in the regular Army, unassigned, on November 20, and will be sent to Fort George G. Meade for training and assignment, Biehn said.

YANKS AT MANCHURIAN FRONTIER

Allied Blows Broke Morale, Prisoners Say

Chinese Reds Also Deny Volunteering

TOKYO, Nov. 20 (AP)—The shock of Allied firepower has demoralized Chinese Communist morale in Korea, Gen. MacArthur's headquarters said today.

The word comes from Chinese Communist prisoners, who also deny they came to Korea as volunteers, headquarters reported. Red China insists only Chinese "volunteers" are fighting in Korea.

An intelligence spokesman said these statements were gained from interrogating approximately 150 prisoners from one division of the Chinese Communist 38th Army.

Deny Volunteering

The captives said the army's morale had been high before it was hit by the Allied sledgehammer in Northwest Korea Nov. 5. Chinese soldiers had not expected anything like this blow, the spokesman said.

Not only did they deny volunteering, the spokesman reported, but they said they did not know any Chinese who did volunteer. They seemed a little surprised by the entire question of "volunteers."

The prisoners said no units in their division of the 38th Army were integrated with North Korean troops. This belied another claim of the Peiping radio—that Chinese and North Koreans were fighting shoulder to shoulder.

Supplies Were Problem

Actually, the prisoners added, there was very little contact with the North Koreans and even this much was marked by mutual dislike and suspicion.

The 38th Army got no help from North Koerans in maintaining supply lines from the Manchurian side of the Yalu river. Supplies, the prisoners said, were an unexpected problem. They had never encountered complete superiority in the air and the consequent harassment of convoys. Food was always short.

Dates of movements of the 38th Army, the spokesman said, show that Communist China began preparing to put Chinese troops into the fight during the first weeks of October.

Whether the Chinese troops knew they were going to meet U. N. forces is not clear, the intelligence spokesman said. Prisoners said their company officers had been ordered only to "assist the North Koreans in driving out the invader, conquer and occupy the land."

Philippine Troop Leader Protests

SEOUL, Nov. 20 (AP)—The commander of 1,200 Philippine troops who volunteered for duty in the Korean war protested officially today that his men were not being used as a single fighting unit and asked that they be withdrawn.

Col. Mariano Azurin, commander of the Philippine army's 10th Combat Battalion, also complained that his men were not supplied with winter gear, and that the Korean winter was too cold for the fighters from the tropical Philippines.

Azurin, a graduate of the U. S. armored combat school at Fort Knox, Ky., directed his protest to the Philippine government through the U. S. Eighth Army and Gen. MacArthur's United Nations command in Tokyo.

Lane Names Frampton To Board Of Education

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 20 (AP)—Gov. Lane today appointed J. Jerome Frampton of Federalsburg to the State Board of Education.

Frampton will serve a seven-year term, which began last May. He succeeds Horace M. Morgan of Queen Anne.

Calif. Sen. Downey Will Resign; Nixon To Take His Place

Richard M. Nixon — Sheridan Downey

SACRAMENTO, Nov. 20 (AP)—Sen. Sheridan Downey (D-Calif) announced today he will resign 30 days before the end of his term and Gov. Warren said he will name Senator-elect Richard M. Nixon in his place.

Downey told newsmen in Warren's presence that he will resign effective midnight of Nov. 30 for reasons of health.

He said he has not discussed the move with Nixon, a Republican who was elected Nov. 7 to succeed him. Downey, a senator for 12 years, did not seek another term.

Normally, Nixon would take office Jan. 1. His early seating will give him priority over other new senators in committee assignments.

However, Sen. Downey emphasized that this was just a by-product of his intended resignation. The real reason, he said, was that while his health has improved, he did not feel up to another session of the Senate when Congress reconvenes Nov. 27.

Shigemitsu, Jap Wartime Foreign Minister, Freed

TOKYO, Tuesday, Nov. 21 (AP)—Mamoru Shigemitsu, Japan's wartime foreign minister, was released from Sugamo prison today. He was paroled from a seven-year sentence as a war criminal despite a Russian protest.

Shigemitsu was convicted at the 1948 war crimes trial. He was sentenced to seven years, the lightest term imposed by the international court. Good behavior made him eligible for parole last March.

'Mr. Shigemitsu, has been released from Sugamo prison on parole," his attorney, George A. Furness, said in a statement. "It is not a pardon. His sentence has not expired.

"He is not free, it merely means that instead of serving the remainder of his seven-year sentence in prison he may go home. There are some of us who feel that he never should have been indicted, never tried, convicted or sentenced, but his vindication must come later, perhaps with the writing of history."

Paul Patterson Resigns As Head Of A. S. Abell Co.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP) — Paul Patterson, for 31 years president of the A. S. Abell Company which publishes the Baltimore Sunpapers, has offered his resignation and asked to be retired, it was announced tonight.

The resignation is effective January 31. Patterson, who will remain a member of the board of directors, will be succeeded as president by William F. Schmick, Sr., now executive vice president.

Patterson joined the staff as managing editor of the Evening Sun in 1911. His newspaper experience spans more than 50 years, including a long tenure as a member of the board of directors of the Associated Press, from which he retired this year.

U. N. Rejects Russia's Terms For Peace Plan Cooperation

Nine-Power Resolution Is Adopted

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—The United Nations Assembly today rejected Russia's terms for cooperating in the development of Secretary-General Trygve Lie's 20-year peace program. Instead, it adopted a nine-power resolution calling for the appropriate U. N. bodies to work on various phases of Lie's plan.

The backbone of the Secretary-General's 10-point plan was a series of high-level Security Council meetings at which foreign ministers, prime ministers and other top officials would tackle the U. N.'s outstanding problems.

Sovet Foreign Minister Andrei Y. Vishinsky had countered with a series of conditions, including the participation of Red China in the council meetings and the absolute prohibition of the atomic bomb.

9-Power Plan Adopted 51-5

The 60-nation Assembly beat down each section of the Soviet resolution in a paragraph-by-paragraph vote. Its vote for the nine-power plan was 51 in favor, five (Soviet bloc) against, and one (Nationalist China) abstention. None of the Soviet points received more than 16 votes.

The Lie program was elaborated by the Secretary-General last spring and presented by him to President Truman, Prime Minister Attlee and Prime Minister Stalin. Besides the periodic conferences, it calls for long range economic and financial policies to raise world living standards, and suggests intensified efforts to break the deadlock on atomic energy.

Just before the vote, Soviet Delegate Jacob A. Malik stepped up to the rostrum and repeated his delegation's charges that Lie's program was ghost-written by the U. S. State Department.

Lie angrily denied the charge.

Aired By Assistants

He said he wrote the program himself "with the help only of my own eight assistants."

Defeat of the Soviet demand for a Red Chinese seat does not mean that the Communist Chinese will not be given U. N. representation. This delicate question is still under consideration elsewhere in the Assembly. The vote today merely meant that the assembly refused to make such a specific issue as Chinese representation a condition for approval of the Lie program.

Earlier, British Delegate Kenneth Younger charged that the Russians were not really anxious to have the Chinese Communists in the United Nations anyway.

NAM Proposes "Defense Tax"

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Organized business suggested today that a "defense tax" on top of corporate income levies be substituted for the administration's excess profits tax proposal.

Despite a committee ban against discussion of anything except an excess profits tax, the NAM got its alternative proposal into the House Ways and Means Committee record.

What Sligh did was to advise the committee its records contained an inaccurate description of the NAM proposal. He then explained the inaccuracy and quoted the associations' tax program.

However, for the fourth time since the hearings started, the committee reiterated its intention to stick to the subject of excess profits. By a vote of 15 Democrats to 10 Republicans, it ruled that witnesses could not comment on a substitute plan proposed by Rep. Reed of New York, top Republican committee member.

The Reed plan would let corporations pay a maximum corporate income tax of 55 per cent or, if they elected to pay under an excess profits tax plan, they could pay a minimum of 50 per cent of their net income.

Symington Gives NPA Mild Go-Slow Warning

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—W. Stuart Symington today issued a mild go-slow warning to the National Production Authority, which is considering the possibility of imposing an all-industry materials control system next July 1.

The defense coordinator told a news conference that if the government uses "too heavy a hand" on controls before military production hits full stride it "might hurt the economy."

NEWPORT, R. I., Nov. 20 (AP) — Newport hospital announced today that it will photograph all newborn infants as an aid to identification.

Douglas Offers Labor Law Plan At CIO Meeting

Would Retain Some T-H Act Provisions

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP)—Sen. Paul H. Douglas (D-Ill) proposed at the CIO convention today a new labor law considerably less favorable to labor than what the CIO has demanded.

The Democratic Senator is known as a "liberal" and also has been noted for his independent thinking on party policies.

At the same time Sen. Douglas commented that the Taft-Hartley Act, though "on the whole an iniquious law," has not had "as bad effect as expected."

He said any new labor law should have two requirements that the old Wagner Act, liked by labor, did not have.

One would require unions to bargain with employers. Douglas said there have been some instances when they have refused to do so.

The other would require unions which have union shop agreements with employers to keep initiation fees down.

Douglas also suggested that several provisions of the Taft-Hartley law should be retained. These require regular financial statements from unions and regular union elections, and prevent unions from expelling members for certain reasons if such expulsion would cause members to lose their jobs.

CIO President Philip Murray noted that Douglas' views differed in some respects from those of CIO leaders, but he suggested the 600 delegates give consideration to the Senator's "constructive and intelligent" suggestions.

Murray earlier asserted that the recent election campaign was fought strictly on confused international issues and not on pressing domestic problems.

Therefore, he said, he does not consider the election results a repudiation either of CIO principles or of President Truman's domestic policies.

U. S. Tanks Make Perfect Score

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Army today claimed a perfect score for a U. S. Patton tank company in a battle against Russian made T-34 tanks in North Korea more than two weeks ago.

The Army said 16 Pattons knocked out 16 of the Red Tanks, with American losses confined to rapidly repaired exterior damage to four Pattons.

The action, belatedly reported today, took place at Choryongwan, about 25 miles southeast of the Manchurian border, between Oct. 30 and Nov. 4. The fight occurred before the 24th U. S. Division withdrew southward after Chinese Communist forces entered Korea in large numbers.

Described as "typical" achievements by the Pattons were the destruction of two Red tanks at 800 yards and another at 600 yards. The Pattons, a modernized version of the Gen. Pershing tank, mount 90-millimeter guns. Their Russian-built adversaries carried 85 mm. guns.

Bridge Washed Out By Flood Waters

Onrushing flood waters moved out a frame bridge crossing this stream near Bakersfield, Calif., yesterday as creeks and rivers of central California rioted under pressure of the past days' heavy rains. Thousands have been driven from their homes and damage is counted in the millions.

100 New Mexico Prison Inmates Stage Uprising

Tear Gas And Riot Guns Quell Outbreak

SANTA FE, N. M., Nov. 20 (AP)—About 100 convicts armed with crude weapons rioted for nearly an hour today behind turreted walls of the New Maxico state penitentiary.

The uprising was put down by prison guards and 24 state and city police armed with tear gas and riot guns.

The yelling, swearing prisoners wrecked two offices and the prison canteen before they submitted. None escaped.

Hold Yard For Hour

Six guards and the secretary of a Mexican consul—a prison visitor—were injured, none seriously.

Reasons for the outbreak were not clear. But Mexican Consul Bernardo Blanco, who was trapped in a guardhouse by the rioters, said:

"The men told me they 'had to do it' because of bad treatment."

Prison Warden Howell Gage said merely the riot had something to do with a "prisoner who was out of line." He did not amplify.

Armed With Knives, Pipe

Gage ordered all prisoners to the mess hall after the riot. Silence met his request: "If any one has anything to say right now, stand up."

Gage fixed the number of rioters at about half the 200 convicts in the exercise yard. A search after the riot disclosed a large number were armed with straight razors, knives, crude blackjacks, chains, pieces of pipe.

Six Burned By Blast In Big Water Conduit

DETROIT, Nov. 20 (AP)—An explosion in a giant water conduit 95 feet below the ground burned six persons tonight, one seriously.

Twelve others trapped in the tunnel spent a terrifying 15 minutes while rescue teams tried frantically to reach them. They were brought to the surface unharmed.

Marsh gas was believed responsible for the blast.

Bandit Loses Swag As Getaway Car's Door Swings Open

KANSAS CITY, Nov. 20 (AP)—William A. McCoy was on his way to the bank today with a deposit from his store—$6,000, $3,600 of it in cash.

A little fellow drew a revolver and pressed it into McCoy's stomach. The money bag changed hands.

A car drew up to the curb. The bandit scurried into the car which lunged forward with a burst of speed as it rounded a corner.

A door swung open. The little bandit grabbed for his own safety. The money bag fell to the pavement.

Truman Favors Early Extension Of Rent Controls

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — President Truman was quoted today as wanting Congress to extend federal rent control for three months when the lawmakers return for the short "lame duck" session on Nov. 27.

Chairman Spence (D-Ky) of the House Banking Committee said after a White House visit that Mr. Truman wants Congress to extend the controls until March 31, 1951, at the forthcoming session.

Spence told newsmen the President's idea is that a three-month extension now would give the new Congress a chance to explore "the whole question of rent controls in order to decide what is needed in the future."

Under present law, all federal rent controls expire Dec. 31, 1950, except in communities which voluntarily keep the curbs for six more months.

Spence said he will introduce a resolution in line with Mr. Truman's proposal when the "lame duck" session begins a weeks from today.

On the other side of Capitol Hill, Sen. Taft (R-Ohio), Bricker (R-Ohio) and Maybank (D-SC) were among those who generally threw cold water on any chance of the Senate going along.

Partial Mobilization Defended By Pace

CHICAGO, Nov. 20. (AP) — Army Secretary Frank Pace, Jr., said tonight that America's partial mobilization program may call for sacrifices that "affect our entire way of life."

It may require a lowering of the American standard of living, he added.

Consumer Spending Reaches Record Rate

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP) — Consumer spending shot up by an unprecedented $13,200,000,000-a-year rate during the July-September period to reach a record annual volume of $198,400,000,000, the Commerce Department reported today.

U. S. Grand Jury Charges Dozen With Contempt

Refused To Answer Red Probe Queries

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Ten men and two women were indicted by a federal grand jury here today on contempt of Congress charges.

The accused included an atomic scientist, an heiress to a West Coast dried fruit fortune, and the general manager of the Communist newspaper, the Daily Worker.

All were accused on from one to 68 counts of refusing to answer questions put to them by the House Committee on Un-American Activities during an investigation of Communism.

Face Prison And Fine

If convicted, they face a maximum penalty of one year's imprisonment and a $1,000 fine on each count. The citations were voted by the House of Representatives last August 11 and were turned over to the Justice Department for prosecution.

Seven of the defendants are officials and members of the United Electrical, Radio and Machine Workers Union (UE), which was expelled from the CIO last year during a process of dropping left-wing unions.

The indicted atomic scientist is Clarence Hiskey, a chemist who worked on the atomic bomb project at the University of Chicago.

The heiress, Mrs. Louise Berman, New York and California, has been described by members of the un-American Activities Committee as a financial "angel" for Communist causes.

Others Indicted

The indicted members of the electrical workers union were Julius Emspak and James J. Matles of New York, Thomas J. Fitzpatrick, Frank Panzino and Thomas Quinn of Pittsburgh, Esther Tice of Cincinnati and Talmadge Raley of Lockland, Ohio.

The others indicted were Philip Bart, general manager of the Daily Worker, New York; Pasquale Leonard James Branca of Washington, a former teacher in the District of Columbia public schools, and Frank Hashmall, Cincinnati.

Grange Votes Today

MINNEAPOLIS, Nov. 20 (AP) — Delegates to the 84th convention of the National Grange were preparing today to name a new national master to succeed the late Albert S. Goss, who died in October.

The election is scheduled to start at 3:30 p. m. Tuesday.

American Unit Reaches Yalu Boundary Line

GIs Will Pull Back "And Wait And See"

SEOUL, Tuesday, Nov. 24 (AP)—U. S. Seventh Division infantrymen reached the Manchurian frontier today in Northeast Korea. There was no report of any opposition.

The 17th Regimental Combat Team, the first American outfit to complete the border advance, arrived at the Yalu river near the Korean border city of Hyesanjin. The troops were only two miles away this morning.

Tanks and artillery were brought up in support. The combat team's commander, Col. Herbert B. Powell, said his force would not fire across the Yalu into Chinese Communist Manchuria unless the Reds "fire at us first."

The Seventh Division commander said his men, who were slowed more by frigid winds and snow-banked mountain terrain than by Communists during recent days, would pull back into nearby hill positions—"and wait and see what happens."

Virtually Unopposed

The Seventh's commander, Maj. Gen. David G. Barr, had viewed the river boundary late yesterday from the top of a ridge. He postponed the final advance until morning because of the approaching darkness.

The honor of being the first Americans to reach the border went to a division which fought and won the rugged World War II Aleutians campaign in similar snow and ice conditions.

A special communique issued by Maj. Gen. E. M. Almond, 10th Corps commander, said the Americans reached the border at 9:45 a. m. (7:45 p. m. Monday EST).

AP Correspondent Stan Swinton reported that Communist opposition appeared to be disintegrating on all active fronts in Northeast Korea.

ROK Unit Gains 10 Miles

The South Korean Capital Division moving up the coastal road, advanced virtually unopposed for 10 miles Monday and captured a town within 25 air miles of the port city of Chongjin. That city is the last big objective between the South Koreans and the Soviet Siberian border, 60 miles beyond Chongjin.

Southwest of the point where the Seventh Division reached the border, U. S. Marines moved slowly along the east and west sides of the Changjin reservoir. Swinton reported, however, there were indications that the Chinese were building up strength to the southwest of the reservoir.

The critical Northeast Korean front was somewhat static from a positional standpoint. But First Corps headquarters said air observers had spotted "considerable" Communist vehicular traffic moving south from the Yalu river boundary.

Three Fall Into Path Of Subway Train, Live

LONDON, Nov. 20. (AP)—A mother and her two children fell into a path of a speeding subway train tonight—and lived.

Several cars passed over them before the train screeched to a halt at London's busy Charing Cross underground station. The electricity was quickly cut off from the live rail. Station guards crawled underneath the train and pulled the three to safety.

The mother, Mrs. Ivy Learwood, 38, suffered a fractured arm and head injuries. A daughter, Irene, 2, and a son, Clive, 8, suffered minor injuries and shock.

"Brassiere Brigade" Trio Given One Year In Prison

MIAMI, Fla., Nov. 20 (AP)—Three former Southern Bell Telephone Company girls convicted of helping to steal nearly $25,000 in quarters in their brassieres today were sentenced to a year in prison.

The trio—Marie Orr, 21; Mrs. Betty Corrigan, 23, and Mrs. Billie Ruth McNabb—was found guilty in just 24 minutes last week by a six-man jury. Judge Ben C. Willard pronounced sentence.

Miss Orr clasped her hands tightly together and bit her lip as the sentence was read. Mrs. Corrigan tugged at her handkerchief while Mrs. McNabb appeared calm with a half-smile on her lips.

Two of the girls—Marie and Betty—were convicted of grand larceny. Mrs. McNabb was found guilty of helping the girls smuggle stolen money out of the telephone company building.

Marie and Betty worked in the room where pay station coins were brought for counting. As they counted, they slipped rolls of quarters into their bras and took them to Mrs. McNabb. Waiting in the ladies' washroom, she transferred the rolls to her own brassiere and took them outside.

Eight others—relatives and sweethearts of the telephone girls—are charged with distributing the coins and cashing them for currency.

Cities Might Meet Parking Problem With Underground Garage-Shelters

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Two major problems of the cities-parking space and the atom bomb threat—may be met with one device, businessmen were told today.

The recommended solution: Underground garage-shelters.

Fred W. Moe, president of Ramp Buildings, Inc., New York, suggested to a United States Chamber of Commerce conference on city problems that it would be "logical" for the federal government to help finance such subterranean projects in downtown areas. Moe urged support for a bill which would set up a $25,000,000 fund to help cities survey the need for garage-shelters. It would authorize up to $2,000,000,000 to help build the reinforced concrete structures in approved areas.

Two posible methods of federal aid were suggested, as follows:

Assuming that a given project might be 75 per cent self-supporting as parking garage, and used exclusively as such until warning of attack, the government might meet the remaining deficit or 25 per cent of the cost.

Or assuming a structure used partly for parking but with space set aside for emergency use and the storage of civil defense supplies, the government might pay a share corresponding to the area thus reserved.

Dean Indicates Time Near To Ease A-Bomb Secrecy

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Chairman Gordon Dean of the Atomic Energy Commission said today the time is approaching to decide whether to ease the secrecy restrictions which now mask the size, weight and shape of the atomic bomb.

Its general characteristics already are known to "thousands upon thousands" of people, Dean said in an interview copyrighted by the magazine U. S. News and World Report. At the same time, he estimated that not more than 150 persons "know all about it."

If such information as size and shape were generally known, Dean said, it would eliminate a great many security precautions and the need to make time-consuming detailed checks on persons who have to have access to such data anyway.

Dean disclosed that the commission may recommend that the next session of Congress make some changes in the Atomic Energy Act, "with the objective of keeping secret those things which we should keep secret and at the same time getting on with the job."

Man Pays Fine And $25 Extra In Parking Case

Fined $43 for 41 unpaid parking tickets, Frank A. Bennett, affiliated with the Bennett Gas and Electric Company, 52 Bedford Street, astounded the Cumberland City Police Court by announcing that he was giving $25 extra to cover "any that the department has missed."

"I don't want to owe you fellows anything," he said.

However, Miss Jeannette Bonig, executive secretary of the Associated Charities, City Hall, received a suspended sentence for parking her car on a yellow line at the City Hall. She had been issued a warrant covering seven tickets.

Lt. Edwin R. Lilya, head of the Traffic Department which has spearheaded the meter and parking violation drive since the first of May, appeared to testify against Bennett and Miss Bonig.

Lt. Lilya stated that most of the 36 tickets covered by warrant summoning Bennett to court had been issued as a result of tags placed on a car parked in front of Bennett's place of business.

Pays $25 Extra

Bennett also accounted for five additional tags issued since November 1. The warrant accounted for tickets issued since November 1. The warrant accounted for tickets given Bennett from May to November.

Bennett stated that he parked his car in front of his store because of the number of emergency calls he receives in his gas and oil heating business.

Magistrate Frank A. Perdew stated that Bennett had been in error for not appearing after each tag had been received as, under circumstances at the particular times, the charges might have been dismissed.

The hitch in the Traffic Bureau's setup on parking violation fines came as a result of Bennett's trial.

For 36 of his 41 tags he had posted $72 bond, $2 for each one. However, all 36 were covered by one warrant and Magistrate Perdew ruled that he only had to pay the regular cost of $1 for each tag, plus $1 for the warrant.

To collect the $72, Magistrate Perdew said, the Police Department would have had to obtain a warrant for each ticket.

Magistrate Perdew fined him a dollar each for the 41 tickets and $2 for the warrants.

Magistrate Suspends Fine

In her operation of a charitable organization, she pointed out that many times during the day she uses her personal car to carry food and clothing to the needy.

"I can't carry on my work if my car is parked two blocks away," she told Magistrate Perdew.

Miss Bonig's fine was suspended by the magistrate because of her charity work, but she will probably get more tickets as Magistrate Perdew pointed out the Police Department has not changed its policy of tagging cars at the City Hall.

Bertram Friedland, connected with the Cumberland Laundry Company, paid $9—one dollar for each of eight tickets and one dollar for the cost of the warrant.

He said the car had been parked on North Mechanic Street during the day in the line of company business.

Council Is To Continue With Night Meetings

The Mayor and Council will retain its Monday night meeting schedule despite speculation to the contrary, according to the latest report.

Consensus among the five members of the municipal governing body, reports say, is that night sessions have been a success and over the past five months proved that the original purpose—to allow those unable to attend in the daytime to be there in the evenings—has been served.

Mayor Thomas S. Post, for example, has commented that "Crowds are better and all seem to be taking more interest in the proceedings."

Officials point out that unlike days when morning meetings were held, there seems to be a cross-section of citizens attending. The regulars still attend but new faces are noted each Monday, they add.

Councilmen believe night sessions a boon to themselves as well. It means their private business enterprises will not have to suffer. This is important since city officials cannot live off the salary paid them and their daily work must not, of necessity, suffer because of their municipal duties.

TV Or Not TV

A staff writer for a New York City newspaper has smoked out what appears to be a low blow on the part of the manufacturers of television sets. This is the sponsorship by the manufacturers of a series of spot announcements using (of all things) the medium of radio to plug the sale of TV sets. Advertising of any sort is considered sound business practice, of course, but the writer has assembled some samples that do not reflect too well ethics commonly involved.

Basic criticism of these "spots" is that they play heavily on the fear inherent in 99 per cent of all parents that their children aren't getting what they should. In this case it is a television set.

One commercial cited by the newsman states baldly that "today's youngsters need television as much as they need sunshine!" In another a teen-ager mopes around because she "can't ask the gang in." Why? No television set.

These spot announcements are getting a heavy play over the ether in and around Gotham. But there have been no reports of anxious parents stampeding to TV retail outlets. It would not be a wild guess that this campaign will have diminishing returns.

Parents in areas where TV is available are well aware of the good and bad aspects of TV by now. Certainly there has been enough written about it. They are perfectly capable of making the decision of whether or not to have TV in the living room. If qualms remain, why not tell the kids the delay is caused by a desire to await color television. This is as legitimate a campaign on the parents' side as the TV people are making on the other.

At a contest in England a chap ate a 12-ounce onion in a little over two minutes. It probably took him two days to find his friends again.

Hoover Plan Progress

When the master plan for reorganization of the sprawling federal government was set in motion two years ago last summer, its principal backers were rather cynical about its success. The man who directed the reorganization planning and whose name is on the overhauling procedure—former President Herbert Hoover—gave it a 50-50 chance.

Mr. Hoover knew how popular any move to streamline the government in the physical and economic sense could be. He also knew, all too well, how great and firmly entrenched would be resistance against it.

On the eve of the "lame duck" session of the 81st Congress it can be noted that nearly half of the reorganization recommendations have been put into effect. In the eyes of Dr. L. L. McCormick, who is director of research for the citizens group which has been plumping for the plan, the success of the whole venture is hanging in the balance.

The 82nd Congress, when it convenes early next year, may be sympathetic to the balance of the proposals. Then again it may not. Junking the remainder of the plan for the sake of expediency in pushing through other legislation, or for any reason, would be an act of sabotage. There is no better term for it.

If there was ever a time to halt the trend toward expanding federal services, and cut out wasteful practices, the time is now. As armament costs soar to $30,000,000,000 or $40,000,000,000 a year—or higher—nondefense spending must be cut sharply where possible. The Hoover Commission's intricate study of what is wrong with the federal government is a ready-made blueprint for such action. If the legislative spirit is willing, the way is open.

Germany, Italy and Japan posed as have-not countries when they started their wars. But Russia hasn't even that excuse.

Supply And Demand

It seems a little incongrous to be talking about a major change in Army uniform—the Pentagon is reported to be considering switching to gray—while front line troops in Korea are ill clad for the weather they are meeting. Are shivering platoons of cotton-clad GIs part of the army which has been described as the best equipped in the world?

In fairness to the army logistical staffs in the states it should be pointed out that the sub-arctic weather along the Yalu river frontier had been anticipated and provision made for it. As early as July proper cold weather equipment had been ordered and in September the first shipments were placed ashore in Korea. What happened between then and now cannot be answered to anyone's satisfaction. It requires little imagination to conjure up the pithy comment the foxhole dwelling GI or Marine is making at this point.

Part of the lag in supply perhaps can be blamed on the overconfident attitude with which UN troops rolled unopposed toward the Manchurian border prior to Red Chinese intervention. It looked at the time as though U. S. troops might actually be out of the foxholes, and, if not back home in the states, would be comfortably quartered in Japan by Christmas.

What is being presented here is one of those unexplainable breakdowns in the formidably staffed and financed machinery of supply. No doubt plenty of explanations will be forthcoming from the supply echelons in the field. There always are. This batch had better be good.

A talent for getting out of tight spots is handy. Still better is a talent for not getting into them.

A Few Years Too Soon

As Dr. Alex Green, a college physicist, tells it, an "automatic" ban on nuclear weapons—or peacetime uses of atomic fission, for that matter—will only be a matter of time, anyhow.

According to Dr. Green the earth was "red hot," in a radioactive sense, when it was young. Now that it has reached middle age part of the potency of uranium, for example, has been dissipated. Evidently the stuff ages and loses its wallop much like a storage battery.

That is, another 3,000,000,000 years and there won't be any atomic bomb or any hydrogen bomb to cloud the horizon.

The immediate reaction is to fall back on that old complaint: We were born too soon. But, knowing the capacity of human beings for scrounging around and finding new ways of lambasting uncooperative neighbors, we don't feel this is valid. Our reaction, at any rate, will be to toss Dr. Green's rather startling news into a file marked "Incidental Intelligence."

Never can tell when a radio quizmaster will be calling us up.

Overdosage Of The Barbiturates

IN MOST communities, sleeping pills are dispensed only by prescription. They must be labeled "habit forming" by law but the real reason is that they frequently are used to commit suicide. Statistics show that the barbiturates are second only to carbon monoxide as a cause of poisoning. But these products are not habit forming in the same sense as morphine, codeine, and other narcotics.

Sleeping pills are of inestimable benefit to those who are ill or suffering from temporary insomnia as a result of unavoidable mental turmoil. They also help to relax individuals with high blood pressure, stomach distress, or other ailments that are aggravated by an overactive nervous system. Only small doses are needed for this purpose because all that the physician hopes to do is to take the edge off anxiety.

When used in this way the habit factor rarely enters the picture. Addiction is more likely to occur in those who "just can't sleep without them." The majority of these persons never have tried to adjust their affairs so that they won't go to bed with their troubles. Others have responsibilities so great that sleep is impossible without help along this line. But if sedatives are withdrawn the users do not become ill or go on the warpath like the opium or marihuana addicts. This is what is meant by saying that the barbituric preparations are not habit forming in the sense that narcotics are.

Many individuals show no ill effects from the prolonged use of the barbiturates. No harm is done unless a tolerance develops to the drugs and the dosage must be increased to obtain the desired effect. This is undesirable because overdosage may lead to poisoning or death. Others show signs of chronic poisoning: they are drowsy most of the day and have difficulty concentrating and remembeing their actions. There is general loss of ambition along with depression, confusion, and disorientation and the majority are not responsible for what they are doing. Continued usage also may produce skin rash altho, if sensitivity to the chemical exists, blemishes may appear after a single does.

Those who take the drug for suicidal purposes usually swallow a large quantity. There is no set fatal dosage because the effect varies with the individual. Some have been known to succumb to a few capsules whereas others have taken up to five times the lethal dose and survived.

The treatment of barbituric acid poisoning depends upon how deeply the victim is narcotized. Mild cases are permitted to sleep it off: others must be stimulated with powerful drugs to keep the system going until the influence of the poison wears off. Oxygen is administered for depression of the breathing apparatus and, to overcome dehydration, huge quantities of fluids may be administered into a vein. For quicker relief, sodium succinate and electrostimulation have been suggested but these new plans have not yet been evaluated properly.

When the potential suicide is snatched from the jaws of death and finally comes to, psychiatric care often is needed. After all, these unfortunates were depressed before they attempt to end it all and unless the cause of the mental disturbance is removed they are likely to try again. "Doctor, please let me die for my own good. Please! I'm in such misery." is a common plea on regaining consciousness. This frame of mind must be changed before it is safe to permit the sufferer to go on his way.

TOMORROW: High blood pressure may not be high at all.

BLOOD WILL TELL

R. A. writes: A friend tells me that a child inherits the father's blood only—not the mother's. Is this true?

REPLY

No; we inherit from both parents, as well as from previous generations. If the blood type is O in both parents, for example, the offspring will be type O. If one is O and the other A or B, the children will be O, A, or B, and so on down the line. Actually, the blood itself is not inherited because the child has his own blood forming organs that are busy manufacturing blood cells day and night.

•—•—•

BLOOD ELEMENT

N. R. writes: I have been told that I have eosinophils in my blood. Can they be eliminated?

REPLY

Eosinophils are white cells containing red granules and are normal constituents of the blood. An excessive number appears in various skin infections and allergies as well as in those who harbor intestinal parasites. A rise also is noted in the course of an infectious disease as well as in blood diseases such as leukemia.

TAKING CHINA'S CALLS

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Truman Should Ask GOP Help In Charting Foreign Policy; Government Propaganda Office Needed; "League For Democratic Russia" Should Be Created

Says DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—Last week tolerant editors permitted me to expound on certain facts pertaining to Russia—that Russia has never been defeated in a major war except through internal revolt; that our huge armament burden and the Soviet strategy of wars of attrition may wear us down while Moscow gets ready for all-out war; and that our best defense is to take the offensive, penetrate the iron curtain and get to the Russian people—some of them already chafing at the bit against the Kremlin.

War documents seized after V-E Day have shown conclusively that about three million Russians surrendered to the German army in 1941 because of the revolt against Moscow. There is also conclusive evidence that millions of Russians were friendly toward the United States at the time of V-E Day; and that the chief reason for the iron curtin was to keep them from knowing the benefits of peace and friendship.

Cracking the iron curtain, it should be noted, is not easy. But neither is war easy. And as a step toward cracking it, I would like to propose four rather elementary moves which could be made in Washington.

MOVE NO. 1—President Truman should call in the most powerful leaders of the Republican party—Governor Dewey, Senator Taft, Gov. Warren of California and Senator-Elect Duff of Pennsylvania—in an effort to chart a straightforward foreign policy for the nation. We have suffered too much from having foreign policy statements shooting off in different directions. We don't realize that when foreign governments hear the White House say one thing and a group of senators who have been visiting General MacArthur say another, they don't know which side to believe.

Furthermore, to launch a consistent, constructive propaganda campaign behind the iron curtain—or even on this side of the curtain—you must have the support of both political parties and sufficient appropriations from Congress. In the past, such penny pinchers as GOP Congressmen Taber of New York and Clevenger of Ohio with Senator Byrd of Virginia have slashed propaganda appropriations to ribbons.

A White House conference between the President and top GOP leaders could put the interests of the nation first and help to avoid them in the future.

Actually, the State department is doing a far better propaganda job than its congressional critics realize. History will also show that the State department today, despite the attacks, is functioning more efficiently than ever. However, the smearing of the McCarthy brush has placed the Voice of America with two strikes against it every time it comes before Congress for appropriations.

Furthermore, the State department never wanted to take over the job of propaganda. It was willed on Secretary of State Jimmie Burnes when the old Office of War Information was being reorganized, at which time nobody knew exactly what to do with it.

Creation of a separate propaganda office, therefore, cooperating with the State department, plus the Army, Navy and Air Force, would help reestablish congressional confidence, also a certain amount of freedom.

MOVE NO. 3 — Bring more top newsmen and public relations experts into the new, reorganized propaganda bureau.

When George Washington appointed a propaganda bureau in the Revolutionary war, he picked the top men of the new nation—Thomas Jefferson, John Adams and Benjamin Franklin. These three served on a committee which smuggled propaganda leaflets behind the British lines and succeeded, among other things, in getting 6,000 out of 30,000 Hession troops to desert.

During the last war, some of the top newsmen of the nation helped operate the Office of War Information—Palmer Hoyt, publisher of the Denver Post; Mike Cowles, publisher of Look, Quick and the Des Moines Register; Robert Sherwood, the playwright; and Milton Eisenhower, now president of Penn State.

Today, Ed Barrett, former editor of newsweek and an A-1 man, is patriotically handling propaganda for the State department, but is handicapped by lack of money and personnel. If his organization were independent, he could get not only more money but top men.

MOVE NO. 4 — Create in the United States a "League for a Democratic Russia." Made up of Russian exiles, this committee could function as did the Czechoslovakia committee in Pittsburgh in 1918 which led to the disruption of the Austro-Hungarian empire and the founding of the Czechoslovak republic.

Once established in the United States, a "League for a Democratic Russia" could fan out to embrace Russian exiles in England, France, Italy, Yugoslavia, China and the rest of the world. It would be a powerful nucleus through which the Russian people outside the Soviet could speak to the Russian people behind the iron curtain.

Along with such a League for a Democratic Russia, there should be formed in this country an "American Committee for Democracy in Russia" consisting of Americans whose names carry weight behind the iron curtain. This committee should include the leaders of the big American farm organizations, such as the American Farm Bureau, the Grange and the Farmers Union. For Russia is chiefly a nation of peasants with whom the farm leaders of the U.S.A. carry more influence than generals.

On that committee also should be William Green of the AFL, Phil Murray of the CIO, David Dubinsky of the Ladies Garment Workers, heads of the Railroad Brotherhoods and so on. These anti-Communist American labor leaders constitute one of the nation's best assets in the battle against communism.

These are just a few of the steps which can be taken in the long, drawn-out battle to crack the iron curtain. A lot of other moves should be made, many of a secret nature and not for publication. While we cannot neglect armament and preparedness, a campaign to penetrate the iron curtain may in the end bring us greater, quicker and less bloody dividends.

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

The Spy Trial

THUS FAR, the spy trial, which is being held in New York before Judge Irving R. Kaufman, has established that Soviet Russia, our ally in World War II, sent agents into the United States to steal our data on production of chemicals, electronics, war materials and the atom bomb. Such conduct is expected of an enemy, not of an ally. During the period of spying, the United States was provisioning Soviet Russia to the tune of $11,000,000,000.

But this point is being missed: The data now available was already in the hands of the FBI in 1947. Elizabeth Bentley's testimony on that subject is altogether clear. Also Harry Gold and Abraham Brothman, established the date.

On May 29, 1947, two FBI agents interrogated Brothman concerning his dealings with Jacob Golos, a Soviet spy, and with Elizabeth Bentley, then a Soviet courier and closely associated with Golos, and with Harry Gold. Brothman told Gold, so the latter testifies, that the FBI knew everything.

Among the facts that the FBI knew was that the Amtorg trading company was the center of spy activity and the cover-up for spies, couriers, photostating and similar activities. Yet, Amtorg was permitted to exist in this country as a trading business with which American businessmen and government officials nsorted. Like "Amerasia," it was a protected organization. Who protected it?

The question must be asked why these men were not indicted; why nothing was done about them until after the British arrested Dr. Klaus Fuchs and the world knew that our atom bomb secrets had been stolen. Fuchs was arrested on February 3, 1950, but the testimony in this trial shows that on May 29, 1947, the FBI had the data. Most of us assumed when Gold, Brothman, Greenglass, and Miss Moskowitz were arrested that the information came from Fuchs, but at the trial, the evidence shows that it came from the FBI, which had it in 1947.

Brothman and Gold and whoever else is involved in this miserable business have been free to damage the United States for this prolonged period. It has further been brought out in this trial that the espionage goes back to 1941. Actually, it goes back further than that. It probably goes back as far as the Nye committee of the Senate (1934), which contained among its employes the first important espionage cell in the official life of this country.

This espionage trial, now taking place in New York, is tremendously important and is being inadequately reported. The Hiss trial was perhaps more glamorous, but not more significant. It attracted more attention because there was so strong an effort to cover up for Hiss and to defend him. Even now, some Park Avenue liberals believe that three juries were wrong and that Hiss cannot be guilty of the crimes brought out at his trials.

There is no glamour in this present trial. It is just plain dirt. Americans, employed by Soviet Russia, gave to Russia whatever they could lay their hands on. They stole the formulae for buna-s. They stole the atom bomb. They stole our inventions and will use them to kill our sons and in time to destroy our cities.

When this trial is over, the American people need to know who was responsible for making all this possible. It will not be enough to send a couple of punks to prison or even to hang them. We need to know how it was possible for them to do all this stealing. Who let them steal?

Brothman gave Bentley and Gold huge quantities of material, including plans, models and blueprints, large in bulk. Elizabeth Bentley transferred these to Golos, who died in 1943. Gold also transferred some to Semenov, who operated through Amtorg.

These transfers in bulk had to originate where they should have been missed; where they should have been seen. Where were the security officers we hear so much about? What is meant by security in view of this testimony, which is being reported so inadequately? Why is it being reported so inadequately?

In a word, when this trial is over, why will not some congressional committee go into this more fully to discover the big shots?

By DAVID LAWRENCE

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20. — Confession is good for the souls of men —including public officials — and that's why the amazing statement just made by Gen. Omar Bradley, now chairman of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff, is about the most important revelation that has come officially since 1945 about our military policy.

The exact words of the General in a public speech were these:

"It is a bruising and chocking "It is a bruising and shocking committed in Korea, we were left without an adequate margin of military strength with which to face an enemy at any other specific point. Certainly we were left without the strength to meet a general attack. In the military sense, the free world was left without adequate reserves except for the atomic bomb."

There's the "bruising and shocking" story which raises the question of what happened to $50,000,000,000 for defense in five years.

It is not sufficient to say Louis Johnson, ousted as secretary of defense, was to blame. Who made the military program and who failed to tell the country if need be, that America and the free world were virtually defenseless?

Responsibility of Joint Chiefs

Under the law this was the responsibility of the U. S. Joint Chiefs of Staff consisting for most of the time in the last five years of General Bradley as chief of staff of the Army, Gen. Hoyt Vandenberg as chief of staff of the Air Force and Adm Louis Denfeld as chief of Naval Operations.

These three men had the task of planning military strategy and of rendering military advice to the President and the Secretary of Defense.

Time after time in the privacy of Joint Chief of Staff meetings, Admiral Denfeld protected against the concept that a few Air Force groups and the atom bomb could do the job of protecting our interests across the globe. He pleaded that the Navy with its powerful aircraft carriers should not be put in mothballs but posed at strategic locations overseas. The Marine Corps commandant begged that the Marine Corps—our amphibious force with special skills on the ground and in the air—should not be curtailed. But to no avail. The navy and Marine Corps were voted down repeatedly by Generals Bradley and Vandenberg. The budget was cut by a committee in the Defense department headed by General McNarney of the Air Force.

This correspondent first called attention to these serious cuts in the summer of 1949—a year before the Korean outbreak.

Then came the famous House investigation in October 1949. General Bradley ridiculed the case of the marines, predicting that there wouldn't be another amphibious landing. The admirals were accused of being "fancy Dans," and the argument about the weakness in our main strategic concept was lost in a mixture of denunciations and epithets all of which resulted in the peremptory removal of Admiral Denfeld by Secretary of the Navy Matthews.

The chief of naval operations, who came in seven months before Korea —Admiral Sherman—is a far better leader in many respects than his predecessor and perhaps the most experienced all-around man the Joint Chiefs could have acquired. But his vote was not enough. The basic strategy wasn't changed by the Joint Chiefs until Korea demonstrated what the blunders in planning really were.

Why Was It Necessary

Now, as a belated confession, too, General Vandenberg has ordered that a separate tactical air command be set up. This is exactly what the famous B-29 controversy revealed, namely that the Air Force was too preoccupied with strategic bombing to provide airmen properly trained and with the right planes to give close support to ground troops, as the marines had always done.

Why was the Korean demonstration of our weakness needed? Why were men who spent their lives studying strategy, maps and war experience so blind that it took a Korean war with nearly 28,000 casualties to make them see the truth they should have learned in the class rooms of their war colleges or in Joint Staff conferences? About 4,500 Americans were killed in action and about 4,500 reported missing in Korea and it seems certain that with the massacres of prisoners many of the missing will never be found.

What a tragic climax the Bradley speech is to a debate that never should have been necessary! President Truman still retains in office the men who helped to keep the U. S. from being adequately prepared. The excuse that there wasn't money enough to have a different over-all strategic plan isn't convincing. The expenditure of $50,000,000,000 in five years calls for further investigation by Congress. The House committee did a splendid job, but Senator Tydings who dominated the Senate Armed Services committee did a whitewash. Will politics be laid aside now to ascertain how the colossal blunder in our strategy was made? The next of kin of the nearly 9,000 who are gone would probably like to know what Congress and the President will do about the leaders whose military judgment has been tried and found wanting.

MATTER OF FACT

WASHINGTON

HELL hath no fury like a contributor scorned, as the harassed President Truman is now learning. Two of the most important contributors to his 1948 campaign are furiously battering on Administration doors, demanding their rights. The story of these frustrated contributors is worth telling, since it also tells a good deal about the Truman administration.

One of the angry contributors is James Bruce, a New York business man and a shrewd promoter. Bruce bet on Harry Truman when Truman was a very long shot indeed, by collecting a good deal of money for the Truman campaign in the summer of 1948. Ever since, he has been waiting impatiently to collect on the bet, by becoming American Ambassador in London. The second is Stanton Griffis, now Ambassador to Argentina, who was also generous in 1948, and who therefore considers that he has a lein on the Paris embassy.

According to the strategy of Bruce and Griffis, the recent election has presented a golden opportunity for the realization of expectations so long frustrated. For the fact is that Bruce and Griffis have thus far been blocked, not by President Truman, but by Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Under Secretary James Webb.

Insufficient Qualifications Charged

The most conspicuous diplomatic achievement of both Griffis and Bruce, who preceded Griffis as Ambassador to Argentina, has been the establishment of warm relations with Juan Peron, the Argentine dictator, and his rather uncharming wife Evita. Acheson and Webb have opposed the appointments of Bruce and Griffis to the London and Paris posts on simple grounds. These grounds are that chumminess with a South American dictator, plus large campaign contributions, does not constitute sufficient qualifications for the two most important diplomatic posts in the gift of the American government.

The opposition of Acheson and Webb is the key to the anecdote, widely repeated in Washington, about Bruce's interview with President Truman (at which, significantly, no third person was present). The interview took place when Lewis Douglas, former Ambassador to England, resigned. According to this tale, Truman rather mournfully informed Bruce that he had wanted to send him to London, but that "they" had insisted that he send instead "that telephone fellow"—the President could not remember his name. The "telephone fellow" was of corse Walter S. Gifford, now Ambassador in London, and "they" were chiefly Acheson and Webb.

Aside from "they," another obstackle has stood in the way of the triumph of Bruce and Griffis. This has been the fact that the Paris embassy is now occupied by Bruce's very able brother, David Bruce. David Bruce's competence is so universally recognized that Griffis' chances have been hurt. And James Bruce's chances for the London post have also been hurt, since it would be odd, to say the least, to have two brothers serving at the same time in the two most important American diplomatic posts.

"Neat" Solution Proposed

Yet adherents of Bruce and Griffis (said to include such powerful Democratic figures as the President's oilman friend, Ed Pauley) now believe that both these obstacles can be eliminated at one stroke. In the first place, it is argued, whatever Persident Truman may say, the elections make the departure of Acheson sooner or later inevitable, and Webb will depart with him. "They" thus will be out of the way. And if David Bruce is appointed Under Secretary—a post for which he is, in fact, well qualified—he will be out of the way too.

Griffis can then replace David Bruce in Paris, and after a respectable interval of four or five months, James Bruce can at last collect on his long shot by taking over from the "telephone fellow" (who is a Republican anyway) in London. Such is the neat solution now being bruited about, for the problems of Bruce and Griffis.

Whether the solution will work out as neatly as all that depends, of course, on President Truman. And it is this which makes it worth recounting the case of the frustrated contributors. For a great deal will depend on whether Truman accepts the Bruce-Griffis solution. After his surprise triumph in 1948, President Truman discarded the bipartisan

The Girl Scout Council received invitations to two socials at the meeting yesterday afternoon at headquarters. Mrs. Morris Barnes presided. The council was invited to the Leaders' jingle party December 13 at 7:30; and the Junior Camp committee reunion December 27, also at 7:30.

Announcement was made of a basic leaders training course to begin February 6; a work shop for all leaders the middle of January; and Mrs. Ross Decker, Program chairman, said the girls will go caroling this year. Jane Platt will accompany the group at the piano for rehearsals which are to be at 1 o'clock, December 2 and 9 at the headquarters. Mrs. M. D. Baby School Project Is Discussed

A proposed Sunday School nursery school project was discussed and plans for a program and Christmas party made at the meeting of the SS. Peter and Paul School Parent-Teacher Association Sunday afternoon in the school auditorium. James Reinhart presided.

Mrs. Joseph Mackert was appointed to investigate about the Nursing School project and report at the next meeting.

Skits are to be given by each class at the next meeting of the PTA, which will be held in the church hall and is to be followed by a Christmas party.

A musical program was presented. It included piano, clarinet, violin and trumpet selections as well as singing by a group. Piano solos consisted of "The Gay Daffodils," by Carroll Boyle, "Down Pebbly Lane," Catherine Wheeler; "Swaying Palms," Barbara Creegan; "Hovering Butterflies," Nellie Wilson; "Silver Slippers," Mary Jo Simpson.

"Simplicity," a clarinet solo was played by William Goldsworthy, accompanied at the piano by Karl Grabenstein; a violin duet, "Waltz in G-In a Garden" was played by Gale Treiber and Nellie Wilson; the latter also played a violin solo, "Cieleto Lindo." Mary Jo Simpson accompanied both on the piano. Trumpet solos were played by Charlotte Barham, Rita Lennon and Eleanor Minke with Nellie Wilson at the piano. "The Song of the Sun," was played by Alexander Jones, trumpet, with Theresa Miltenberger at the piano.

Concluding the program "Our Lady of Fatima," was sung by Carroll Boyle, Mary Jo Simpson, Nellie Wilson, Gale Treiber and Catherine Wheeler.

The Powers Girls have a brand new suggestion for round-the-clock loveliness. Learn now to sleep and awake in beauty.

SECRETS OF CHARM

by JOHN ROBERT POWERS

THE nightmares that are perpetrated in the name of beauty are a scandal; they are completely unnecessary and diabolically contrived.

Eradicate make-up with a cleanser; remove with tissues. Follow with a thorough "fingertip" washing of mild soap and warm water; rinse thoroughly and pat dry.

Apply the thinnest layer of a night-care lotion if your skin is oily, or a lubricant if your skin is dry. Sparingly applied, your skin will get all the night-complexion dress it needs with nary a visible trace after just a few moments. What a pretty contrast you are to the members of the thick-coat-of-grease school!

Lipstick comes next. Yes, you wear it all night long and it looks as smooth in the morning as when you apply it. Furthermore, when it's a pure, lanolin-based lipstick it's an important part of your beauty care because it keeps the skin of your lips from becoming dry and wrinkled—soft as it should be.

Use a delicate pink or coral pastel shade. Apply two coats, blotting between each; you'll find your lipstick on your lips when you awake instead of on your pillow.

Each Lock Locked

To enhance your night-blooming beauty, dress your hair in your favorite style. Brush it thoroughly; comb and coax it into place until it is as well-groomed as you'd want it for an important occasion. Then insert pins in the strategic waves to hold them firmly in place for the night. Squeeze your hair with the palms of your hands, moving contrariwise from the center of your forehead to the middle of the back of your head. This works like magic, making the thousands of short hairs blend with the longer ones to lock your hair style perfectly in place for the night. Cap your lovely head with a ribbon, a contour net or veiling. You'll go to sleep and awaken looking like your loveliest self!

Congress Cheers Attack On Rogge

WARSAW, Poland, Nov. 20 (AP)—The World Peace Congress broke into cheers today when an Iowa negro lawyer bitterly assailed a fellow American delegate for picturing the Moscow-backed congress as a tool of the Kremlin.

Charles F. Howard, Des Moines, was cheered long and lustily when he attacked O. John Rogge, former assistant U. S. attorney general, who told the assemblage in a speech yesterday there is widespread apprehension that the congress is becoming an instrument of Russian foreign policy.

Howard said Rogge is registered in Washington as a paid agent of the Yugoslav government, which is being boycotted by Cominform countries. He said he thought the congress should evaluate Rogge's speech "in the light of his employment."

Washington-Baltimore Fare Hike Protested

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Witnesses representing commuters protested today a proposed hike in communication fares in the Washington and Baltimore area.

Requests for increases, averaging between 14 and 16 per cent were made by the Baltimore and Ohio and Pennsylvania Railroads.

Officials of the railroads testified at an Interstate Commerce Commission hearing that their companies are losing heavily at the present rates and that the proposed increases would result in only slight decreases in commuter travel.

NOW BOYS, BEHAVE YOURSELVES!—Mrs. Lillian Clapp, 80-year-old school bus driver, admonishes her high-spirited charges before driving them home at Groton, Mass., yesterday. Mrs. Clapp has a perfect safety record dating back to 1899 when she first started driving children to school in a horse and buggy.

Czechs' War Fears Are Blamed For Onion And Vinegar Shortage

PRAGUE, Nov. 20 (AP) — Some people in Czechoslovakia are buying heaps of onions to protect themselves against atomic radiation, the trade union newspaper Prace said in a derisive report tonight.

Others, it said, are stocking up on vinegar to guard against gas attacks.

Prace blamed such citizens, "insuring themselves against all eventualities," for current shortages of these two commodities.

Neither a bad onion harvest nor insufficient vinegar production caused the shortages, it said.

"And so," Prace went on, "people bought a quintal (220 pounds) of onions and put them under the bed."

Another woman, Prace reported, gossiped that in case of a gas attack a handkerchief dipped in vinegar was a good thing to have.

Teaches Sunday Lesson By Phone

MEMPHIS Tenn., Nov. 20 (AP)—Even though W. E. McLeod was weak and sick, his Sunday school class still wanted to hear the lesson as he presented it.

So the members, some of whom he has been teaching for almost 25 years, rigged up a system.

U. S. Tin Products Sent Red China

WASHINGTON, Nov. 20 (AP)—Sen. O'Conor (D-Md.) said today that millions of pounds of tin mill products have been shipped from this country to Communist China in recent months.

He sent what he called "an urgent request" to the Commerce Department's office of international trade to halt such shipments, saying they should be brought under export control immediately.

O'Conor said in a statement that although the materials are considered second grade in this country, "they can and easily are manufactured into strategic products."

Officials of the Office of International Trade said that exports of tin products, along with other strategic items, have been under continuing study, and that the Senator's suggestion will receive prompt and earnest consideration.

Reich Election Result Perils U. S. Arms Plan

FRANKFURT, Germany, Nov. 20 (AP)—America's plan to rearm Western Europe for defense within the reasonable future is in grave peril. This is underscored by weekend election returns giving a wide margin of victory to a German party, the Socialists, which opposes rearmament as presently planned.

The political problems of rearmament are enormously complex and controversial. But military men agree the military essentials for rearmament are simple and unavoidable:

(1) There can be no effective defense of Europe without both Germany and France participating fully.

(2) Formation of defense armies must begin at once to be effective. It may already be too late.

Hearings Concluded On Edwards' Motion

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Supreme Bench of Baltimore concluded its hearing today on a motion that Thomas Alexander Edwards be given a third murder trial.

The Anne Arundel county negro twice has been convicted in the pistol slayings of John H. Mahlan and Mary C. Kline. They were killed Sept. 17, 1948, after leaving on a date from Miss Kline's home at Glen Burnie, Md.

Attorneys for Edwards spent more than four hours last Friday arguing for a new trial. After the state completed its arguments today, the eight-judge court deliberated for more than an hour, then announced its decision would be held under consideration.

Two Die When Trucks Collide, Burst Into Flame

WEST UNION, W. Va., Nov. 20 (AP)—Two big trailer trucks collided and burst into flames early today on U. S. Route 50 near Smithburg, killing two men and injuring a third.

Staley Grimes, 35, also of Frederick, an occupant in the cab of the Hardman truck, was taken to a hospital at Clarksburg suffering from shock and loss of blood. Doctors said he was expected to recover.

WHY DO STOCK PRICES CHANGE ?

Imagine a typical auction. The auctioneer is calling for bids on some early American chairs. He points to one.

"I hear $40. Forty-five? Thank you, sir!

"Will someone make it fifty? Forty-five I have—a lady bids $50. Fifty-five over there—and sixty?

"Sixty, a bargain at $60. Sixty-five? Do I hear sixty-five? ... Sold for $60."

On the New York Stock Exchange there is a continuing auction ... in stocks. But unlike the country auction, the Stock Exchange is a market place for securities in which thousands of investors, from all over the country, participate daily. Their orders are serviced by its members, acting as their agents, every business day.

Actually, it's a double auction, working both ways. Bidders want to buy their stock from sellers at the lowest possible price. Sellers want to get the highest price for the shares they are offering. When a buyer's bid and a seller's offer arrive at a mutually acceptable price, a purchase is completed, a sale is made ... at the best price available in this national market, at that moment.

That's the kind of give and take going on all the time at the Exchange, in the 1,500 stocks that are listed. That's why stock prices change. A buyer whose bid is too low can raise it. An offer to sell that is too high can be lowered. It's an auction market ... for buyers and sellers.

All kinds of factors influence people to buy or sell ... earnings and dividends ... purchasing power of the dollar ... new production records ... a war won or threatened ... a change in tax laws ... strike news ... other factors.

The Exchange does not set prices. Prices are determined by the public's appraisals of the attraction of stocks in terms of benefits offered and risk assumed. The Exchange does, however, see that prices are arrived at openly and fairly, and published promptly.

When you buy or sell a share of stock, you buy or sell a share of a business, an interest in everything that company has. Information about any corporation's operations and financial condition, its earnings and dividend record—facts essential to an investment decision—are yours for the asking, without obligation, at offices of member firms of the New York Stock Exchange. They are located in 377 cities.

Muddy School Grounds At Oldtown Improved

OLDTOWN—About a year ago, there were numerous complaints over the muddy condition of the school grounds and roadway at Oldtown school building, but these conditions have all been remedied, according to Walter S. Mueller, president of the Oldtown PTA.

Through the cooperation of Eugene S. Williams, president of the Western Maryland Railway Company, two car loads of cinders were donated and delivered to the town. Residents and members of the PTA volunteered and contributed toward the task of hauling and spreading the cinders over the muddy play field.

The Board of Education also paved, with blacktop, a section used as a basketball court, and enough white paint has been donated for marking out the lines of the court.

Mueller said a county roller is available for completing the project and the association members are greatly pleased with the accomplished results.

Gaither Dockets Suit Over Crash Of Airplane Here

The declaration states that on June 6, 1950, the plaintiff delivered the hangar key and entrusted the care and custody of his Fairchild PT-23 plane to Adamson.

It is further averred that on June 24, while the plane was still in the custody of Adamson, the accident occurred.

Gaither charges that while Adamson had the plane in his possession that the defendant, without the consent or authorization of the plaintiff, requested Virgil A. Parker, a flying instructor, to give the defendant flying instructions.

In the course of landing after a flight, it is charged, a tire on the tail wheel blew out. Parker allegedly employed Edwin M. Dermer, who is reported not to be an authorized airplane mechanic, to make repairs.

While Dermer was allegedly making the repairs he is charged with starting the airplane engine without proper safety precautions and as a result the craft, without anyone at the controls, went across the field at high speed and crashed into the woods, Gaither declares.

Gaither said the plane had a valuation of $1,500, but that as he was desirous of disposing of the craft, he had agreed to sell it to Adamson for $750.

Gaither claims $850 as a result of damage to the craft.

Man Held For Assault, Robbery

W. T. Berry, Bowman's Addition, will face the grand jury of the January term of Circuit Court on a charge of attacking and robbing a local man late Saturday night on Baltimore Street.

Berry was nabbed when his victim, Howard Roach, Brunswick Hotel, recognized him and informed police.

Berry was questioned yesterday morning in the State's Attorney's office and returned to the city jail where he must finish serving a three-day sentence on a drunk and disorderly conduct conviction. He will then be taken to the County Jail.

Roach informed police that the man he identified as Berry beat and robbed him of a small amount of cash and a half-pint of whisky near the B. & O. Railroad's Baltimore Street crossing Saturday at 11:50 p. m.

Rams To Keep Joe Stydahar As Grid Coach

Deny Frank Leahy Will Be New Mentor

LOS ANGELES, Nov. 20 (INS)—A report that Notre Dame coach Frank Leahy would be head mentor of the Los Angeles Rams of the National Professional Football League next year was emphatically denied today both by the Rams' president and Leahy.

Joe Stydahar

"As managing partner of the Los Angeles Rams I would like to state that the Rams' present coach, Joseph Stydahar, will be the Ram head coach in 1951.

"Stydahar will definitely be our head coach next year and regardless of how the Rams fare in their next two games, we feel that Joe and his staff have done the outstanding coaching job in the National Professional Football League this year."

Leahy said in South Bend, Ind., home of the Fighting Irish:

"I have definitely decided that all my coaching will be done at Notre Dame."

Under Stydahar the Rams have surged to the top of the National League's national conference, reaching there through yesterday's 43-35 win over the New York Yankees.

AHS Loses Easton For Turkey Day Tilt

The Fort Hillians are: Jack Corrick, Kenneth Owens, Lynn Beightol, Eddie Landis, Jack Lloyd, Schley Lyons, David Lehman, Tommy Miller, Jackie Rice, Don Brake, injured back, and Ronnie Cage.

Coach Bob Fence last night announced that Ray Easton, left halfback, will be unable to play in the Turkey Day game on account of suffering a broken rib in the Elkins contest. Charles "Chuck" Eirich, back, is also a doubtful starter. He is suffering from a knee injury.

CINCINNATI, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Cincinnati Reds finished the 1950 National League baseball season $79,683.68 in the red.

That was the report made today to the club's stockholders by president Warren C. Giles.

It was the first time since 1945 that the Reds had failed to show a profit in their operations. Three reasons were listed by Giles.

They were: (1) the poor showing of the team during the first one third of the season; (2) adverse weather conditions and unfavorable weather predictions, and (3) television.

Penn State Beats College Harriers

Army's Shea Takes IC4A Race 2nd Time

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Long-striding Dick Shea of Army refused to be daunted by blustery winds and rain today as he raced to his second straight victory in the IC-4A cross country.

The durable cadet toured the rolling Van Cortlandt Park hills in 25 minutes, 21.4 seconds for the five mile route, just 6.7 slower than his winning time a year ago.

Penn State won the team championship, succeeding Army, with a point score of 44. Army finished second with 79, followed by Manhattan with 98 and Michigan State 104.

Roy Hamey Will Quit Pirates Dec. 1 To Join Yanks As Weiss' Assistant

New Duties Deal With Farm Clubs

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Roy Hamey, general manager of the Pittsburgh Baseball club for the last four years, is coming back to the New York Yankees as an assistant to the general manager.

Roy Hamey

The Yankees announced today the 48-year-old executive, who served 12 years in the New York organization, would sever connections with Pittsburgh Dec. 1 and join the club in spring training.

The Yankees said Hamey will serve as an aide to general manager George Weiss. His duties, they said, would not be operational but would deal with players personnel and farm clubs.

Hamey is expected to take over some of the duties of Gene Martin, who helped direct Yankee farm clubs before moving to Syracuse of the International League as general manager.

In Pittsburgh, Hamey said, "I feel very badly about leaving Pittsburgh where I have had some wonderful associates."

"But with this opportunity," he added, "if I am going to make a change, I feel as though I were returning home after my many years of association with the Yankees."

Hamey moved into Pittsburgh as general manager in 1947 and helped provide the Pirates with million-fan gates for each of the next four years.

Oklahoma Zooms Into Lead In Weekly Football Poll

Sooners Have Won 29 Straight; Ohio State Drops To 8th Place

By JACK HAND

NEW YORK, Nov. 20 (AP)—Oklahoma zoomed into first place in the Associated Press football poll today with 173 of 333 first place votes. Ohio State, last week's leader, tumbled to eighth after its loss to Illinois.

Powerful Oklahoma, unbeaten in 29 straight games, ran away from the other contenders with a total of 2,964 points, 526 better than runner-up Army.

More than half of the football writers and sportscasters ranked Oklahoma in the No. 1 spot after its 41-7 romp over Missouri. The Sooners were second last week.

Army lost first place support as it shaded Stanford, 7-0, in a mud battle but the Cadets picked up enough points to advance a notch from last week's position. Only 36 put Army first compared to 72 a week ago.

Kentucky Is Third

There were no changes in the top 10 membership. Four teams held the same positions. The biggest shuffle was Ohio State's drop from first to eighth.

After the first three came California, Texas, Illinois and Princeton. Ohio State was followed by Tennessee and Michigan State in that order. Only Michigan State has completed its schedule.

Oklahoma (8-0) has two more games to play. After its test with 16th ranked Nebraska Saturday, the Sooners wind up with Oklahoma A. and M. Army (8-0) plays Navy Dec. 2 in its last game.

Kentucky (10-0) tangles with ninth-ranked Tennessee (8-1) in Saturday's most important game. It will be Kentucky's finale but Tennessee also must play Vanderbilt, Dec. 2. Tennessee polished off Mississippi 35-0, last Saturday to hold its ninth ranking.

San Francisco threw quite a scare into California (9-0) before the California Bears finally won it, 13-7. Stanford is the only barrier in California's path to the Rose Bowl.

Texas (7-1), a 21-7 winner over Texas Christian, has two to play—Texas A. and M. Nov. 30 and Louisiana State Dec. 9. But they have already clinched the Southwest Conference crown and a Cotton Bowl appearance.

Illinois' upset of Ohio State, 14-7, brought its season record to 7-1. Wisconsin was the only team to defeat Illinois, 7-6, in early season. Northwestern is the final opponent on the Illini schedule.

Unbeaten Princton (8-0) nailed down its fourth straight Big Three tiele by whipping Yale, 47-12. They finish their season with Dartmouth Saturday.

Could Win Title

Ohio State (6-2) needs a win over Michigan Saturday to be sure of the Western Conference championship.

"Cap" Carder Is Dead

St. John's Cops Title

Lee Going To Boston

By C. V. BURNS

Clem Clower, sports specialist of Petersburg, W. Va., informs us that "Ike" Owen, who scored 11 points in the first two games with the Cumberland Spas, hails from Follansbee, W. Va., and made the all-tournament team two years ago when Fairmont State Teachers' College emerged the victor at Buckhannon.

The name is Owen and not Owens.

Funeral services were held yesterday for "Cap" Carder, 67, outstanding sportsman of Petersburg, W. Va.

A retired B. & O. Railroad conductor, Mr. Carder, was instrumental in organizing the Petersburg Independent Basketball tournament that was started in 1930 and had served as treasurer of the Petersburg Merchants baseball team.

"Cap" Carder, who died Friday, was a one-time minor league baseball player, having starred in the old Eastern Shore League.

St. John's High School, which has played LaSalle numerous times in basketball, won the Catholic football championship of Washington (D. C.) on Sunday by crushing Gonzaga High School, 37-0 at Griffith Stadium.

St. John's (Brother Clement, formerly of LaSalle is principal there) will represent the Catholic League in the district scholastic championship game Friday, Dec. 1 at Griffith Stadium.

George Hott, infielder, and Elwood May, pitcher, who went from Moorefield of the Interstate Baseball League, to the minors where they starred with Pittsburgh and Brooklyn "farm" teams, were caught in the draft (not baseball) by Uncle Sam.

• — • — •

Two other Interstate Leaguers have deserted baseball for Uncle Sam. Glenn Evans, Hyndman VFW twirler, is sporting an army uniform. Joe Reissig, Cumberland Moose player, is in the navy. Both attended the Interstate League dinner here Sunday.

Jocke Miller, chairman of the District of Columbia A. A. U. boxing committee, is planning to send Norval Lee, heavyweight, and Willie Davis to the Pan American trials at Boston next month.

He and Bob Baker, the Pittsburgh pro, are the best heavies to show here in many years. Probably the best since Frank Moran's day.

Maury Fitzgerald, Washington, D. C., golf writer, points out that John Alderton, University of Maryland's sophomore defensive right end (product of Fort Hill, sir), used to caddy for Max Elbin back at the Cumberland Country Club before they came to the capital—Elbin to be pro at Burning Tree and Alderton to begin a college career.

There also was a day when Elbin caddied for lots of other persons. In fact, he once won the caddy championship at the CCC.

And Max used to be a grocery clerk. We know because he waited on us!

Don't be alarmed because the Spas have dropped their first two games.

The Dukes of 1947-48 dropped their first four games to Duquesne University, the New York Rens, Akron Collegians and Pittsburgh Pirates. And Zanesville was the only team they whipped in their first eight outings.

Illinois Celebrates

CHAMPAIGN, Ill., Nov. 20 (AP)—There were no classes today on the main campus of the University of Illinois.

Instead, there was joyful pandemonium as the studen. body of 17,300 declared a holiday in celebration of Saturday's 14 to 7 Illini football victory over Ohio State.

DISMISSED—National Professional Basketball League headquarters at Lafayette, Ind., yesterday announced Bobby McDermott (above), player-coach of the Grand Rapids Hornets, had been dismissed for "conduct unbecoming a coach or players in the league." McDermott was charged with using profanity and ripping the doors off the lockers after his team had lost a game.

Bob McDermott Fired As Coach

Rips Doors Off Lockers After His Team Lost

LAFAYETTE, Ind., Nov. 20 (AP) — National Professional Basketball League headquarters announced today Bobby McDermott, player-coach of the Grand Rapids Hornets, had been dismissed for "conduct unbecoming a coach or players in the league."

McDermott, for many years regarded as one of the best set shots in pro basketball, also had the misfortune of suffering a broken wrist in an automobile accident Saturday night near Macon, Missouri.

Mrs. Doxie Moore, wife and assistant of the NPBL commissioner, said McDermott was dismissed because of his actions at Casper, Wyo., Nov. 14, in a game between Grand Rapids and the Denver Refiners. Grand Rapids lost, 73 to 72.

"We have been deluged with telegrams from the Casper Chamber of Commerce, the game officials and spectators," Mrs. Moore said.

"They agreed that McDermott's profanity could be heard all over the gymnasium and that he ripped doors off lockers in the dressing room after shouting that his team had been robbed."

The commissioner was grounded at Des Moines airport today, en route to a game at Kansas City tonight, and could not be reached immediately for comment.

Keyser Church League Will Open On Dec. 2

KEYSER, W. Va.—Plans are being made for the opening of the 1950-51 basketball season by the Keyser Church Basketball League. The schedule will call for playing the opening games on Saturday, December 2. The Presbyterian team won league honors last year in which the following churches participated: Grace Methodist, First Methodist, Church of the Brethren, United Brethren, Catholic, Presbyterian and Lutheran. The Grace Methodist Church entered two teams last season to provide for the playing of eight teams.

Ninth grade provides the eligible time for players to participate in the league games, and players must attend Sunday School at least three Sundays each month, and may play only for the church to which they belong or attend. All must reside in Keyser or McCoole. The limit of players for each team is 12.

All games will be played in the gymnasium at Keyser High School and the athletic department of the high school will furnish one large trophy for the winning team and a small trophy for the losers. The annual banquet will be held at the close of the season.

Culmone Tops Shoemaker In Jockey Race

Joe Rides Winner No. 332 At Bowie

BOWIE, Md., Nov. 20 (AP)—Jockey Joe Culmone got the temporary lead over Willie Shoemaker, his west coast rival in the spirited contest for national riding honors, when he scored with Burning Ray, a $7.60 for two chance, in the second race here today. The score now stands 332 to 331 in favor of the Italian booter.

Culmone muffed some fine chances to improve on his advantage, however, in subsequent races, when he was beaten aboard two odds-on choices in a row. He failed with Fiddler, a 2-5 shot in the fourth and finished third with the heavily-backed Tacaro in the fifth.

Today's feature, the $3,500 Fenelon Purse, was taken by Sylvester W. Labrot, Jr's Arcave, which finished a length ahead of Fighting Fleet. Colonel Mike, with Culmone up, was third.

Arcave paid $21.80 for two and was the sixth outsider to score here today in seven races. A crowd of 5,233 rain-soaked fans watched the second program of the late fall meeting today.

Bold Bolo Is Winner

LINCOLN, R. I., Nov. 20 (AP)—Pine Tree Farm's Bold Bolo, briefly challenged at the start by Lawrence Barbiere's Fly Around, captured the seven-furlong Lincoln Park Purse by two lengths today before a Lincoln Downs crowd of 7,800.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Preece's Shotral closed gamely along the rail but could not overtake the favorite. Dave Zakoor's Yoicks finished third two lengths back of Shotral.

Bold Bolo, timed in 1:40 4-5, paid $7.00, $4.20 and $2.80. Shotral returned $10.20 and $5.60, and Yoicks $3.40 .

J. E. Hughes' Dashing Count, the crowd's second choice, bolted toward the inner rail after the start and crashed through it into the infield, but Jockey A. F. Martinez escaped injury.

Biggie Munn — Lefty James — Dallas Ward — Henry Frnka

UNTIL the University of Minnesota officials name a new head football coach—after the season ends—the guessing will continue as to the fellow who will replace Bernie Bierman as head coach. Four names are being tossed about now and they include Dallas Ward, coach at Colorado; Lefty James, head mentor at Cornell; Henry Frnka, the Tulane pilot, and Biggie Munn, Michigan State's able coach. (International)

KEEPING UP WITH

HOLLYWOOD

By LOUELLA PARSONS

HOLLYWOOD, Nov. 20—(INS)—I'm not surprised that Darryl Zanuck wants Irene Dunne for another picture, and he thinks he has the right story for her in "Belles On Their Toes."

This, the sequel to the Clifton Webb comedy, "Cheaper By The Dozen," takes up the family after the father's death and tells of the struggle that follows when a mother tries to raise the brood while continuing with her own highly successful career.

Irene Dunne

Myrna Loy played the mother in "Cheaper," of course, but she is so busy being a Washington hostess that no movie could lure her back to Hollywood. Besides, Sam Engel, the producer, has set his heart on having Irene, who was wonderful in "I Remember Mama" and excellent as Queen Victoria in "The Mudlark."

"Magic Carpet," which started as a low budget picture at Columbia, has been taken out of that class with a vengeance. It all started when Lucille Ball agreed to do the lead for Sam Katzman. Her price is $85,000 a picture.

Talk is that Columbia thought Lucille would refuse to do it. But not my girl. She'll do it before "The Greatest Show On Earth." Now, Cornel Wilde gets the male lead opposite Lucille, and that adds up the acting salaries. He also gets $85,000 per picture—so Mr. Katzman has an "A" production.

George Cukor, back from visiting Madrid, Athens, Paris, London, etc., says all the girls in Spain, for better or worse, try to look like Hollywood movie stars. He says there is a great pro--American feeling in both Spain and Greece. He drove down the street in Madrid and saw "Adam's Rib" which he directed, being advertised. "Being a ham," George said, "I went in and saw a few reels of it."

In Greece he says he saw the Marshall Plan in operation and watched a parade in which many American commodities were exhibited. He said Greece is grateful for the help we have given them.

Chit Chat:

Nancy Oakes writes that she got a terrible crack on the head in New York when she was in a taxi accident. She has been in bed ever since, suffering with a headache, but she expects to be well enough next week to go to South America.

She has had many invitations from friends to visit them there, she says, and she will be there for some time. I'm sorry, because I had hoped Nancy would come back to Hollywood where we all like her so much.

The best offer Ernest Hemingway has yet received for his new book, 'Across The River And Into The Trees," comes from Humphrey Bogart who may buy it for his independent Santana Productions which he and Robert Lord own.

In fact, I'm told, it's within hours of being closed.

David Niven is on crutches and unable to work in "Soldiers Three." He has badly torn muscles in his right leg.

Gale Russell joined Guy Madison over the weekend at Julian King's Catalina Guest Ranch, so you can ignore those separatoin rumors that have been circulating all week.

Although the premiere of "Cyrano De Bergerac," which was to have been held in Puerto Rico was called off, Jackie Robinson appeared there last week with "The Jackie Robinson Story."

Snub Pollard, old time comedian, has been signed by Willie Wyler for a character that he added to Laurence Olivier's picture, "Carrie." Laurence and Vivien kissed me goodbye and said au revoir Friday. They expected to leave Sunday, but because of the dock strike had to postpone their departure until tomorrow—providing they can get away.

Marjorie Main has had to flee her desert home near Palm Springs because of ants. She had to go back to Hollywood where she'll be safe.

There's much sentiment in the casting of Sally Cooper, 20-year-old daughter of Gladys Cooper, as Ethel Barrymore's niece in "Kind Lady." All her life Sally has worshipped at the shrine of Miss Barrymore, who is one of Glads' best friends.

So Siegel has joined Susan Hayward's give a gift to a G. I. campaign, and is sending cigars to Korea for the boys. Good for you, Sol!

That's all today. See you tomorrow.

ON THE LINE

By BOB CONSIDINE

NEW YORK (INS)—BEG TO REPORT have lived a life abysmally involved with superstition. Somebody told me at a tender age that only calamity could befall me if I walked under a ladder, dropped a comb, looked over the wrong shoulder at an old moon, or broke a mirror.

In my semi-advanced years, became an accredited kibitzer with a couple of baseball clubs at the tag end of the age of general illiteracy in baseball, an era of antic irresponsibility which ended (for me, at least) when Buck Newsom dropped off the big league carousel. Learned therein that it is fatal to put a hat on a bed or to resist picking up a hairpin found on a street.

Well, sir, was giving a mild massage to my fantastic electric typewriter not long ago—the one that has key labelled "short story" which, when pressed, turns out an entire novelette which I immediately sell for a million dollars (Chinese).

• — • — •

During this particular seance, however, I was writing a piece proving beyond the faintest question that there are no such things as flying saucers. Then one of the children who live at our place happened to climb on my back and, oddly enough, I noticed him. Couldn't think of his name, off-hand, but remarked that a single hair from his long and wondrous eyelashes had fallen upon his cheek.

"You've got a wish coming," I said, thickly.

"Whatta ya mean?" he asked, thinly.

I explained, as I picked the delicate hair off his cheek and placed it upon the back of his young paw, that if he made a wish and then blew his breath on his hand it would come true, if the breath dislodged the hair.

Then I felt uneasy immediately for implanting in the impressionable child this item of pagan nonsense which I had been told as a moppet. But by this time he had his eyes tightly closed and was blowing away. The blast that he gave to the bit of hair drove it out of sight.

"What did you wish for?" I asked.

"Is it okay to tell?" he inquired, like a brainy college quarterback asking for instructions in the latest rules. I assured him that I would regard his answer as so, so secret that I would tell only three friends—Winchell, Sullivan and Sobol.

Reassured, he then earnestly said:

"I wish there were such things as flying saucers."

• — • — •

Banishing him to his room until Whitsuntide, 1958, I went back to the task of proving that flying saucers did not exist. But in the back of my skull I kept wondering about the infantile processes which attend such beliefs. The other day in Chicago, at the annual convention of the country's radio news directors, I was called upon to represent the non-believers in a telephonic debate with the best known saucer believer, Frank Scully.

I asked the friend of "Dr. Gee," the so-called magnetic scientist, if he had ever seen a saucer and he replied obliquely that I should have stuck to football reporting, a suggestion to which I subscribed.

Tried to bring out to him that if the Air Force really had seized several grounded saucers, as he charges in "Behind The Flying Saucers," it would have solved all questions about this kind of propulsion and either used it in the Korean war or, if unable to duplicate it, would now be bellyaching to Congress for a super appropriation aimed at producing something like it.

Scully repeated his charge that the wicked "pentagonians" were keeping things from the public.

So I suggested that Scully, being a loyal and lovable American, should feel duty bound to take or send his "Dr. Gee" to the Pentagon to straighten out these stupid guardians of our national security.

He replied that he would protect "Dr. Gee's" identity as a priest protects the identity of one who confesses, and a lawyer protects his client.

The whole thing seemed so preposterous that I related it to my dear wife when I returned. But, for once, there was no laughter in her.

"I believe in flying saucers, too," she said. Have expected ever since to be served dinner out of a witch's cauldron—while wondering what the world's coming to.

City Officials Are To Attend Meeting

A meeting is to be held today in Hagerstown to discuss a program to maintain sewerage, water supply and disposal facilities in event of damage by enemy action or sabotage. Two city commissioners and two heads of departments from Cumberland will attend.

Attending will be Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder, Street Superintendent Martin M. Corrigan, Water and Light Commissioner George H. Tederick and City Plumber Simon K. Carroll.

The Hagerstown meeting has been called to prepare a plan for Allegany, Washington, Garrett and Frederick counties. George L. Hall, chief engineer of the State Department of Health, issued the invitation to Cumberland to send representatives.

Radio And Television

By JOHN CROSBY

The Rehearsed Ad Lib

THE Groucho Marx television show, "You Bet Your Life," is identical with the Groucho Marx radio show except that television adds the moustache, the cigar, the eyeglasses, the wildly rolling eyes, the ferocious eyebrows and the rest of Marx's dishevelled countenance.

John Crosby

Groucho is an expert at the use of all three personal props and they contribute a great deal to the humor of the program. There is a certain loss, though. The Marx show originally acquired fame as the quickest and best ad lib operation in the business. It became less and less of a quiz show, which is all right with me, and more and more a gag show. However, the ad libs began to sound too round, too firm, too fully packed to be quite ad libs.

Television has taken this process even farther. "So you're a photographer," Groucho asks a pretty lady contestant. "If you were covering a murder, what would you do first?"

"I'd shoot the corpse."

"That's redundant. What's the next thing you'd do?"

"I'd shoot the witnesses."

"You've shot everyone in sight. Who do you work for, Tripod—a magazine or Murder, Inc.?"

As you can see, it sounds a little too practiced, a little too forced, to be quite real. Still, Groucho, an expert at milking lines till they're dry as sunbeams, gets more out of that material than you'd believe possible.

"I had a hobby hooking rugs," one girl told me.

She got a long, eloquent look. "You had a hobby hooking rugs?" inquired Groucho. "Where from—department stores?"

"I got so good at it, I started to teach."

This time Groucho put the cigar in operation, twirling it, puffing it, all but swallowing it. "A Fagin—teaching little children to hook rugs."

And so on. Groucho can belt a pun around for minutes at a time without it ever touching the ground. I'm prepared to believe he can do this extemporaneously but I somehow can't quite believe the contestants can handle their straight lines without prior warning.

Of course, the Marx TV show, like the radio show, is a rather special operation. It is film recording, which is to say it isn't kinescope. That means it is filmed in front of a studio audience and the filming can go on as long as possible. Then the editors get to work, cutting out the dull spots, and making both Groucho and the contestants appear at their best. They still sound as if they'd been rehearsing.

TV has imposed its curious requirements on Mr. Marx and his producers, the main requirement being that the contestants be reasonably fetching to look at. (Groucho has a lot of assets but good looks are not among them). Parading in front of the cameras you'll find a lot of pretty babes, who are not over-burdened with information. You never needed an awful lot of information to run up a pretty good score on the Marx show. However, the current crop of pretties, especially selected for television, I presume, don't seem to have any information at all tucked away in their handsome noodles.

The other night the contestants had no idea where Gettysburg was or the names of the capitals of Austria or Cuba. Two pairs of contestants wound up broke whereas the old radio contestants used to average a hundred bucks or so apiece. Fortunately, the quiz angle doesn't intrude much.

"You Bet Your Life" is fundamentally a tour de force for Groucho—his moustache, his sliding walk, and his puns—and it's a very funny story—even if they do rehearse those ad libs. Ultimately, I expect, the ad lib show will wind up with four high-priced writers and a full two weeks' rehearsal. They might even teach those pretty blondes where Gettysburg is.

Yesterday's Answer

DAILY CRYPTOQUOTE—Here's how to work it:

A X Y D I L B A A X R
is L O N G F E L L O W

One letter simply stands for another. In this example A is used for the three L's, X for the two O's, etc. Single letters, apostrophies, the length and formation of the words are all hints. Each day the code letters are different.

A Cryptogram Quotation

Matter Of Fact

foreign policy, placed all emphasis on domestic politics, let men like George Marshall, Robert Lovett and James Forrestal go, and rearose the Defense Department over to the biggest money raiser of them all, Louis A. Johnson.

Truman, in brief, clearly decided that politics-as-usual was the receipt for success. Last November 7, the voters rejected this receipt. The fact is that in these times, politics-as-usual is not good politics. There are signs, including a number of his post-Korea appointments, that Truman now knows this. If he sends Bruce and Griffis to the vital London and Paris posts, solely on the basis of their labors in the rather grubby money-gathering political vineyard, it will show that the signs have been misleading. This is the real meaning of the case of the frustrated contributors.

Traders Restless; Market Performance Is Uneven

Prices flipflopped so often from the gain to the loss column and back again that trends were totally obscured at the close and plus and minus signs were completely mixed up.

A good showing by oil, building material and some rail and chemical stocks was partially offset by weakness in auto, radio-television and rubber issues.

Trading totaled 2,250,000 shares, second highest figure for any day this month, compared with 2,130,000 at the last full session Friday.

On spectacular response to a dividend notice pushed Baltimore & Ohio Railroad preferred $3.87 higher at $38.37 a share. The directors declared a $4 dividend on the four per cent non-cumulative issue, compared with $1 a year ago.

The B & O common was the most active stock on turnover of 42,600 shares, which carried it up 25 cents a share at $15.75. The B & O preferred was third most active on transfer of 34,100 shares, while sandwiched between them was New York Central common, down 12 cents at $17.87 on exchange of 41,200 shares.

Priced lower were Republic Steel, off $1.12 at $46; General Motors, 62 cents at $47.25; Chrysler, 75 cents at $69.37; Montgomery Ward, $1.87 at $64.87; Douglas Aircraft, 75 cents at $86, and Union Pacific, 75 cents at $98.50.

Higher prices were paid for American Can, up $1.75 at $100.75; Gulf Oil, $1.12 at $79.50; Johns-Manville, $1.50 at $47.50, and Lehigh Portland Cement, $1.62 at $49.

MAKING A CARD HIGHER

WHEN you hold a singly-guarded queen or a twice-guarded jack in the trump suit, you seldom have any hopes of taking a trick with it if the declarer's side has the higher honors. But such a card can sometimes be promoted into a trick-taker. If your partner makes a lead which can be ruffed by both the declarer and yourself, you have the automatic option of over-ruffing a trump smaller than your card, or of having your card boosted into winning position by use of a trump too high for you to over-ruff.

Council Divided On Pay Raise

Cost Of Living Bonus Approved By 3-2 Ballot

Roeder, Buchholtz Vote Against Plan

By a split vote, the Mayor and Council last night approved a cost of living bonus for all hourly paid city employes and a similar bonus to all salaried employes with several exceptions.

Voting against the proposal were Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder and Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz.

The bonus for hourly workers will amount to seven and one-half cents an hour and will become effective November 26.

Effective December 1, a bonus of $13 monthly will be paid to salaried employes with the exception of those whose salaries are established by special contract, and five employes who received salary adjustments recently.

The latter are City Clerk Wallace G. Ullery; Robert R. Golden, superintendent at Constitution Park; Miss Inez Shoemaker, secretary to the city engineer; Miss Nell Cozad, assistant to the ciyt auditor; and Miss Mary E. Clay, secretary to Mayor Thomas S. Post.

Explaining his vote favoring the order, Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long said men in his departments are underpaid.

Cites Morale

"We must do something to hold our men and keep up the morale of the departments," Long said.

Mayor Post commented that hourly paid workers must pay as much for a loaf of bread as "high officials." He added that City Auditor Arthur B. Gibson had given assurance that the plan could be worked out as far as appropriations were concerned.

Buchholtz withheld comment with the remark that he has not compiled sufficient data, but Mrs. Roeder read a detailed statement opposing the bonus action.

She pointed out that the increase would add $40,000 to the city's annual payroll. Therefore, starting next year the city must raise $190,000 to maintain city services at their present level, since a $150,000 surplus in the current budget will be expended at the end of the present fiscal year, she explained.

This means, Mrs. Roeder continued, that the city's operating levy must be increased, which requires legislative action and an amendment to the charter.

"I realize the wages of employes must be increased, and I am in favor of such an increase, but only after I know where the money is coming from in the future to pay for such an increase," Mrs. Roeder said.

"If a seven and one-half cent increase goes through now, the Department of Streets and Public Property must raise $5,000 in a cut to the bone appropriation. It is obvious, therefore, that to raise this money the Street Department must curtail services and most likely lay off employes,"

Wages Compared

About half of the hourly workers affected are classified as laborers, Mrs. Roeder said. The bonus will bring their wages above those paid to laborers employed by the county and state and union men working for local contracting firms, she declared.

About 40 per cent of employes affected are police and firemen, whose salaries are "below the average going rate," Mrs. Roeder added.

"The present inflation is naturally affecting the city," she said. "Everything we purchase is costing more money. The city cannot pass on the burden of inflation like a business concern; it must either curtail its services or raise its taxes."

She concluded: "I certainly do endorse the setting up of a non-political committee to study at once where the city can get some revenue and curtail expenses."

This was proposed in a resolution introduced last night by Buchholtz. The council tabled it for one week.

Playing With Fire

Janet Ridgeley, of Ridgeley, W. Va., and Carroll Taylor, of Winchester Road, two of Allegany High School's top twirlers are seen here demonstrating their new fire batons. Handling these devices is considered an intricate feat in itself. Janet, a freshman has been twirling about a year and Carroll, a senior has been swinging batons since he was six years old. Both of these youngsters plan to participate in the local merchants balloon parade, opening the Christmas season here next Monday.

Thanksgiving Turkeys Priced Slightly Lower Than Last Year

There are plenty of turkeys available for Thanksgiving and the traditional holiday feast will cost, if anything, slightly less than last year.

Area turkey growers, one merchant said, have plentiful supplies available, with a ratio of two large to one small turkey, the size most in demand by smaller families.

The season, growers report, has been a good one, with birds growing better than usual.

The relative scarcity of the smaller turkeys, merchants said, will result in premium prices for the most desirable weights, especially among the double breasted varieties.

In one market, 16 to 20 pound toms will cost 55 cents a pound with hens selling for 65 cents.

Home dressed birds in the 20 pound range in another market are quoted at 57 cents, with 16-20 pound weights costing 61 cents. Young hens in the 10 pound range will cost 69 cents with smaller birds suitable for the small family demanding a premium price of 73 cents a pound.

Chickens suitable for the holiday will cost several cents a pound less than last year. Roasting chickens are available in the 47 to 59 cent price range, with stewing chickens quoted for about 50 cents a pound.

Ducks, a Thanksgiving favorite for many, will cost about 59 cents, down several cents from last year. Capons, in the 73 cent price range, are up about four cents.

Thanksgiving hams, a traditional Thanksgiving dish for many families, will cost about 50 cents a pound.

Most of the traditional dishes which accompany the noble bird are priced about the same, or slightly less than last year.

Fiscal Advisory Group Plan Is Tabled For Week

Five-Man Committee Would Study Policies

A resolution which would set up a Fiscal Advisory Committee to review fiscal policies and financial operation of the city was presented last night at the session of the Mayor and Council.

Finance Commissioner William H. Buchholtz, sponsor of the plan, made a motion to adopt the resolution but the motion died for want of a second.

The council then approved a motion by Mayor Thomas S. Post to table the matter for one week, by a 4-1 vote. Buchholtz dissented.

Under the resolution, the mayor would appoint five residents to serve on the Fiscal Advisory Committee.

Their duties would be to survey sources of income available to the city and review the charter and ordinances relating to fiscal policies and financial operation.

The committee would then make recommendations for any improvements to the system which they considered necessary.

Purpose of the review would be to see that "the most efficient and economical methods possible be used in the handling and disbursement of the funds of the city."

Following the meeting, Buchholtz commented:

"The people should know what is going on. We are facing a serious situation in the city's fiscal operations because of inflation."

Two bids to provide sewer cleaning equipment were read at the session and referred to Street Commissioner Lucile W. Roeder for tabulation and report.

James Maskell, Irvington, N. J., distributor for the Flexible Sewer Rod Equipment Company, offered $3,680.20 while the Champion Corporation, Hammond, Ind., bid $2,804.33

E. M. Rowley, business agent for Local 489, Plumbers and Steamfitters Union, asked about the progress of the plumbing ordinance and renewed earlier warnings about the dangers of plumbing installed by unauthorized persons and not inspected.

Rowley estimated that in the past seven months, since the time he first brought up the matter, $200,000 worth of plumbing work has been installed in the city. He added, "I doubt if $50,000 of that amount has been put in according to state law."

Buchholtz made a motion for Mayor Post to ask a "full investigation" by the Health Department of plumbing conditions, but there was no second.

Mayor Post closed the discussion by inviting Rowley to confer with him on the progress being made on the new ordinance.

R. S. Pomeroy renewed an earlier request regarding speeding construction of a new sewer on Michigan Avenue. Mrs. Roeder said she had scheduled the work for the winter months and it could not be done earlier.

South End Will Make Yule Plans

Plans for South Cumberland's Christmas celebration were begun yesterday at a luncheon meeting of the South End Businessmens' Association.

The association, at a meeting held in Rice's delicatessen, Laing Avenue, approved tentative plans for decorating Virginia Avenue during the Christmas season.

The group's Christmas Decorating committee will meet with Mrs. Lucile Roeder, commissioner of streets and public property, today at City Hall to plan co-operation with the city in Yule plans for South End.

To be discussed are plans for a lighted Christmas tree set up on Race Street as the center for holiday activities, and a program for a tree lighting ceremony.

Guest speaker at the meeting was Miss Ella Darling, psychiatric social worker for the Mental Hygiene Clinic of the State Department of Health here.

She discussed her work and how such a clinic fits into the plan of community health.

B. & O. Declares $4 Dividend

BALTIMORE, Nov. 20 (AP)—The Baltimore and Ohio startled railroad financial circles today by declaring a $4 dividend for 1950 on its preferred stock.

The B&O paid a $1 dividend on its preferred last year, haltingly after turning the idea down when it came up the first time. It had paid $1 in 1948. The last dividend payment before that was in 1931. There still hasn't been any dividend on the common since then.

The 1950 payment will go out on December 21 to shareholders of record December 1.

The Board of Directors declared the dividend just before the annual stockholders meeting today. President Roy B. White advised the stockholders that the B&O's net income for the first ten months of 1950 was $11,907,946—up 119 per cent over the comparable period of 1949.

The location of new industries and the expansion of established ones along the B&O promises to increase annual revenues and the management is concentrating on operating economies, White reported.

The stockholders re-elected the present board of directors and the directors then met again to rename all the present executive officers.

Council Hears Discussion Of Housing Sites

Buchholtz, Post Clash In Session

The council chamber was filled almost to capacity, and majority of the 70 persons in the audience were on hand to give city officials their views on the housing situation.

Clash Develops

Buchholtz said the shelters for officers handling traffic lights should be restored in view of cold weather conditions, as a means of protecting health.

Police and Fire Commissioner John J. Long commented that "we're three weeks ahead of you" and said officers are on duty at the lights one hour and off one hour.

Buchholtz said "They're on duty all day" and repeated his concern over health protection.

Long replied that "we have the health of the officers in mind" in handling the problem.

At this point Mayor Post said sharply "there should be no criticism of a commissioner in open meeting," adding that such matters should be taken up during executive sessions.

Buchholtz told the mayor "I think if we have anything on our mind, it should come up here."

Long said there was no "bad feeling" in the exchange and thanked Buchholtz for his suggestion.

Project Discussed

Leading off the discussion on the colored housing project site was L. R. Hartman, 900 Yale Street, who suggested centralizing the project in the Pine Avenue section, where colored families already reside.

The Cumberland Housing authority recently suggested both Thomas Street and McNamee's Hill as possible sites. The latter site was rejected several months ago because of the estimated $80,000 expense to the city of building an access road, but it is being reconsidered.

Charles Eline, Leiper Street, protested the McNamee's Hill location because no taxes would be derived from the project and because residents of the neighborhood "can't even get a $4,000 road in there."

Eline suggested "cleaning out the junk yard on Wineow Street" and locating the housing project in that area.

Mrs. C. H. Clingerman, Shades Lane, said the section has "the poorest streets in the city" and asked that the city spend its money in improving "what we already have" rather than to build an expensive access street "up a hill."

Mrs. Clingerman said she has resided in the area since 1931 and the only improvements in that time have been street lights and garbage collections. "But we were notified recently that our property has been reassessed," she added.

Referring to a remark by Water Commissioner George H. Tederick that the project for colored families should be located near their school, Mrs. Clingerman said:

"Some of the children in our neighborhood have to walk to Fort Hill High School. We used to have bus service until the streets got so bad."

Tederick recalled that the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad is reported to be planning "drastic changes" which would affect the proposed Thomas Street site.

William Lindner, Goethe Street, declared "We don't want to move negroes up from Thomas Street and have them dumped in our laps."

To this L. S. Rowan, Oak Street, replied that there are no negroes on Thomas Street "so it isn't a case of unloading."

Rowan, who appeared at last week's council meeting to protest the Thomas Street site, explained that the project would mean "taking off 20 to 60 per cent from our back yards and we don't like it."

Fred Wheeler, a World War II veteran who also spoke last week, asked for democratic procedure and pointed out that no colored persons were at the session. "Let's not determine their fate when they're not here," he said.

Central Site Noted

William Flora, Yale Street, said "other cities have Harlem sections. Let's build a central place for colored families." He protested the McNamee's Hill site on the grounds it would depreciate property values.

T. L. Popp commented the city should not build an $80,000 access road when "so many other sites are available."

Popp said there are 42 lots on Wills Creek Avenue which have all utilities. Mayor Post asked about objections and Popp answered "There shouldn't be any."

Mayor Post and City Attorney W. Earle Cobey pointed out that the Housing Authority has charge of selecting the site. The mayor added that the city has no report from that group as yet.

Cresaptown, Dawson Set Thanksgiving Services

Foul Air Cause Of Mishap At City Reservoir

Gas Company Crews Complete Probe

Officials of the Cumberland and Allegheny Gas Company said yesterday they had conducted a thorough investigation at the manhole near Fort Hill reservoir where two city employes were overcome by fumes Friday.

F. S. Goss, a foreman for the company said a crew of men investigating, claim there is no evidence of natural gas in the manhole. The nearest gas main or gas line is on Dorn Avenue about 250 feet distant.

The gas men determined however, that an exhaust line from a pump in the reservoir pump house goes into a nearby manhole, and said it is possible that gasoline leaking there, as well as fumes, could seep through the ground and settle in the manhole where the victims were overcome.

Goss also explained that the manhole in question is over eight feet deep, and there is no way of ventilating it. He said the hole had not been opened or entered for sometime, and it is quite possible it was filled with foul air.

Carbon dioxide, gasoline fumes, or carbon monoxide from the pump exhaust could all be contributing factors, however it seems more likely that an accumulation of foul air merely crowded out the oxygen, he explained.

Goss said that holes of this character should be opened and aired before men venture into them.

The two men who were overcome and rescued by City Police are Thomas B. Mears, of 1138 Shades Lane and Robert J. Corbin, 52, of 23 Williams Street. Both have recovered from their experience.

Kiwanians Plan Apple Sale

If you're in the market for apples, wait until this Saturday to stock up on your supply.

The Cumberland Kiwanis Club has selected November 25 for its "Kids Day Apple Sale," with proceeds to go to its Sunshine Camp fund.

Eight stands will be set up on Baltimore Street that day, manned by members of the Kiwanis Club and their wives. Hours will be from 10 a. m. until 6 p. m.

Four different varieties of apples will be on sale, and buyers will be asked to give as much as they care to. No definite price will be set.

Carl F. Schmutz, chairman, said it is hoped to raise about $750 through the apple sale, the same amount as was realized from last year's sale.

The Sunshine Camp is operated for six weeks each summer at MacDonald Terrace for deserving boys and girls recommended to the club.

Annual cost of operating the camp amounts to about $2,500. Of that amount, half is raised through member subscriptions while the remainder comes from benefit events held during the year by the Kiwanians.

Schmutz said the club plans to make the apple sale an annual event.

Other members of the committee in charge are F. Lee Fresh, Charles F. Helmrich, William J. Edwards and Dr. Albert Cook, club president, who is serving in an ex-officio capacity.

The other will be a report by Charles D. Fair, chairman of the by-laws committee, on proposed changes in the by-laws and constitution. A vote on both reports must be taken, Tabler said.

A social hour with refreshments will follow the session.

Roads Are Slick As Snow Falls In Tri-State Area

Sub-Freezing Winds Accompany Storm

State Police in three states last night advised motorists to drive with caution as highways became slick with the first general snow of the season.

In mountaineous areas, the snow, accompanied by heavy and below freezing winds, made driving hazardous. West Virginia road crews were at work on Route 50 in the Alleganies.

A light snow began blowing near this city about 7 p. m. and in the city at 9 p. m.

In Garrett County, State Police reported an inch of snow and highways slippery. Motorists were advised to drive with caution.

At 9 p. m., West Virginia State Police at Romney said the light snow falling in that area was disappearing as fast as it fell.

Some two inches of snow was reported in the Alleganies and Grant County road crews were cindering the roads. Winds in that area were reported high and freezing.

Elkins, W. Va., reported two inches of snow with roads still passable as a result of the snowfall which began as darkness set in.

Frostburg reported a temperature of about 37 degrees at 9 p. m. It started snowing there about 7 p. m. and was still lying on the roof tops but blowing about the streets. Snow began falling in the Westernport area about 9:30 p. m.

Deal, Pa., one of the coldest spots of the area, reported a temperature of 26, the ground covered with snow and still coming down hard.

Thomas, W. Va., reported an inch and a half of snow at 9 p. m. with the thermometer at 38 and still snowing.

Both the Telephone and Potomac Edison Companies reported fairly high winds in this area but said no trouble had been reported.

Authorities said radio reports from Pennsylvania indicated the snow was general in the Tri-State area.

Roads in the Grantsville area were reported very slippery late last night. At 10:30 p. m., it was still snowing there and roads were becoming covered with snow in spots.

Baptists To Join For Thanksgiving

"A Practical Thanksgiving" will be the sermon topic of Rev. C. F. Frith, pastor of LaVale Baptist Church, at this service. Rev. Kenneth M. Hayes, pastor of Second Baptist Church, will lead in prayer and will read President Truman's proclamation. Rev. Linger will bring the Invocation and will lead the responsive reading.

The First Baptist Church choir will sing two special numbers: "Praise the Lord, O My Soul" by Watson and "Now Thank We All Our God" by Mendelssohn.

Adventists Assist Burned-Out Family

Contributions by residents of the Oldtown section at the request of the Seventh Day Adventists, have been responsible for the supply of needed clothing for the Samuel James family, hard hit when their home was destroyed by fire recently.

Rev. Oscar B. Gerhart, Adventist pastor here, organized a group of his members to canvass the homes in the Oldtown district and invited neighbors of the stricken family to contribute money and clothing.

Money collected was placed on deposit at a Cumberland store for the use of Mrs. James in purchasing needed clothing. Clothing donations were delivered directly to Mrs. James.

The Dorcas Society of the Seventh Day Adventist denomination which specializes in humanitarian welfare work here and elsewhere has helped 14,229,645 persons in need the past four years, according to Rev. Gerhart, and has reported 7,542,201 articles of clothing given away during that period. Their local clothing depot is operated in connection with the church at 41 Oak Street in this city.

3 Area Men Enlist In Armed Services

Three men have enlisted in the armed forces, two going to the U. S. Air Forces and one to the regular Army, according to M. Sgt. Clarence Biehn, of the local Army recruiting office.
